

Children Need Good. Wholesome Foods At Their Parties

Simple parties help make children at ease with their friends, do a lot toward laying the foundations for their social success. Watch them enjoy playing host and hostess as this little pair is doing.

How do you rate with your younger generation? Are you content when you keep them clean, get them off to school, and give them some extra tutoring when they need it in English or math?

Yes, that in itself is a big job. and you are doing a big job if you have that part in smooth, running order. Notice, I didn't say whole job, because unless you provide for healthy recreation and play, the child is not getting his rightful share and start in life.

Future Americans must be a social as well as business success to be wholesome and happy. To prepare the child

for this, you must provide him with a social and recreational outlet-and that means an occasional party to which to invite younger friends so the child is at ease in his role as host or hostess.

There's a certain excitement at

Children's Party Menu *Salmon Timbales on Toast Rounds Celery Hearts Carrot Strips *Orange Juice with Orange

Sherbet *Peanut Butter Cookies Recipes Given

custard cups. Bake in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 15 to 20 minutes. Unmold on toast rounds, garnish with parsley and serve. Few children would pass up this delicious cheese 'n bread dish-it's delicious and good for them, too! Cheese Fondue.

- (Serves 6) 3 eggs, separated 1 cup grated cheese 1 cup bread crumbs 1 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon butter

1/2 teaspoon salt Beat egg yolks until lemon colored. Cook cheese, bread crumbs, milk, butter and salt over low heat, stirring constantly. Add beaten egg yolks. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a well-greased casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until inserted knife comes out clean.

An afternoon party menu may consist of assorted sandwiches.

> Deviled Egg and Cheese Sandwiches.

- 3 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 tablespoon dry mustard 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce

6 slices buttered whole wheat bread

3 wafer-thin slices of Swiss-type cheese Watercress

Dill pickles halves. Mash yolks and blend with mustard, salt and worcestershire sauce, mixing well. Fill the whites. Cut eggs into thin slices and arpiece of bread. Cut in halves and choking filled his throat. garnish with watercress and dill pickles. A citrus fruit drink is refreshing, yearling will be like you-" children's parties which easily up- fine for keeping up young spirits Longing to be closer to them, he busy at play dur-Keep all the flavor in the orange juice plus valuable vitamin C by squeezing it only just before serving. To have chilled juice, chill whole oranges in refrigerator before extracting juice.

A few of the colts lifted their

Ken broke away from his father,

THE FRONTIER, O'NEILL, NEBRASKA

Ken McLaughlin can ride any horse on themselves. family's Wyoming ranch, but he Between operations, McLaughlin wants a colt of his own. His father, a went to them with a bucket of oats retired army officer, refuses to give him and offered it with gentle words, one until his school grades improve and "Well, old boy, pretty tough, isn't he learns to take responsibility. Ken's mother tries to protect him from the stern discipline of his father and the youthful bullying of his older brother, heads at the familiar voice, dipped Howard, who always manages to do their muzzles into the bucket: but things right. When Captain McLaughlin most of them stood quiet and would learns that Ken has not been promoted the colt seems farther away than ever. But Nell convinces Ken's father that the colt may be just what Ken needs to not move. McLaughlin patted them, stroked their necks, comforted them. Ken felt himself going. He slid down the fence, and stood with his

his

'Why, son-"

Hicks was gone.

boot on the earth.

"Here, here-" he had him by the the corrals, preparations were alshoulder. most completed. Doc Hicks, six feet Ken fought him off, furious, sobtwo and built like a Hereford steer, bing never wasted time. A day's work often meant three or four such jobs as this, with perhaps a hundred ducked through the bars of the miles of Wyoming roads to cover in fence, and vanished around the stahis high-powered dusty black car, ble. He ran a long way, up the piled full of boxes and satchels, instruments, serums, bottles, lariats, halters. The big vet and McLaughlin were talking together, at the same time that they kept an eye on what was going on, Tim mending the fence of the little round corral where the gelding was to be done, Doc's assistant bringing the lariat down its legsfrom the car, Gus tending the fire which had been built just outside the fence. The boys went close to their father and stood listening, and Mc-Laughlin's hand dropped to Ken's shoulder in a natural, casual manner. It was an important, exciting, day-"No, it's more of that black grease

I want," said McLaughlin. "I've got the can in the stable; come on, I'll show you-"

They walked off. Howard went over to Gus and looked at Doc's black leather' bag where it stood on the grass beside the feed box which Gus had upturned and covered with a piece of Nell's clean white sheet. Cut eggs, crosswise and into In that bag were the instruments. Ken climbed the corral fence and sat watching the two-year-olds. Ken felt the singing spirit of them, the young hearts, the free, over-range on three slices of bread. Top flowing power, and his hands tightegg slices with cheese and a second ened on the rail of the fence. A "I've got one too," he muttered.

