"Hello Guy: I received the picture you sent me, also the first copy of the Atkinson Graphic, published December 11, and did I eat them up! Thanks a lot. I really appreciate them both. That was some coyote in the picture. He looked old enough to be a wise one.

"Yes, the rat hunting was good here for a while but has dwindled down to practically nothing, and I hope they don't land any more yellow rats hereabouts. There has been plenty of fireworks around this neck of the woods and I have had a ringside seat on several occasions, and sometimes uncomfortably close ones at that. And I know from experience that all branches of the service have to pull together to really get things done.

"Oh, yes, I got a couple of souvenirs recently that I prize very much—they're fish hooks made by an honest to God South Sea Islander. Met him in person and swapped him out of them. They are made of seashells and look rather crude. Wish you could see them. Maybe I'll be able to show them to you in the future. Well, I have got more letters to write, so I'll ring off for the time being, and send a few lines to the folks and others. Oh, yes, I've been wondering if Zane had been drafted yet. If he has I hope he don't have to come over here, for they can't get me off of here soon enough to suit me. As ever, JIM.

A BOOK FOR EVERYBODY!

Point Rationing Starts March 1st

Our government will give wide publicity to "Point Rationing" but the experience of Wartime England has shown that housewives will look to their grocers to help them buy with Point Stamps. Here are seven simple points our customers will have to know when using Ration Book No. 2:

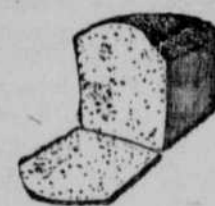

1. They must learn that point values have nothing to do with dollars-and-cents prices. They must know that they have to give the money price and point stamps for every purchase in a rationed group.
2. Any member of a household may use the books of any other members when shopping, as they do now for sugar and coffee.
3. Every person has freedom of choice in using her points during each ration period to buy any rationed item she likes (provided it is available). But when a shopper has used all her points, she must wait until the stamps for the next ration period become valid before she can again buy items in the same group. So the customers must learn to budget their points for the entire ration period.
4. Those who choose to buy processed foods with a low point value will be able to buy more of the articles in the same rationed group.
5. CUSTOMERS SHOULD KNOW THAT POINT VALUES OF PROCESSED FOODS ARE SET BY THE GOVERNMENT AND NOT BY THE STORE-KEEPER.
6. Customers will not be able to buy point rationed items without giving point stamps, even if they buy on charge accounts.
7. To save their low point stamps for low point value purchases, customers should use the high point stamps when buying a number of rationed items at one time.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS:— NO CANNED, BOTTLED, OR FROZEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES CAN BE SOLD UNTIL NEXT MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 1st. THE SAME APPLIES TO FRUIT AND VEGETABLE JUICES, DRIED FRUITS, ALL CANNED SOUPS AND CANNED BABY FOODS.

"Shopping early in the day and early in the week makes rationed shopping easier for all concerned"
