By Jim Evinger

Out on the West coast, on the campuses of Berkely, and Palo Alto, Calif., the student bodies of the University of California and Stanford university have pledged themselves not to trespass or to raid each other's campus during the days preceding the California-Stanford game which will be played Saturday afternoon.

Here's a story about a happening during the game between Harvard and Michigan this fall, before the Gophers nipped the Wolverines 7 to 6. The sports editor of the Michigan Daily was sitting in the stands at the game.

When the going got tough for Harvard, the Michigan writer became excited. Leaning over to a stranger on his right, he shouted, "There's the play we beat State with!" Then it was, "And that's the fake reverse with Westfall thru the middle. Fritz relies on that one a lot."

Other such comments on successful Michigan plays followed. All the while, the stranger kept taking copious notes. Along about the end of the third quarter the sports editor eyed the stranger suspiciously.

"Say, who are you anyway?" he asked.

"I," replied the other, "am a scout for the Minnesota team."

When Red Grange, Illinois' famed gridder, got his first glimpse of his touted successor—Tom Harmon of Michigan recently—he exclaimed wonderingly:

"Gee, I never realized he was so big!"

Northwestern's aggressive left end—Bob Motl—has had a varied career. Among his adventures

Wallop the Wildcats.

Not so Quick now . . .

BILL QUICK
Kansas State Quarterback

Above is Bill Quick, Kansas State quarterback, one of the better array of Wildcat backfield scamperers. However, Mr. Quick will not be able to see much action, if any at all, when the K-Staters battle the Huskers Saturday. Mr. Quick has been hobbled by an injury which may prevent him from playing tomorrow.

and accomplishments he has sung with Orrin Tucker's orchestra and danced with Bonnie Baker, spent a week in a New Orleans jail, was a life guard on the Evanston beach last summer and played in a 1936 high school championship football game with a brain concussion.

Here are some of the vocational ambitions of Michigan gridgers:

Tom Harmon, halfback—radio commentator under sports announcer Ted Husing of CBS.

Paul Kromer, halfback—business.

Seniors—

Huskers will have to put on a strong defense and polish up their own scoring attack to sidetrack any disastrous (to us) thwarts threatened by the Wildcats.

Six and seven.
Those 13 seniors are made up of a sextet of sturdy linemen and seven high caliber backs. A representative of each will be co-captain for the Wildcat tussle. Harry Hopp of Hastings and Forrest Behm of Lincoln, halfback and tackle, respectively, will lead the Huskers in the final game.

The linemen are: Behm, Warren Alfson, Wisner; Ray Prochaska, Ulysses; Royal Kahler, Grand Island; Bob Burruss, Omaha; and Leonard Muskin, Omaha.

The members of the secondary are: Hopp, Hastings; Walter Luther, Cambridge; Theos Thompson, Lincoln; George Knight, Lincoln; Roy Petsch, Scottsbluff; Bob Kahler, Grand Island, and Herman Rohrig, Lincoln.

Seven wins.
For these 13, it has been a good year. In losing to Minnesota in the season opener, the Huskers lost to the best team in the nation.

Since then, for seven consecutive Saturdays, the Huskers have fought back to string out a record of a like number of wins over such formidable teams as Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa, Pittsburgh, and Iowa State.

And now Kansas State blocks the path for the eighth consecutive win. The Huskers are heavily favored and rightly they should be so supported because of the comparative records of the two teams.

Drive, drive, drive.

However, the coaches and the players, from Biff Jones on down to Student Manager Monk Meyer, felt the closeness and the narrow squeak the Cornhuskers had in bringing the Iowa State game out of the fire last Saturday.

There is always the possibility of such an inspired group of Kansas Staters doing the same. If that happens, it will take one of the hardest fights this gang of 13 and their Husker cohorts have ever fought to win for them what they are out to be victorious over.

And so to you 13 and your squad mates, here's for an overwhelming victory in that game tomorrow.

And as Coach Knute Rockne would say, "Get out on that field now, fight like everything, start to dig and drive, drive, Drive,

Speaking of track, a sport in which Nebraska holds both indoor and outdoor championships, there are some other outstanding stars getting ready for the indoor season. Gene "Red" Littler has been keeping in shape nightly with jogs around the track under the stadium. Red is one of the outstanding 440 yard men in the country.

Hunt, Grote work out.

Harold Hunt, pole vaulter, is working hard to improve his height and Herb Grote is keeping in form and both have an eye on some records in the pole vault and javelin, respectively.

Another Husker star, who captured second place in the two mile run this fall, Harold Brooks will not get a chance to perform this winter and spring. Harold is going to the national guard this December for his year's duty.

Enich—Iowa's best.

Here's who the Iowa U. players consider their best player. Mike Enich, big tackle, was their choice. A good one too for Mike has played 397 of 420 minutes all season and has been outstanding in every game the Hawkeyes have played. He suc-

Bible's Longhorns lasso Aggies, 7-0, in Thursday game

Among football games played on the "second Thanksgiving Day" of this year, the biggest upset of the year was recorded when the University of Texas lassoed the Texas Aggies, 7-0, in Austin, yesterday.

Other Thursday results found Creighton beating Wichita 7 to 0; Arkansas outscoring Tulsa 27-21; Kansas U rolling over Colorado State 28 to 0; and Columbia playing a scoreless tie with Brown.

ceeded Nile Kinnick who won the award last year.

It is interesting to note the fact that the Texas Aggies haven't beaten their old enemy, Texas, on Texas' field since 1922 and Thursday was no exception. With a string of 19 wins and no losses and a Rose Bowl invitation within their grasp, the Aggies were beaten by an excellent team coached by Dana X. Bible.

Another chapter to a well established jinx . . .

Harmon, number one.

Nile Kinnick again takes his place in the news but only playing second fiddle. This time it is Tom Harmon, Michigan All-American, who is the big noise. Tom won the Heisman Memorial trophy given to the outstanding college gridder in the nation. Kinnick won it last year but the mention of the trophy readily recalls his name.

Harmon polled 1,303 votes, an unprecedented number of points. George Franck of Minnesota polled second high, followed by Frankie Albert, Stanford and Paul Christman of Missouri fame.

Westbrook, in charge of the performance, expects a bigger performance and a larger audience this year.

"No fool me, Arrow is for shooting bear!"

Mrs. Oomiak had been impatient with Mr. Oomiak ever since the night he brought home the ice box.

"Big lummo! You fall for everything man sell at trading post!" she roared.

"Man say I need Arrow Shirt for six months daytime. Make you like me better."

"Take um back. I like you worse!" she screamed.

"Oh, no. Man says Arrow has handsomest collar made. Man say Arrow no shrink more than 1% when I fall through ice. Man say Arrow never lose button for you to sew on."

Mr. Oomiak went into the igloo and put on his Arrow Shirt. When he came out, Mrs. Oomiak could not believe her eyes.

"You beautiful!" she shrieked. "Like American explorer! How much costs this Arrow Shirt?"

"Two buck."

"Here ten buck. Go back to trading post. Buy five Arrow for me."
