She finds, in an old chest, the body of a man identified as Roddy Lane. The body disappears a few hours later. A fish shed burns, apparently killing an old man named Brown, who is supposed to have lived there. Judy finds Roddy Lane's diamond in her handbag. Lily Kendall is found dead, with Hugh Norcross' scarf around her neck. Albion Potter gives Judy a picture of the church he has just finished. Bessie Norcross writes a con-

CHAPTER XVI

"She confessed to save-him!" Even I could see it, now that Victor had pointed it out. During the reading. I'd noticed a few discrepancies in Bessie's confession, but nowhere near the number he had. Take the wind itself, for instance. It couldn't have blown the blue scarf back into the Pirate's Mouth because there was a land breeze before the tide turned, and the place was entirely sheltered.

We were walking back rapidly to where the men were working on the boat. Thaddeus Quincy had managed the ramp somehow, and was wheeling himself toward us with his table cloth tied to his cane. He passed us, giving me a reproachful glance, I thought.

"Don't forget what I told you, Judy." And he shot a warning nod at Victor. Then he stationed himself in the middle of the road and began waving his signal.

"We've got to find Norcross and tell him about this, Judy." "He's around somewhere. I should think the scarf would eliminate him from the suspects, wouldn't you?" Pernaps.

"That makes you and me, Bessie and Hugh, Aunt Nella and Uncle Wylie, who aren't on the list. Why, it only leaves Potter and De Witt and Quincy!" "Sounds simple, doesn't it? Are you forgetting your Uncle Wylie knew Miss Kendall hadn't been strangled, at a glance. He was right, it happens, but personally I had to make an examination, to be sure.'

"Now, who's crazy? Maybe he made an examination, too!"

I rushed up the steps in high dudgeon. Perhaps I'd better take Thad deus Quincy's advice. Victor Quade seemed to say things like that every little while which forced me to suspect the suspicioner. Wylie Gerry!

Hugh Norcross was coming down the stairs. He came directly toward me. "Bessie says she gave you a letter for me. I don't know what's gotten into her. She won't speak to me. Locked herself in."

Was she afraid of him? I was glad I could see the men across the road and hear my aunt's movements in the kitchen. Then Bessie's despair made me forget my own fear. 'You didn't give her any more of "Exactly. Don't let her have it. You'll understand when you-" I nearly said when he'd read the letter, which would have been an admission that I'd done so myself. "You're sweet, Judy. My sister's nerves are an awful care. Go up and see if you can get her to quiet down, will you? I wish she was out of this mess. And you, too. When it's over there's something I want to say to you. Just now all I dare say or think of is-be careful." He was squeezing my hand till it hurt. "Where's the letter?"

"Mr. Quade has it. He's with the others at the barn. He told me to find you. It's important, Hugh." He took a few steps forward.

"You tell Bessie I'll be back soon, will you?"

"Sure," I said, glad to escape the levouring gaze of his haggard eyes. I knocked on Bessie's door. She was crying.

"Hughie? I can't sleep! I can't sleep!"

"It's Judy. Want me to get you a cup of tea?" "No, thank you. Did you give my brother the letter?"

"He has it now." I heard a scrambling off the bed. "Did he give you the-my medi-

It was still where I'd left it! I'd go down and try to take a look. But | cross?" first I picked up the picture to put

A wet painting isn't easy to handle, but when it's wet on both sides it is really difficult. Potter had painted the entire back of the canvas an apple green, which was even wetter than parts of the picture itself. I, too, got it on my hands, and just when I placed the thing it would be spoiled and smoothed, and caught it, doing more damage probably than as if I'd let it go. Now my hands and a bit of floor beyond the newspaper were a horrid sight. I seized the paper and tried tor said. "It's the cleverest thing to wipe off the place where my hand I ever read. back of another picture. It didn't matter. The thing was not to miss anything outside.

I could see Mr. Quincy still waving his red banner at the dots in the harbor. The men were hammering at the bottom of the Eleanor. The boat, they called to me, was virtually water tight-they hoped. The thing was to get it to the shore. Would I go get Wylie Gerry to tell them how? It was too heavy to carry, and they were afraid they'd scrape the patch off if they just dragged it along. Weren't there any "Uncle Wylie'll show you. He's at the bridge." If De Witt or Potter thought I was their Western Union boy they were much mistaken. I skedaddled over to where Victor was standing beside Hugh, who had just finished reading his sister's letter. Now he held it out to Quade.