"Oh, you beauties—in a year, my her hand and stood looking at the sky.

"Golly, it's hot!" she said. "It's time we had the canvas up." She looked over at Ken, as she stood stirring her coffee, and then sat down in one of the hickory chairs beside him. "It doesn't really do them any harm, Ken," she said. Ken wasn't surprised. She could always read his thoughts. "Doesn't it, Mother?"

"No. It has to be done. Don't feel badly about it, dear. It isn't nice to watch. I was sorry you had to. In a week, they won't know that anything ever happened to them." "Won't they?"

"Just look at Highboy. And all the great race horses." "All gelded, Mother?"

"Most of them. A few are stallions, but more are geldings. Ken, you know the world is full of unpleasant things. Pain and operations and sickness and discomfort. You mustn't mind. That's just the way life is. Besides all that, there is health and goodness and soundness and fun and happiness, too, for horses as well as boys-much more of the good things than the bad-" He turned his face to her, beginning to smile; and she put out her hand and pushed the damp hair back from his forehead. "Take the bad with the good. That's the way grown-up people do. You've just

"I really do feel an awful lot different, Mother," he said. "When I got up this morning and didn't even know I was going to have a colt

"People grow up that way," said they are years older."

Ken's face became thoughtful. 'Besides, I can have a filly instead of a horse colt. Dad rides a mare." McLaughlin's voice, laughing loudly, came out the kitchen window, and the horses on the Green raised their heads, looked at the house and walked expectantly toward it. McLaughlin appeared in the doorway. "Look at the buggers. Beggin for oats-" crowded around him.

Roger B. Whitman-WNU Features.

You may not be able to replace worn or broken household equipment. This is war. Government priorities come first. So take care of what you have . . . as well as you possibly can. This column by the homeowner's friend tells you how.

In no time rust began to show. What can I use that will last?

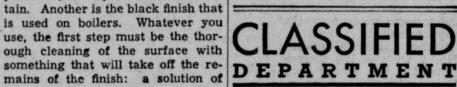

Answer: Paint is apt to chip if the metal has many coats of paint on it. If this is the case, remove the paint down to the bare metal. A FEW cheer-up notes make This can be done by burning with a housework more fun! Take, blowtorch. When the metal is clean for instance, these busy little blueand free of rust, apply a coat of birds to embroider on towels. They good quality red lead; allowing at are quick to do-and how they least a week for thorough drying. brighten up the kitchen! Match Finish with two coats of top qual- them to the general color scheme.

ity floor paint, the kind used for porches. If you are not familiar with the use of a blowtorch, get someone with experience to do this part of the job.

Oil Burner Finish

Question: An oil burner used in a living-room has a dark brown, rough finish, and always looks dusty. What kind of paint can I use on it that will be glossy and not so much of a dust catcher?

Answer: There are not many kinds of paint that withstand the heat of an oil burner. Aluminum paint will do it, but because of the priorities, it may be difficult to obtain. Another is the black finish that is used on boilers. Whatever you use, the first step must be the thorough cleaning of the surface with hill and into the pines, and threw himself face down on the ground. He was thinking of his own colta year from now-when they would be gelding it-he saw it suddenly as clearly as if it was there before him, a bright golden sorrel, like Banner-he saw the blood running After a long time he heard a car starting. The engine picked up, it had a little bit of growing up towas climbing the hill behind the day." house, the sound faded away. Doc Ken pounded with the toe of his

He heard a match struck close seems awful far away." by, and raised his head to see his

Nell. "In spurts. All of a sudden,

He disappeared again. There was always a bucket of oats hanging on a hook in the enclosed porch outside the kitchen door. He came out with the bucket and went down on the Green to the horses. They mains of the finish: a solution of

Bluebird' Towels

Make Kitchen Gay

Pattern 7492 contains a transfer pattern of 6 motifs averaging 51/4 by 71/8 inches: stitches; list of materials needed

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers. To obtain this pattern send 16 cents in coins to:

teach him to take responsibility. face against it, hanging on. "Look at the kid." said Bill, and McLaughlin turned, and in two strides was beside Ken.

