Klein's goal:
strengthen leg,
kicking stats

By Bob Asmussen
Night News Editor

He beat the opponent single-handedly — you read and hear it so often, but very seldom is it really true.

One case where it was true is the case of Nebraska kicker Dale Klein vs. Missouri, Oct. 19, 1985, in Columbia, Mo. On that day, Klein connected on an NCAA record seven of seven field goal attempts. Final score: Klein-22, Missouri-21, the rest of Nebraska-6.

Klein had been criticized for missing field goals earlier in the 1985 season. But that day in Missouri seemed to silence the critics. Klein no longer had to worry about hearing boos in his home stadium.

Klein said if he hears the boos, he's not concentrating on kicking.

"When I get out there, I don't listen to the crowd," Klein said.

Klein led Nebraska in scoring in 1985 with 77 points. He connected on 13 of 20 field goal attempts and hit all 38 extra-point tries. Klein has been mentioned as an all-Big Eight and possible All-American candidate in some preseason football magazines.

"I hope it happens," Klein said of the possibility. "You can look at it that people think you're one of the best kickers in the conference or in the country."
