

Pan American group to elect uni delegate

One university student will be selected to represent Nebraska in an official Pan American Youth Good Will tour, according to a letter from Charles M. Simmons, director of the Pan American Youth Foundation.

The selection will depend upon the recommendation of university officials, based on the merit and background of the student and the date on which the application is received. No application will be considered after April 30.

Each representative chosen will provide his own expenses which will amount to $948. A deposit of $50 must accompany each application. The deposit will be refunded if the application is not accepted by the membership committee.

The tour will be a combination of air, water and rail travel during July and August. During the tour the group will be guests of the outstanding educational institutions, youth organizations and American embassies and official representatives of the various countries of South America.

axis and British-United States fronts. To the forum, to be held in the faculty lounge of the Union, only students and members of the faculty will be admitted. Identification cards will be checked.

The History Teachers' association will meet with the university and the Lincoln city schools. Participating in the meetings from the university will be James C. Olson, Morton fellow, and Prof. R. A. Winnacker, who will preside at another panel discussion Saturday in which Prof. Glenn W. Gray will be a principal. Mowat will also be a principal on this panel.

Prof. Mowat will discuss "The Issues at Stake in the War," at the Thursday afternoon meeting of the association in the Lincoln high auditorium, and at the dinner Friday evening in the Union, he will speak on "British American Relations."

Business activity in Nebraska up, says statistician

Business activity in Nebraska remains well above the level of a year ago, according to W. A. Spurr, university statistician. Improved moisture conditions, rising farm prices, greater demand for Nebraska products arising from the defense boom, and some defense contracts have contributed to the improvement.

Farm prices, bank debits, and building construction continued more active than last year. Electric power output is the only available business indicator that has slumped. Although the defense boom has drawn many skilled workers away from the state, it has had in the aggregate a mildly stimulating effect on Nebraska business and income rather than actually curtailing it, according to Spurr.

General business activity in the state reached a nine year peak last December but has eased off slightly in the last three months. Spurr predicted that improved crop prospects and increasing demand for farm products will lift the state's business activity for the coming months, although the lag of defense contracts will cause regional business recovery to lag behind that of the nation.

Varsity Theatre offers

passes to students

It will be pot o' gold time tonight on the UN campus!

At least it will be for some students. According to an announcement made last night by manager of a local theater a series of free passes will be given to students who answer their phone when called by the theatre management between 6 and 6:30 p. m.

Passes will be good for "Pot 'O Gold" opening at the Varsity on Thursday.

Student Health Alumni publication features directors meet article on speech department here Saturday

Student health directors from Nebraska, Kansas, and Missouri will convene at the university Saturday for the annual meeting of the south central section of the American Student Health association.

Dr. M. S. Husband, student health director of Kansas State college, will open the meeting in pharmacy hall as president of the south central section of the association, and Dr. R. A. Lyman, director of the student health at the University of Nebraska, will give a brief welcome.

Speakers on the day's program include Chancellor C. S. Boucher, Miss Margaret Fedde, director of the home economics department; Dr. W. O. Denzer of the University of Missouri student health service; and Dr. Ralph Canuteson, student health director at the University of Kansas and secretary-treasurer of the section.

Featuring an article by Dr. Leroy T. Laase, acting chairman of the speech department, on "1941 Plans and Progress in Speech" the April edition of the Nebraska Alumnus came from the press and went into the mails Saturday.

The lead article outlines the current curriculum, and states the aims of the speech department. It is illustrated with scenes from "Key Largo", University Theatre production, and tells of the advancement made this year in the radio division of the department including the broadcast outlet obtained through the Central States Broadcasting System this semester.

Fellman writes on democracy. Dr. David Fellman, assistant professor of political science, contributes an article to the April issue entitled "Books on Current Affairs . . . We Appraise Democracy" and Dr. R. A. Winnacker of the history department has written a plea for conservation of source material on World War II.

Cover picture, for the edition, shows three of the university's indoor trackmen, Bill Smutz, Bob Kahler and Red Littler, warming up for the outdoor season. News of the alumni regions fills out the rest of the issue.