Now continue with the story. CHAPTER IV When Ken and Howard reached way to handle them is to have nourishing, wholesome food, rather than "partified" dishes which will upset them even more. You'll find cooperation from other mothers if you let them know you will do everything to make her children at ease. Let your decoration be a bit fussy and party-ish, of course, but keep to the sensible on the food. Have table favors, of course, for this carries out the theme and the children adore it. It stimulates conversation and keeps things going smoothly.

Fresh salmon steaks may be used in making the flaked salmon called for in this recipe. Serve it on small toast rounds and the children will. adore it:

> *Salmon Timbales. (Serves 8)

- 4 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup bread crumbs
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimento 1 pound salmon, flaked
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 teaspoon onion juice
- 8 toast rounds

Parsley Add butter and bread crumbs to hot milk, then stir until all soaked.

Add slightly beaten eggs, flaked salmon (steam fresh salmon 8 to 10 minutes, then flake), pimento, salt, paprika and onion juice. Pour into buttered timbale or greased

Lynn Says:

Sandwich Ideas: Cream cheese or cottage cheese with olives and mayonnaise.

Peanut butter, honey and crumbled fresh yeast, on whole wheat or enriched white bread.

Peanut butter and chow chow on enriched white bread. Cream cheese and orange marmalade on raisin bread. Mashed liverwurst, chili sauce, mayonnaise on whole wheat or rye bread. Minced corned beef or sliced ongue with horseradish on rye bread.

Roquefort cheese, celery and mayonnaise on white bread or on celery as a garnish for salad.

Watercress on thinly sliced white bread, rolled and kept in refrigerator in damp cloth for 15 to 20 minutes.

Finely chopped figs or raisins with nutmeats, mayonnaise and lemon juice, on white or brown bread.

Hard-cooked eggs, celery and nayonnaise on whole wheat oread.

Wholesome drink with a party air is this cool glass of orange juice topped prettily with orange sherbet, decorated sprigs of mint and whole raspberries. Orange float will keep

C helps mitigate effects of heat. *Orange Sherbet. 1½ cups sugar

1 cup water 2 egg whites stiffly beaten 2 cups orange juice 3 tablespoons lemon juice

Boil sugar and water together for gredients and pour into freezing tray of mechanical refrigerator. Freeze stiff, then beat thoroughly. kicking at each other. Return to freezing compartment and freeze until stiff. *Peanut Butter Cookies. (Makes 2 dozen) 11% cups flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/3 cup honey

3 tablespoons corn syrap 1/4 cup peanut butter 1/4 cup shortening Apple butter Sift all dry ingredeints together. Cream shortening, add to peanut butter, honey and corn syrup. Add flour and roll dough into size you prefer for finished cookies. Chill for 15 minutes. Cut into thin slices and top half of them with apple butter. Cover with a second slice of dough and seal as for a tart. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for ing, was thrown and castrated, then 25 minutes. Are you having difficulties planning Doc's joshing ceased, McLaughlin's meats? Lynn Chambers can give you help if you write her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply, in care of her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Des-plaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

slipped down from the fence and ing party time. ran to his father.

"Dad, can I bring them in?" "Don't have to bring them in," said his father. "All I have to do is show 'em a bucket, and they'll come in of themselves. Go get me a bucket of oats."

Coming back with the bucket, Ken paused to watch Doc Hicks opening his bag, laying out some instruments on the clean white sheet, Howard was kneeling beside him, absorbed, looking at every instrument. Howard liked things like that; instruments, doctor-stuff-Doc took a jar out of his bag, filled it full of alcohol and put a pair of surgical scissors in it and a small sharp knife.

"What's that?" asked Howard. "Scalpel," answered Doc. He looked at the boys, grinning in his rough way. "How'd you like to be doing it?" "I'd like it," said Howard promptly. "I'd like to be a vet." "How 'bout you?"

