Views of Congress

By Dr. A. L. Miller, M. C.

By the time you have read this the House will have passed the bill to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements. Your congressman could not support this bill in the form in which it was passed. The whole argument put up by the State Department in support of it was that its passage was necessary to the continuance of our good neighbor policy. I believe in that policy, but I don't believe that in order to be a good neighbor we must continue to play Santa Claus to the whole world at the expense of our own people.

I have searched the trade agreements from cover to cover and I cannot find where they lower the tariffs on industrial products the farmer must buy. In the first 22 trade agreements negotiated under the present law, duties on imports of 163 farm products in direct competition with those raised in this country were reduced from 25 to 50 percent. The list includes cattle, hogs, pork, bacon, milk, cream, cheese, chickens, ducks, turkeys, eggs, apples, potatoes and other vegetables.

During the first five years these trade agreements were in effect we imported agricultural products and substitutes which had a domestic value of $12,379,994,000. This was equal to a check of $2,063 for every one of our six million farm families. During the first five years we imported 2,335,273 head of cattle and 758,466,496 pounds of other meat and meat products. That was equivalent to 4,235,439 head of cattle in five years. These our own people could well have raised. Were it not for the hazardous shipping conditions at present we would right now be importing cattle in large numbers when we have more than in any period in the history of our country.

By calling these agreements, instead of treaties, the administration gets around the constitutional requirement that they must be approved by Congress. I do not believe that Congress should surrender its rights to approve treaties. We should not abdicate our right to protect the people.

It looks as if OPA will soon permit and even urge the householder to fill his fuel tank this summer—that is if its lawyers get around to writing the directives before the summer is over. In 1918 Mr. Hoover ran the food administration with 3,000 employees, but the present OPA is using 90,000. Of course, 2,700 are lawyers—almost as many as the total of all persons used by Mr. Hoover.

Congressman Judd of Minnesota, a native of Nebraska, who was a medical missionary in China for many years, recently said in Congress: "I believe that any government is playing with dynamite when it tricks its own people. Does it build confidence or demonstrate to Japan that our will is strong, to have to wait until Senate Investigating Committee finally tells us that our shipping losses last year were 12,000,000 tons, which is more than was constructed? I believe that some at the top have gravely underestimated the intelligence, the loyalty, the stamina of the common people of this land." Washington has been without potatoes for a month. We from Nebraska can hardly understand this. It is said that some are available in black markets for 11 to 12 cents a pound. The impractical and bungling methods employed by OPA may well lead to serious consequences in food by next winter. Those of you who are planning to put up food and haven't the necessary equipment and containers had better be urging your dealers to contact WPB offices, food production offices and every other governmental agency that has anything to do with getting these supplies to the places where they are needed. If they don't it will be next winter before you can get containers, caps, rubbers and pressure cookers.

RESERVES REPORT

for Active Duty!

The time has come to call back into service our reserves of desk telephones—1-A telephones whose places have been taken in recent years by hand telephones. It's like this:

Manufacture of telephones for civilian use was stopped after Pearl Harbor to save vital materials for war use.

Greatly increased demands for telephones have used up the supply of hand telephones—but we have limited reserves of desk and wall telephones, saved for emergency use.

So if you need a telephone installed—and are in a location where lines and central office equipment are available—we may have to furnish you a desk or wall telephone instead of a hand telephone. Also, if a hand telephone should become unserviceable, we may have to replace it with another type of telephone. The reserves are coming back into action.
