

Husker gridiron drills over today

Concluding what Biff Jones calls a "very satisfactory season with the exception of the weather," spring football drills will come to an end this afternoon. On this last day, any candid observer of the spring drills can feel that despite heavy losses of lettermen, Nebraska will have two good eleven man strings to throw against opponents, come fall.

Perhaps the most interesting information to be gleaned from the sessions which took up on March 3, is the list of standouts at the various positions. Walter Dobbins, Lincoln Journal, sums them up as follows:

Left ends—Fred Preston and Willard Bunker, lettermen with Ed Nyden of College View; Dwayne Domeier, Grafton and Bert Gissler, Osceola forming the supporting cast. Strong.

Left tackle—Vic Schleich, letterman and Bob McNutt, Colby, Kas., squadman last season, leading candidates. Both big fellows and aggressive. Phil Yakal, Lincoln and Howard Martig, Omaha, probably most promising of sophomore crop. Barring injuries to first two men this position should be well taken care of.

Left guard—No substitute for Ed Schwartzkopf but Herb Von Goetz of North Platte and Linn Myers, both squadmen last fall, may develop into high class performers. Charley Shubert, and Don Bottorff, Lincoln, top list of sophomore hopefuls. Shubert, altho not competing last fall, was on the varsity squad. Question mark.

Centers—Fred Meier and Howard Kelly will carry the burden altho Kelly likely to be called in the draft. Other candidates, Forrest Bachman, Lincoln; Floyd Harris, Norfolk and Ray Lingenfelter, Plainview, inexperienced. Will miss Bob Burruss' passing, otherwise probably stronger as a group than last season.

Right guard—George Abel only letterman back. Warren Alfson bound to be missed. Second in line is Bill Bryant, Ashland, squadman last fall. Gene Wilkins, Omaha; Jack Nelson, Omaha and Bob Deviney, South Sioux City, best of reserves. Nelson on squad but did not compete last fall. Position weak in experienced reserves.

Right tackle—Clarence Herndon, thought by many to be the best tackle on squad last season, back. Understudy probably will be Francis Leik, a husky from Hastings. Joe Byler of Alma, a rangy tackle, shows promise. Phil Bordy of Silver Creek rounds up list. Injuries to key men here would be fatal.

Right end—Bob Ludwick and

Jerry Kathol groomed to handle this position altho Jack Hazen of Omaha, fast and aggressive, might crowd into No. 1 spot. Dean Jackson of Lincoln and Jerry Prochaska of Ulysses best of reserves. Fairly strong.

Quarterback—Biggest question mark with Petsch, Knight and Thompson having graduated. The two Marvins—Thompson and Athey—may get call over Fred Metheny, who lacks only weight to become a regular. Wayne Stranathan, Lincoln and Preuss of Norfolk bidding for places on squad. Left halfback—Major Jones hopes to replace Hopp and Rohrig with Dale Bradley, Roy Long, Howard Debus and Ken Simmons.

Only Bradley and Simmons have had game experience. Debus may develop into great passer. Kicking should improve. No substitute for experience here.
