

Nine Run for Six Posts As Election Filings Close

With one of the smallest filings in recent years, students will have little chance to choose whom they want in office when they go to the polls in the fall election, Nov. 28.

When filings closed Friday, only ten candidates had filed for six offices. One withdrew Saturday. As a result, Jack Stewart will be senior class president; Allen Zikmund, junior class president; Becky Whit, Nebraska Sweetheart, and John Thiessen, Prince Kosmet, unless filings are re-opened.

Three candidates filed for Honorary Colonel and two for sophomore class president, a new position just established this year by the Student Council.

With the greek's Union faction running candidates for every office, unaffiliated students that filed are supposedly running without official backing, according to an earlier announcement by Barb leaders.

The fall election for these candidates will be held at the polling stands in the basement of the Union and in Dean Burr's office on the ag campus from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.

To stay eligible the students running for the offices must live up to the rules fixed by the election committee of the Student Council. Candidates must also hand their pictures to the Council Monday for official publicity purposes.

The senior, junior and sophomore class presidents will be voted for by the students of their respective class.

Only women vote for Prince Kosmet. Only men can vote for Honorary Colonel and Nebraska Sweetheart.

The candidates and offices are as follows:

- HONORARY COLONEL
Bettie Cox, unaffiliated.
Harriet Talbot, affiliated.
Ben Alice Day, affiliated.
- NEBRASKA SWEETHEART.
Becky Wait, affiliated.
- PRINCE KOSMET
John Thiessen, affiliated, union.
- SENIOR CLASS PRESIDENT
Jack Stewart, affiliated, union.
- JUNIOR CLASS PRESIDENT
Allen Zikmund, affiliated, union.
- SOPHOMORE CLASS PRESIDENT

Janet Hemphill Is '41 Pep Queen

Janet Hemphill, Pi Beta Phi, was elected Nebraska's new Pep Queen at the annual Corn-Cob, Tassel Homecoming dance at the coliseum last night.

Replacing Jean Christie, last year's Pep Queen, Miss Hemphill stepped from a giant football. Her identity was revealed when Jean Humphrey, president of Tassels, women's pep organization, tossed a football containing the new queen's name to R. Donald Steele, head of the men's pep group, who read Miss Hemphill's name.

Publication Board Meets Tuesday at 4

Convening to fill the Daily news editor position vacated by Randall Pratt, declared ineligible by the point board last week, the publication board will meet Tuesday at 4 p. m.

Five people who have worked as reporters on the Daily have filed for the position, according to Harold Hamil, director of the school of journalism and chairman of the publication board. Selection will be based on the amount of work the applicants have done as reporters, the written inches to their credit, and scholarship.

Balloting was at the door, and 960 votes were cast. Jay McShann's "Rythm" band played for the party and had students dancing wildly to several of his "extra hot numbers."

Other candidates for Pep Queen were Virginia Ford, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Mary Helen Farrar, Kappa Alpha Theta; Barbara Jones, Alpha Phi; and Betty Klinge, Alpha Xi Delta.

It was the intention of Corn Cob-Tassel sponsors of the affair to obtain a band whose door price was within reach of students. Officials said last night that the crowd proves their success. The dance was a "fun party," aided and abetted by the rhythm antics of the Jay McShann troupe.

Laase Issues Initial Call For Debaters

Program Gets Underway Early with Discussion Of Question, Try-outs

Starting the program earlier than usual, Professor Leroy T. Laase issued a call for all interested and eligible intercollegiate debaters to meet Tuesday night at 8 p. m. in Temple 205.

Purpose of the meeting is three fold. The schedule and program contemplated for the year will be discussed. Laase will announce the specific statements of the proposition for debate and release to aspirants for the team the explanation of the question provided by the National Association of Teachers of Speech. He will also announce the procedure to be used in the selection of squad members for trips.

Government regulation of labor unions will be the first topic debated this semester. Says Laase: "In view of the numerous strikes in defense industries, this subject promises to be both timely and interesting."

Speaking about the year's schedule, the new debate coach points out that the national Delta Sigma Rho college forensic tournament, one which Nebraska usually enters, will not be held this year. International debates with British students, will, of course, have to be discontinued.

Invitations to a number of large tournaments, have, however, been received. It is from this number that the year's big trips will probably be chosen. These are the tournaments: Student Legislative assembly at Topeka, Kas, Rocky Mountain Speech conference at Denver; Western Conference Discussion and Debate convention at Iowa City; and the Missouri Valley Forensic league at the University of Arkansas in Fayette.

Eligibility requirements for intercollegiate debate are the same as those for any other intercollegiate activity. Coach Laase announces that a call for freshmen debaters will be issued later.

Rally Committee To Meet Today

Rally committee will meet today at 2:30 in the Union, room 315. Representatives of the Corn Cobs, Tassels, Innocents, Mortar Board and Student Council are requested to attend. Plans for the Missouri rally will be made.

