Lincoln night spots offer music
from Count Basie to AC/DC

By Julie Jordan Hendricks

You're wearing the latest style with oh-so-chic accessories. The mousse holds your every hair in place. You're all dressed up, now where do you go?

Lincoln has a variety of bars that offer live entertainment for dancing and listening. So, regardless if your tastes are AC/DC or Count Basie there's something for you to enjoy. Five night clubs that exemplify the scope of musical entertainment available in Lincoln are P.O. Pears, The Royal Grove, McGuffey's, the Zoo Bar and the Drumstick.

P.O. Pears, 322 S. Ninth St., now offers live entertainment Thursday through Saturday. Ben Brett, general manager, said that he chooses bands heading suggestions from friends and co-workers and also tries to see a band perform before booking them. Charlie Burton and the Cutouts and Why Not? have played at Pears. Exciter (Top-40), The Switch (reggae), Caribe (reggae, island music) and the Alpha Street Band are all scheduled for upcoming dates. Cover charge is 99 cents and Brett said crowd response has been good.

The newly remodeled Royal Grove, 340 W. Cornhusker Highway, features a gigantic stage, pool tables, snack bar, swimming pool and hot tub. The club features a different band each week (usually rock or power pop), with no cover charge. They also sponsor headline acts from time to time. Past shows featured Pat Benatar, The Suburbs and Head East. The Blasters are scheduled for April 23 and Paul Butterfield, April 30.

At McGuffey's, 1042 P St., Thursday is Jazz Night. McGuffey's aficionados should "take the A-train" to get an earful of vintage improvisational jazz performed by many of the region's best musicians and there's no cover charge.

The Zoo Bar, 136 N. 14th St., is an internationally known blues haven. Blues greats like Luther Allison, Eddy Clearwater and Magic Slim have played the Zoo. A number of rock-a-billy and rhythm-and-blues bands from Texas and Missouri have found their way to the Zoo, including The Lerol Brothers, Anson Funderbur and the Rockets, and Johnny Reno and the Sax Maniacs. Cover charge varies.

On any given night the Drumstick, 547 N. 47th St., plays host to local "garage" bands or a national headliner like REM, X, Jason and The Scorchers, the Violent Femmes or Modern English. Weekends are booked with some of the Midwest's best dance bands like Boys with Toys or The Model Citizens Club. Cover charges vary.