"For God's sake, what shall I

"You could destroy it."

"You read it?" Victor nodded. "You all invited me to sort of take charge. I'll help any way I can, Norcross."

"But surely you don't think-? Bessie? She wouldn't kill an ant! She's afraid, that's all. And she'll stick to her story. You see, it wouldn't do any good to destroy this. She'd only confess all over again. She knows I'm guilty. You've got and do it right." to believe me, man! I murdered

"Because she knew too much. Because she saw me coming out of Potter's room with that confounded cleansing fluid of his, and because she was on the church steps when Roddy and I had the row and I hit him. So I strangled her with my

"Good heavens, Norcross, do you know what you're saying? You don't under one of the windows to dry, it have to admit anything," Victor fell over. I made a grab, fearing said. "Less you say the better for you."

"I want to talk. I want to confess. I wish to God the police would come-say, what's Potter running

For a moment our eyes watched the car, but our ears were tuned to Hugh. He was ranting, almost the way his sister did.

"I came down here to kill Lane for what he did to my sister. I saw him coming down the Castle driveway. We went over to the church and fought it out, man to man. Hit him too hard, I guess. Anyway, he died and I put him in the chest, just as Judy said. I ought to have locked it, but I heard someone coming."

Following the pattern-following the pattern-just like the letter.

"Hugh, let me see that a minute. I'll give it right back," I said to him. He didn't seem to care what he did. He automatically handed me the crumpled ball of a letter. I turned my back and took a good look at the writing. Neat, tiny, very individualistic. Nothing at all like back to him.

I could see Potter's car coming back with my uncle. "How much money was it you sent me, Hughie?" I had never called him that pet name before, but he was so distrait, and I couldn't think him capable of all those crimes.

"What ails him?" Albion Potter

"He's confessed," shrilled Mr. Quincy. Anyone would have thought he was enjoying himself.

"Norcross? Well, I vum!" Uncle Wylie marched straight up to Hugh. "Keep your trap shut, young feller, me lad. Iffen you did kill Lane I guess we'll all back you up. It was -self-defense, warn't it?"

"And Old Man Brown?" "And Miss Kendall?"

falsetto, the way he did whenever he wanted anything: "Nella!" Auntie came running.

"Where'd you hide the Eleanor's rollers?"

"Hide 'em? How should I know? Up in the barn chamber, ain't they?" She stood, a trim whisp of a woman in a neat checkered bib apron, her gnarled hands on her hips. Then, catching sight of Hugh, "You sick, Mr. Norcross?"

Hugh raised haggard eyes and said nothing.

"I declare I feel a spell comin' on, too. Want some of my elderberry wine?" Her eye fell on the patch on the boat. "Land sakes! I'd ruther put to sea in a barrel, 'tain't safe, is it, Wylie?"

Uncle Wylie was examining the patch. He looked at it outside and in, then he scratched his head. "Never git acrost the gap. Cove neither. Course we can roll her down and see. Me, I'd tear that thing off

"Why don't you do it then?" his wife asked tartly. "Take too long. Let's see if she'll hold water.' "Oh, what the heck!" Hugh sprang up to help get a log under the Eleanor. "Let's get going. I want the police to come. I want to be arrested before my sister comes down.'

Thaddeus Quincy wheeled himself out of the way. De Witt stood with closed eyes, praying again, I thought. Potter and Uncle Wylie took hold of the boat.

Aunt Nella came down the steps and I went to meet her. She shot a querulous glance at Hugh and asked me what he'd meant. I tried to tell her in a breath.

Greet the Day With a Well-Balanced Breakfast

Good Morning!

What's your breakfast? A squirt of orange juice and a sip of coffee or fruit, cereal, eggs, toast and coffee? No need to tell you which one you can start a man-sized day's work on, is there? A breakfast should supply almost a third of the day's calories and food value. A slight breakfast will prevent you from waking up fully-and thus starting to realize your full quota of production whether you're on the home or factory front. But, treat the first meal of the day with the same respect you do the other two, and you find yourself refreshed and more than ready to do your joband do it well.

If you're still in doubt about the value of a good breakfast, look at breakfasts fed servicemen. Do you think they could get up and do their work if it weren't for fruit, cereals, eggs, toast or hotbread and mine, with the money, I gave it beverage for their first fare of the day? No, ma'am.
