 period the Huskers sported a 19 point lead but this was lost as the defense showed signs of letting up.

their defense was intact. Then they would let down in both allowing the opposition to creep up within an easy scoring distance to give a somewhat spotty appearance.

Four minutes remaining with Nebraska out in front by a 43-28 margin and then the Wildcats started functioning. John St. John, Danny Howe and Larry Beaumont collected a basket apiece and John Bortka tossed in four points in that many seconds as his mates came with five points of the leaders.

Max Young converted a free throw to end the Scarlet scoring and from that time on the Huskers played a stalling game being in possession when the final gun sounded.

Held Scores High.

As usual, it was lanky Sid Held who took the scoring honors. He hit from far out, under the basket for six field goals and a free throw for 13 points. His weakness lay in his ability to convert his free throws as he missed six out of seven.

For the visitors, Bruce Holman took scoring honors with eight points followed closely by Horacek with seven. Hartman Goetze hit for seven points and Les Livingston along with Bob Heinzelman both contributed six.

Kansas U. showed considerable strength in their game against Oklahoma as they downed the Sooners by the top heavy score of 54-32. Missouri downed St. Louis U. by a 39-34 count. The Huskers will entertain the Tigers in their next game Monday night.

Chem Society Hears Knudson Talk Tomorrow

Professor Arthur Knudson, head of the biochemistry department at Albany Medical college, Albany, N. Y., will speak on "Nutrition and Health" Thursday under the auspices of the Nebraska section of the American Chemical society. The talk will be held in Avery at 7:30 p. m.

The importance of food on the development of man will be stressed by Professor Knudson, and he will give a brief discussion of the 36 nutritive elements known to be essential in the diet.

Emphasis will be placed on those factors that are lacking in the average diet and the role of these factors in human nutrition and the conditions resulting from a lack of them.

Hold Dinner.

Prior to the lecture a dinner will be given for Professor Knudson at the Union at 6 p. m. The public is invited to the lecture and a special invitation is extended to members of the medical profession.

Professor Knudson received his AB from the University of Missouri in 1912 and his PhD from Columbia university in 1915. Professor Knudson's studies and researches have taken him to several universities including Cambridge university, Cambridge, England in 1923.

His principal researches have been in studies on the metabolism of cholesterol, effects of exposure of animals to an ultra high frequency field, rickets, formation of vitamin D by irradiation with various sources of light, and fate of vitamin D in the tissues of animals.

Two fellowship grants of $200 each, for research work in the department of business administration, have been announced at Wayne university.

The Sports Mill

By Bob Miller

The entire Big Six set-up including coaches, players, faculty advisers and athletic advisers combined are in the grip of a controversy that has foundation-rocking possibilities. . . On January 3, Dr. H. H. King of Kansas State announced that Ralph Tucker, Oklahoma's sophomore dream cager, was "ineligible to play in conference games."

This Started It—

With this announcement the Athletic Eligibility committee had stuck its neck out for an attack on the part of Oklahoma that rivals the Chicago fire for intensity. . . To understand the action which would undoubtedly affect Nebraska at some time during the season, it might be a good idea to look over the "charges."

Truly a Catch—

Ralph Tucker, the lad in question, is in every sense a "catch" and the Sooners do not like to do without his services. . . Tuck is an 'A' student in his classes and has a tenor voice that has won him national recognition. . . He is, in addition, a wonder on the maples of the basketball court, a whiz on the tennis court and a demon on the golfing greens.

The Controversy—

Tucker came from Winfield, Kansas, where he attended high school and enrolled at Kansas State. . . After seven weeks, he suddenly declared his intention to change and went down to Oklahoma. . . At the Sooner institution, Tucker was immediately a sensation, in fact, he developed into one of the greatest basketball prospects in the history of the midwest. . . Repeated pressure was brought to bear on the authorities due to this sudden switch and it brought on the January 3 ruling.

The Ruling—

Throughout Kansas, sports editors with one Dan Partner in particular, showing the way, the pressure was increased. . . The ruling in question concerned migrant athletes. . . Oklahoma soon registered a protest stating that Tucker "has proved himself to be an honor student" . . . Another rule that appeared to be broken was the one concerning a year's residence before competition can be for the athlete. . . With repeated thrusts by Oklahoma, the Sooners gained a right to have the case reviewed by the entire committee instead of a skeleton committee.

A Reversal—

Monday, the Big Six solons gathered, Nebraska represented by Dean T. J. Thompson, and reversed the former ruling — to some extent. . . They decided that they would keep Tucker from playing more until Jan. 30, and that after that date, if Kansas State would consent, Tucker could play.

