Nebraska's Danny Noonan, 95, and former Cornhusker Jim Skow chase Oregon quarterback Chris Miller in last season's game at Memorial Stadium. Both Noonan and Miller are preseason All-American candidates.

Solid NU defensive line includes All-American candidate Noonan

Analysis by Chuck Green

Solid. Nebraska coach Tom Osborne couldn't avoid that word while discussing the Cornhusker's defensive line last Wednesday at the annual Nebraska football media day luncheon.

"We're pretty solid at defensive line positions," Osborne said, "with Danny Noonan at nose guard — he's possibly one of the finer defensive linemen in the country — and Chris Spachman is certainly a fine player."

Noonan, who bench presses nearly 500 pounds, is one of the strongest players in Nebraska history. He already is one of the top candidates for All-American honors at middle guard, according to several summer college football preview magazines. Last season, Noonan made 47 tackles, including 11 quarterback sacks.

Pete, a 6-2, 280-pound native of Wichita, Kan., redshirted last fall after starting for the 1984 Nebraska freshman team.

At left tackle, Spachman returns for his final year. Spachman was a second-team all-Big Eight selection last season, accounting for 34 tackles, including 23 unassisted tackles. He intercepted two passes, one of which he returned for a touchdown in the Illinois game. Spachman is also a preseason All-American pick by some football preview magazines.

Behind Spachman on the depth chart is Neil Smith, a 6-6, 250-pound junior from New Orleans, who alternated with Spachman at left tackle last season.

The right tackle position is a slight concern due to lack of experience, Osborne said.
