UNL journalists rate high, Daily Nebraskan gets first

UNL journalists and the Daily Nebraskan cornered nearly one-third of the awards in the Mark of Excellence reporting and writing competition Saturday in Columbia, Mo.

UNL won 12 of the 37 possible awards presented at the region seven convention of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. Closest competition was Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville with seven awards.

The UNL entries were in competition with 13 other colleges and universities from a six-state area. This included schools from Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota. Professional journalists and journalism professors judged the entries.

The first semester edition of the Daily Nebraskan won first place as the best all-around student newspaper. Theresa

Forsman was editor-in-chief of the award-winning issues.

Ron Ruggless won UNL's other first place award in the best news story competition.

Other awards collected by UNL at the conference include:

Paula Ditrack, third place, news writing; Theresa Forsman, second place, editorial writing; Terri Willson, third place, magazine writing; Deb Gray and Lynn Roberts, honorable mentions, magazine writing; Third Dimension, second place, best student magazine; -30- magazine, produced by the UNL School of Journalism, honorable mention, best student magazine; John Kalkowski, third place, feature photography; Cindy Walkowiak, third place radio reporting; and Ron Wheeler, second place, editorial cartoon.
