

Iowa State falls before cagers twice

Second battle favors Huskers by 41-36 score

Nebraska's basketballers capitalized in cage play during the mid-winter examination to such a degree that they are now in full possession of third place in the Big Six race.

Due to two victories over the

DON FITZ SID HELD

Iowa State Cyclones, the Huskers have planted themselves as outside contenders for the 1941 cage crown.

In the last meeting with the Cyclones, the Huskers came back after a slow start to win 41-36 in the coliseum last Saturday night.

Trailing 9-0 with the first half nine minutes old, the Scarlet came back with a rush to tie the score at 13-all with 13 minutes gone. That lead was increased to 23-15 at the intermission.

Big gun in the first half attack was Sid Held who poured 9 points thru the hoop. Don Fitz found his basket eye after the start of the final canto and the Huskers flew in.

The towering Huskers, led by Fitz, Held, and Al Randall, took charge of the shot rebounds and kept the Cyclones at bay.

Leading the Cyclones were Co-Captains Al Budolfson and Gordon Nicholas and Guard Dale DeKoster. Nicholas sifted thru 18 counters to take high scoring honors.

Fitz led the Husker point makers with 13 counters while Held dropped in 11 points. Johnny Fitzgibbon, Les Livingston, and Johnny Thompson took care of the speedy floor work. Box:

Kenny Elson leads Scarlet frosh in mix

Nebraska's small but speedy and classy frosh basketballers put on a pregame show for the early fans to the Nebraska-Iowa State mix in the coliseum Saturday night.

In an intrasquad battle, the Reds blasted the Whites, 47 to 34, in about 59 minutes of playing. Kenny Elson of Curtis poured 10 field goals thru the meshes to give his Red mates a win and give himself high point honors.

With but 10 minutes to go, the game was an even affair, but Elson, Perry Fuller, Tom Rice and Al Artman put the game on ice with quick baskets.

Ed Smith and Bob Heinzelman were the standouts for the White team. Sophomore Bobby Bramson broke away for several clear shots at the basket but his attempts rimmed the hoop for the night's toughest luck. Box:

Layden quits Notre Dame for pro ball

And still coaches take the greater share of the sporting headlines.

Elmer Layden, coach of the Notre Dame Irish, resigned Monday as head mentor and athletic director of the nationally famous Catholic institution to take the post of commissioner of professional football.

The former member of the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame will receive a five year contract at $20,000 a year. The deal was completed several days ago but was not released until yesterday. The National league had considered many gridiron notables for the position but Layden had never been mentioned as a possibility.

Sooners get coach.

From the University of Oklahoma comes official word that Dewey "Snorter" Luster has been named as the new head coach of the Sooners. Lawrence "Jap" Haskell was signed as the new athletic director at the Norman school.

Over 20 years ago, this pair played at opposite ends of a Sooner eleven. Both served for the last three years under the coaching reigns of Tom Stidham, who resigned two weeks ago to take over head coaching duties at Marquette university.

Husker wrestlers meet Kent State first on eastern trip

With a squad of eight men the University of Nebraska wrestling team embarked yesterday afternoon on a four meet conquest of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Iowa.

The wrestlers stop first in an engagement with the Kent State grapplers of Kent, Ohio tonight and then head for Pennsylvania where they will meet Temple university of Philadelphia on Feb. 5, Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster, Pa., on the 6th, and Iowa university at Iowa City on Feb. 8. A tentative date with Chicago on the 7th fell through according to the athletic department.

The eight Huskers making the trip are Dick Terry, 121 pounds; Milt Kuska, 128; Roy Shaw, 136; George Cockle, 145; Kenny Husemoller, 155; Jack DeBusk, 165; Foster Smith, 175; and Herb Jackman, heavyweight.

The Kent university team, first on the Husker's list, depends on the two co-captains, Fred Swasey, 145 pounds and George Papushak, 165 pounds, to lead their attack. The Kent team is experienced in the wrestling game having had several meets this season.

The Nebraska team will arrive at the Kent stronghold sometime this morning or early afternoon. It will be the team's initial meet of the year and starts an eleven meet schedule climaxed by the Big Six meet at Manhattan, Kas. on March 28 and 29.

The team will be accompanied by Coach Jerry Adam and is scheduled to return on Sunday. George Cockle and Milton Kuska are the only lettermen on this year's team and it will fall on their shoulders that the responsibility of having a winning season.

Cyclones drop first game by 38-34 margin

AMES, Ia.—Three tall cagers spelled a 38-34 downfall of Iowa State to Nebraska in the first meeting of the two teams in the Big Six basketball race played here Saturday, Jan. 25.

The first of the examination-period contests for the Nebraskans found the Huskers coming from behind to win. The Cyclones got off to a huge 12-2 lead in the first half and it was only then that the Scarlet started hitting the hoop.

Elongated Al Randall sparked the Huskers with 12 points and was aided by his two towering mates, Sid Held and Don Fitz, who rang up 10 and 7 points respectively.

The tall boys narrowed the gap to 19-17 at the intermission and traded baskets with the Cyclones in the second half to keep the 3,500 spectators in a cheering frenzy.

With but a few minutes left and the score 36-34 in the Huskers' favor, Randall sank the last fielder to clinch the victory. Box:
