Don't Telephone Centers of War Activity Unless It Is Necessary

Many long distance telephone lines are very busy these days with calls that are vital to the nation's war effort.

You can help keep telephone lines clear for essential war-time calls by not calling centers of war activity unless it is necessary. If you must call, please call by number and keep your conversation brief.

New facilities cannot be added now to relieve congestion on overloaded lines because the materials which would be required are needed to fight the war.
