The "Great Plains 1930-39" exhibition of works by artists of the Dust Bowl years will be shown through May 12 in the Great Plains Studies' Western Art Collection room in Love Library.

Jon Nelson, who assembled the exhibition, said the display attracted widespread interest. Because of an upsurge in attendance in recent days, it will remain on display. It was to have closed April 28.

The exhibition includes works from art collections in Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Nebraska.