Ken didn't answer. The color was fading from his face. He tried to look scornful. and Ken pressed against it, crying Rob opened the gate and stood calling the stallions. He shook the bucket and whistled his trilling whisyou cool and full of pep, for vitamin tle. It carried to the colts and several of them raised their heads from their grazing and looked at him. They all looked, standing still, facing him. One started to walk slowly toward him, then the others. In a moment they were all cantering, bearing down on him.

McLaughlin fed them first, let each one dip his mouth into the 5 minutes. Beat egg whites slowly bucket and have a taste of the oats; and add to fruit juices. Mix all in- then let one through and closed the gate. The other colts stood there, crowding and pushing, now and then Bill was ready with the lariat.

Bill's eyes were as keen and steady as a marksman taking aim, as he stood in the middle, whirling the loop of his lariat. Suddenly it snaked out along the ground; both forefeet of the colt fell in it. He went down with a crash, and Tim was kneeling on his head before he could move. McLaughlin and Gus tied his feet. Doc went in with his knife, and the colt screamed and tried to struggle. It was over in a minute. They loosed him and he got to his feet. They opened the gate into the big corral, and the colt trotted in there and stood by the fence, head hanging down, blood streaming. One after the other came in prancmoved into the other corral. The men worked more and more quietly.

meals with points? Stretching your face looked angry and strained. Ken had to hold on to the fence. It wasn't only the blood and the cutting, it was the way the colts stood when it was over. They crowded into a bunch in the corner of the

"I've got one, too," Ken muttered. father standing there, lighting his pipe. McLaughlin sat down beside his boy and puffed at his pipe. He put out an arm and drew Ken against him.

"Kennie-" "Oh, my colt, Dad-my colt-" His father's arm held him tighter bitterly. At dinner, McLaughlin said the first thing he was going to do was to get Rocket into the corrals, and into the chute, cut the piece of rope off her neck, then drive her out of the Stable Pasture and out onto the range with the other brood mares. "Until I get that done," said he, "I can't turn the gelded colts into the Stable Pasture-she'd get mixed up with them and I'd have a heck of a time cutting her out again." "How long will you keep the colts in the Stable Pasture?" asked Nell. "About a week. I've got to keep my eye on them. They'll have to be exercised daily. After that, they can go out onto the range with the others. You boys can give them a hard run every day. Ride 'em like hell. This is your chance to whoop it up and yell and act like cowboys.' "Why?" asked Howard.

"If there should be an infected one amongst them-which is always possible-he'd just stand around till he dies. Make him run. That causes drainage of the wound, stirs up circulation. If they're left alone, they'll stand around and mope and won't eat enough to keep up their strength."

Ken hadn't wanted his dinner. Nell was looking at him. She said, "You can leave the table if you want, Ken. Put up my hammock for me. I may want it later."

Ken got the hammock, hung it near the Pergola and lay down in it on his back, with feet and hand dangling over the sides, giving little shoves against the ground.

They do it to all the horses in the world, Ken thought, only a few left for studs. And to all the steers-Nell came out with her apron tied big corral and stood motionless and around her and her coffee cup in sions he insisted on three pounds of washing soda in their good behavior. This meant gallon of water, for an example, folobservance of rules of fair play and lowed by thorough rinsing. turn about. A horse that stuck his nose into the bucket and would not take it out would get a good smack on the side of the head. If they whirled and lashed each other in their jealousy and greediness, he put the bucket behind him and delivered a lecture, the tone of his voice expressing such surprise and indignation that they would hang their heads and all but promise never to do it again. Sometimes he would be completely surrounded and hidden.

The light changed suddenly, and McLaughlin looked at the sky. The heavy cloud bank in the southwest had engulfed the sun and a coolness came into the air.

"It's going to rain," he said. "Will you ride this afternoon, Nell?"

"Later," she answered. "I've got to bake my bread now before the fire goes down." "I'm going for the mail-anything you want?" "Two cakes of Fleischman's yeast, and Gus wanted tobacco-Rough Cut -the next time anyone went to the store."

She went back into the house and the boys ran to the big red Studebaker, where it stood on the hill behind the house. Howard got in the front seat, and Ken in the back. Just about to let in the clutch. McLaughlin paused and looked at Howard.

"By the way, Howard, when did you ride Highboy last?"

