

Board hears parking concerns

The Parking Liaison Board will hear parking complaints from 3:30 to 5 p.m. today in Nebraska Union 202.

The board represents students in suggesting parking improvements to John Duve, campus police parking coordinator, the parking regulations board and the UNL administration, according to Barb Berry, liaison board chairperson.

Berry listed 13 concerns that she said the board will be looking at during the hearing, including permit price, paving or lighting of lots, student's voice in parking decision, overselling of lots, parking meters, rhino boots and towing of cars.

The board also is interested in student opinion on differential parking (paying less for a lot farther away), guaranteed parking stalls, high rise parking, football day parking and vandalizing of cars, Berry said.

Berry said the hearing was set up in response to students coming into the Parking Appeals board with complaints.

"We need a better understanding of what students want," she said. "We want students to voice complaints, criticisms and suggestions."

She said she did not think there have been more complaints this year than in the past.

Campus police are giving students a chance to make suggestions about parking through the Liaison Board, Berry said.

Letters about the hearing were sent to residence halls, fraternities, sororities and coops so that living units with problems might send a representative to the hearing.

The Liaison Board was established last fall as a subcommittee to the Campus Police Advisory Board after rumors about the permit price hike, she said.
