Conscription registration goes smoothly

One thousand and four UN students register; show excellent spirit

One thousand and four Nebraska students registered today under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, named by President Roosevelt in his early morning address as a "program of defensive preparation and defensive preparation only."

"Reports show the finest kind of spirit on the part of every one registering," said Dr. G. W. Rosenlof, registrar, who arranged for the registration. "Everything ran very smoothly and registrants raised no question. Only one person volunteered the information that he would be a conscientious objector." The only "traffic jam" occurred in Mechanical Arts and two extra registrars had to be quickly sworn in to take care of the long line of applicants.

Broadcast.

At 7:45 a. m. yesterday registrants were interviewed by a radio reporter from KFAB in a broadcast from social sciences.

The conscription bill requires all men between the ages of 21 and 35 to submit to registration, but eliminates students in advanced military science. Conscientious objectors will not be forced into combatant training and service, (See DRAFT, page 6.)

Louis Panico swings out in coliseum for Corn Cob Tassel homecoming party

LOUIS PANICO. Plays homecoming party.

Louis Panico, his "laughing trumpet" and his orchestra will swing out at the annual Corn Cob-Tassel Homecoming dance scheduled for Oct. 26 in the coliseum, it was announced yesterday by Wendell Bayse and Marian Miller, co-chairmen of the party.

Another feature of the dance will be the presentation of the Husker Pep Queen who will be elected at a special election next Thursday. The new queen will reign over all sports activities on the campus for the coming year. Betty O'Shea, last year's queen will participate in the presentation.

Elected by popular vote

No requirements are necessary for election to the position except that the queen be elected by popular vote, and be above the minimum scholastic requirements.

The homecoming, which is the Missouri game, will prove a gala weekend for both alums and students. This year's committee has plans to make it one of the best in many years. Tickets for the dance will be $1.10 advance sale and $1.35 at the door.

Panico and his band present a definitely individual style in dance music featuring "blues tunes." His orchestra has risen rapidly since its beginning and should make the Husker homecoming a complete success.

Born in Italy

Born in Italy, Panico has done a great deal of radio work and made "Wabash Blues" a hit. The number is his theme song.

Playing in Chicago for several months, Panico was featured at the College Inn. He was once a member of Isham Jones' band as trumpeter and later organized his own orchestra.

Other members on the committee for the dance are Alex Mills, John Gayer, Jim Selzer and George McMurtrey. Beth Howley, Maxine Hoffman, Bonnie Burn and Betty O'Shea.

Phys ed prof aids in arrest of ex-convicts

Thru the efforts of Miss Leonore Alway, assistant professor in the women's physical education department, two ex-convicts will face charges of breaking and entering a motor vehicle. The two men, Frank Smith, 30, and Ivan Coon, 32, were caught near the coliseum while prowling cars.

Miss Alway's suspicions were aroused, she said, when the two men jumped out of different cars and began following her while she was walking to her parked car at about 8:45 Tuesday night. As she backed out of her parking place, the two men ran to their own automobile and sped away. Miss Alway immediately drove to the police station and described the two men and their car.

Caught by police.

Evidently feeling safe, Coon and Smith continued looting cars near the coliseum, where they were caught by police officers. Loot found in their car included a flashlight, a camera, three blankets, a tire and wheel, two whip arials, a kit of car tools, carpenter's tools, and many small miscellaneous articles.

Saturn, moon meet Thursday evening -but it's an illusion

Saturn and the moon will meet in the eastern sky early Thursday evening but the appearance will be mostly illusion.

Prof. O. C. Collins of the observatory says that the meeting of the planets will be best seen about 6:14 p. m. Thursday. Apparently the planets will come together though actually the moon is only a quarter of a million miles away while Saturn is 800 million miles distant.

Collins warns observers against confusing Saturn with nearby Jupiter, a larger and brighter planet. Whether or not Saturn will remain visible when caught in the brilliant fringe of light from the moon is uncertain, he says.
