U. S. Must Find Oil Fields Quickly: Roeser Former Head of Independents Tells Senate Group Accute Shortage of Supply Possible

Chicago Sun, October 7, 1942.—"Washington, October 6.—(U.P.) Charles F. Roeser, former president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, warned a Senate committee today that the country faces a real shortage of crude oil production unless new petroleum reserves are discovered in the near future."

In a statement submitted to a Senate public lands sub-committee he declared that oil consumption now far exceeds new discoveries.

"The country cannot afford to be complacent about this drain on crude oil reserves, and gamble that there will be an early end to the war, and that the discovery of new fields at some later date will offset the drain on reserves," Roeser added.

The United States, he said, is consuming oil at the rate of 1,460,000,000 barrels a year—"a volume of withdrawal from proven underground reserves that is nowhere being replaced by new discoveries."

HEAD OF SENATE PROBE SOUNDS WARNING

Roeser's statement was presented to the sub-committee headed by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyo.) as it opened what the Chairman described as a fact-finding session to determine "whether the country is to face a great shortage of oil as it has of rubber and steel."

Brig. Gen. Walter H. Pyron, liaison officer between the War Department and the office of Petroleum Co-Ordinator, told the group that while there would be a "substantial increase" in Army petroleum consumption in the near future, "the Army does not anticipate any difficulty in 1943 in meeting petroleum requirements."

But he admitted that "unquestionably these demands would draw heavily on oil reserves," and warned that a real shortage may develop on the West Coast, where withdrawals are particularly heavy.

Robert Allen, representing Harold L. Ickes, petroleum, co-ordinator, said Army demands "are the object of our utmost concern. Continuing efforts must be made to end our present increasing failure to find new reserves," he said.

We cite you the foregoing because it represents the findings and thoughts of some of the foremost authorities in the oil industry, in political Washington and our United States Senate, and in that branch of our Army having to deal with the matter of oil.

Valentine Oil Company calls attention to the above also, in order to convince the most skeptical and prejudiced persons, that what it has been publishing about oil shortage during past weeks represents cold, provable facts and truths which definitely cannot be, and must not be evaded by any loyal American.

We can't "Keep 'Em Flying" on rainwater and wishes.

Our job is to find the spots where oil might be developed, and your job is to assist in financing the exploratory work required. The Government don't drill oil wells, but it does permit you to do so, and it allows you to collect the big profits which comes to successful operation.
