Cuts hinder research Jeopardy.

Concerning your editorial on the renovation of Morrill Hall (Daily Nebraskan, Nov. 14), we thank you for the acknowledgment that the museum is one of the few nationally recognized places on our campus. We wholeheartedly agree with the plans for renovation; however, we would like to point out that a more pressing problem has arisen due to the proposed budget reallocation.

You mentioned in your editorial that some displays have been removed to Nebraska Hall for protection. Most people do not realize that all the displays we see at Morrill Hall are first prepared and studied at Nebraska Hall. In fact the fossil mammal collections at Nebraska Hall far exceed those on display at Morrill Hall. If the proposed 25 percent cut in state museum research funding goes into effect, the future ability of the museum to carry on its outstanding work will be put into serious Calling U.S. intervention in Lebanon "an unclear mission," Jackson nevertheless maintained the need for some sort of modified peacekeeping force in that country until the boos from the crowd worked a change — "We need to get our men out of Lebanon immediately. We have no purpose there," he said, to cheers.

It was not the presidential candidate, but a poet who expressed the significance of tens of thousands of people gathered to stop the injustice their government perpetrates. June Jordan, a West Indian poet, said it with sarcasm and a certain kind of joyful confidence: "This is just a fantasy. We just kiddin' around. You watch."

Rein apologizes

After reading the responses regarding my quote on the two percent budget cuts (Daily Nebraskan, Nov. 10), I believe I owe the people in the College of Home Economics college an apology. If I have offended anyone, it was totally unintentional.

I was asked to respond to the question just as I walked into the Nebraska Union out of the cold rain and snow, therefore making my response very spur of the moment.

I do hope the people in the home economics college and Kathleen Geis who responded to the quote (Daily Nebraskan, Nov. 14) will accept my apology. I intend to meet with Dr. Newkirk and learn more about the role of the College of Home Economics.