"Yesterday afternoon." "I was noticing his legs-you turned him out with dirty legs." "I groomed him," Howard wriggled.

"Yes, down to his knees." "He kicks."

"And whose fault is that?" Howard sat in silence.

"This would be a good time," said stables and groom him. He's right dry is probably because wax in the there where you can easily catch linoleum was not first removed.

him.' "Can't I go with you to the store first?" asked Howard.

the weather signs, as if he had not heard.

> a little fun was up and then choose boy into the front seat.

"Take out the stone from in front of the wheel," said his father. Howard obeyed and the car slid engine started, and it rattled over an insect? wooded hill, and out of sight. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Wherever there are doors children will swing on them, hence the sag. Photo demonstrates the method of plying the screwdriver in taking the Purebred Poland China fall boar rugged fel-lows. Immuned. Guernsey bull calves 6 to 10 mos. old. Wille & Inselman, Columbus, Nebr. sag out of a door.

Noise Between Rooms

Question: I have a mean problem: Two bedrooms with a connecting door. In one bedroom two people sleep, and one person in the other. It seems that no matter how low the two people think they are talking it disturbs the person in the other room. What can be done with that door to deaden sound?

Answer:. I presume the door is not used. If so, much of the sound can be cut down by nailing a sheet of insulating wallboard on both sides of the door frame.

Sticky Varnish

Question: A year ago I put two coats of varnish on my linoleum, but it has not dried, and has turned a dark color. How can I get it off?

Answer: Any varnish remover that you use would eat into the linoleum and destroy it. The safest way to take out the varnish, although it is tiresome would be with fine steel wool, moistened with turpentine. McLaughlin, "to take him up to the The reason why the varnish did not

> Dry Well Backs Up Question: In our cellar floor we have an opening which drains into a McLaughlin sat looking around at dry well. After heavy rains this sometimes backs up into the cellar. What would you suggest to over-Just like his father to wait until come this trouble?

Answer: If the drain is not vitalthat time to make him groom High- ly necessary, fill the hole with concrete. Or you could install a back-He got out slowly. Ken climbed up sewer valve in the drain line. Your plumber can supply this.

Worm Holes

Question: Are so-called worm holes in woodwork actually made by down the hill, the gears gripped, the a worm, or are they the work of the cattle guard and was off down Answer: The most usual culprit the stretch of straight gravel road is the powderpost beetle; eggs laid over the little stone bridge that on the surface turn into worms that spanned Lone Tree Creek, on up work into the wood. Later these and around the shoulder of the worms develop into beetles, which eat their way out and make the holes in doing so.

HIGH GRADE GUERNSEY HEIFERS, under one year and yearlings past, Also springer heifers. Special price on four. FRED CHANDLER, CHARITON, IOWA. FEATHERS WANTED Wanted—New goose, duck feathers, also old used feathers. Top prices, prompt returns. Ship to Farmers Store, Mitchell, S. D. LAND FOR SALE

GUERNSEY HEIFERS

M. A. Larson, "The Land Man" at Central City, has sold Nebr, since 1912. To sell or buy land—write your wants without delay.

OILS AND GREASES

Save on oils and greases—buy direct. Tex-aco, Havoline & Dutch Mill Oils. Send your list & containers with any trucker or write for prices. 24 hour service for trucks. Dutch Mill Oil Co., 65th & L, Omaha, Neb.

FOR SALE

PLANS—FORMULAS

B Batteries, Build your own, recharge old B's, C's flash light cells, Hot shots, Plans and formulas 35c, H. Rose, Franklin, Nebr.

To relieve distress of MONTHLY

Female Weakness

WHICH MAKES YOU CRANKY, NERVOUS!

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com pound has helped thousands to re-lieve periodic pain, backache, headache with weak, nervous, cranky, blue feelings - due to functional monthly disturbances. This is due to its soothing effect on one of Taken regularly—Pinkham's Com-pound helps build up resistance against such annoying symptoms. Follow label directions. Worth trying!

MEDICATED Soothe itch of simple rashes with Mexsana,

POWDER FOR formerly Mexican Heat Powder. Relieve

FAMILY USE diaper rash, heat rash.

Get Into Action

For Full Victory!

WNU_U

21-43

WOMAN'S MOST IMPORTANT ORGANS.