Oklahoma Objects—

The Sooners objected to this ruling and issued the ultimatum that they would continue to play Tucker and offered to allow the Big Six to investigate Tucker as long and as intensely as they wished and they were confident that Tucker would stand up and remain eligible.

The Easy Way Out—

As far as we are concerned, it would cause much less controversy and fighting if the Sooners would agree to play Tucker only after the 30th of this month. . . This would mean an allowance on Oklahoma's part but it also marks one on the part of the Big Six. . . It looks like the easy way out.

Kansas-Team Boasts Strong Cage Record

. . . at Home

LAWRENCE, Kas.—The narrow squeak the University of Kansas Jayhawks had in winning their opening basketball game of the season at Lawrence should not be a cause for opposing quintets becoming exuberant over their chances of beating Dr. F. C. Allen's team on KU's home floor.

Records for the past six seasons show that the Jayhawks have played many thrillers during that period and that 94 percent of the time Kansas has come out on the long end of the score.

Three Times Only.

Only three times during the last six years has an invading team defeated the Jayhawks at Lawrence. The records show 49 victories for Kansas, as against those three defeats.

Oklahoma is the villain of the piece in the eyes of Lawrence basketball fans. The Sooners downed the Jayhawks on the KU court in 1938 and then again last March. In between those two defeats the Kansas teams rolled up a string of 26 straight wins at home.

Baker U. on Elite List.

Only team besides Oklahoma to beat Kansas at Lawrence in the past six years was Baker university. The team from Baldwin handed the Jayhawks their lone home defeat during the 1937 season.

Strangest feature of the Jayhawks' success at Lawrence is that Hoch Auditorium, where the team plays its games, is only a semi-home floor for Doctor Allen's team.

Many Varied Uses.

Due to many other uses to which the auditorium is put, including concerts, lectures, fine arts programs, etc., the use of the floor for practice purposes is very limited.

Preparing the court for use by the basketball team involves removing all the seats from the arena floor of the auditorium and erecting the large frameworks which support the baskets.

Time is Important.

The amount of time this requires prevents the court from being made available for practice very easily. Consequently, the Kansas team does virtually all of its practicing in Robinson gymnasium.

Prior to the season opener with Denver, the Jayhawk cagers had been on the court in the auditorium only four times this year. But Kansas won that game 36-35 and figures to win plenty more.

Science Professors Attend Convention

A number of faculty members attended meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Dallas last week. From the botany department were Professors R. J. Pool, chairman, Leva B. Walker, and Elda R. Walker. Miss Leva B. Walker presented a paper at a national symposium on soil fungi for the Mycological Society of America. From the zoology department were Prof. Ots Wade, Prof. H. W. Manter, Dr. W. D. Webster and Arli Todd. Professor Manter and Todd will give papers before the American Society of Parasitologists.

Ames Is Site Of Wrestling Tournament

Iowa State to Sponsor Midwest Meet; Huskers Slated to Be on Hand

AMES, Iowa, Jan. 5.—There'll be no individual champions and no team title but Hugo Otopalik, Iowa State college wrestling coach, feels that the first annual Mid-west Collegiate Invitational Wrestling Meet will be just the "right type" of tournament.

The four sessions of the "wrestling jamboree" will be held in State Gymnasium Jan. 9 and 10.

No Title Awards.

"We aren't going to give any titles," Otopalik explains, "and the only records kept will be the won and lost marks of the individual wrestlers. The meet is designed to permit college wrestling coaches to test candidates against strong competition. The result of that may be squads better prepared for the dual meet season."

"Each school will be allowed to enter as many men in a weight class as it desires," the veteran coach adds. "This way the coaches can get a line on every candidate of promise. We are arranging the drawings so that every man entered in the meet will get to wrestle at least three times."

Meet Runs Two Days.

The 2-day meet will be run in four sessions: Jan. 9 at 2 and 7 p. m. and Jan. 10 at 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. Wrestlers will weigh in Friday morning (Jan. 9) at 10 a. m.

Eight schools, including a national champion, three conference champions, and an undefeated "freelance" squad, have already signified their intent to enter the meet. This group includes Oklahoma A. & M., national intercollegiate titleholder; University of Minnesota, champion of the Big Ten; Cornell College, Mid-West conference winner; Iowa State College, ruler of the Big Six, and Iowa State Teachers college, undefeated in 1940. Other entries are Carleton college, University of Nebraska, and University of Dubuque.