UN Falls as Hoosiers Rebound to 21-13 Win

AWS Reports N Stamp Sale Best in Years

At the third meeting of AWS, freshman and upper-class members turned in an approximate total of $52.65 resulting from the N stamp sale of the past two weeks. The entire sum will not be known until all of the money is received. The N stamps, advertising Homecoming, were widely distributed this year with more freshman women co-operating in the selling than ever before. The money taken in will become a part of the AWS treasury.

R. Donald Steele, president of Corncobs, and Jean Humphrey, president of Tassels, men and women's pep organizations, spoke at the meeting, giving information as to the membership, organization and purpose of their respective groups. Next week the various committees for the year's work will be planned.

Rachel Ann Lock, stated today that there were more active girls in the organization than in former years, and extensive activities are being planned for the coming year.

SAE, Alpha Xi Displays Win Prizes

Judges Give Honorable Mention to Delta Upsilon, Beta, Chi Omega, KAT

An eight ball and nail polish won annual homecoming display prizes for Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Alpha Xi Delta respectively. Announcement of the winners was revealed at the homecoming dance last night in the coliseum.

The Sig Alphas had a giant eight ball with figures labeled Indiana football players peering from behind. Entitled "Polish 'em off, UN," the Alpha Xi Delta display showed finger nail polish being applied to giant fingers.

Judges rated Delta Upsilon's display second and Beta Theta Pi third among the fraternities. Placing second and third in the sorority contest were Chi Omega and Kappa Alpha Theta.

Husker Injuries Hamper Attack

By Bob Miller.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Oct. 18.—An injury-studded Nebraska football team met something more devastating than any injury here Saturday when the Husker gridders had their hopes of high national standing smacked down by an angered Indiana eleven, 21-13.

Plainly on the rebound after three successive defeats at the hands of three teams of high football calibre, the Hoosiers swept to one touchdown on the ground and then in quick succession hit the air lanes in the third quarter to score two more.

Zik Scores.

Nebraska crossed the white stripes first when a reverse-cutback with Al Zikmund in the driver's seat was good for 36 yards and six points. It was as welcome to the Husker fans as the rain in July to Nebraska farmers.

The first period had almost elapsed and the ball was kept constantly in motion on either end of the field with neither team controlling it for a very long time.

The Hoosiers were on their own 26 and Charles Jacoby faded back to pass, which he completed directly into the fingers of Zikmund who fell forward to the 36. A pass Bradley to Athey was incomplete and then Zikmund took the ball on a straight reverse, cut into the right side of his own line, got through the secondary and outran the safety to score. Francis missed the conversion attempt.

Things from that point on resolved into another first period—that is up until 11 minutes had passed. Lou Saban intercepted a pass for Indiana on his own 48. With Bill Hillenbrand in the hole the Indians rode and passed themselves down to the Husker 4 in exactly six plays.

From there it took the Hoosier (See GAME, Page 3)

Oldest UN Alum Attends Homecoming Celebration

A little man—old, but looking not nearly so old as he really is, sat in the alumni office yesterday recalling experiences of another day and customs of another year.

Charles L. Brainard, oldest living alumnus of the university, graduated from UN in 1877, when the whole university consisted of but one building, U hall, and 100 students. He was a member of Palladian Literary society, the first social organization on the campus during all his three years at Nebraska.

"Early debating societies, Palladian and Adelphium, were the only places where men and women could sit together," he told a Daily staff member. "For the two sexes were always separated in chapel and other meetings in the first years of the university."

Except or Accept.

"I remember," he said, "when I first asked to accompany a girl to and from a Palladian meeting. In answer to the note I sent her she replied, 'I except your invitation with great pleasure.' I was in a quandary that week trying to find out what she meant." But it was all right, she had intended to say, 'I accept.'

Mr. Brainard remembers very well the first meetings of the Palladian society, which started exactly three years before he entered the university. "We lacked a great deal of ornamentation in our place of meeting, one of the upper rooms of old University hall," he said.

Changing the subject to women, Mr. Brainard explained that "girls didn't debate, but spoke pieces, wrote essays, or gave musical selections." As to what the women wore, he couldn't say exactly, except that "their dresses came down almost to the floor and they couldn't carry an entire costume in a vanity case."

Palladian Banquet Last Night. Reminiscences, pictures and greetings formed the main part of the program for the Palladian banquet last night celebrating the society's 70 years on the campus.

Judge C. M. Skiles, early Nebraska football player, introduced to the 120 present two musical selections and three speakers, Mrs. J. S. Hyatt, Bert Anderson and Miss Florence Stevenson.

Uni Theatre Selects Final Cast of Play

Final casting for University Theater's first production, "East Lynne," has been announced by Paul Bogen, Theater director. Because of ineligibility, two of the leads have been replaced in the last week.

Maribel Hitchcock will play the part of Lady Isabel instead of Roberta Estey. The part of Sir Francis Levison, the "unprincipled villain" will be enacted by Roy Sheaff. Henry Lee was first cast for this part, but was ruled ineligible.

Paul Laase, 8 year old son of Dr. Leroy Laase of the Theater, will act as William, son of Archibald and Lady Isabel.
