SMALL AMOUNT OF CORN MARKETED IN NEBRASKA

McCook, Neb., (UP)—A small percentage of Red Willow county's corn crop has been moved to markets, interviews with local elevator men revealed recently. Due to the small amount of feeding which will be done in the county this winter, it was believed that the crop would be moved steadily from now until spring.

Several farmers shipped their crop as soon as it was picked, in order to take advantage of the high prices, and others who were late getting into the fields have indicated they will store in the expectation of higher prices next spring.

The general average of the crop here was better than that given for the state as a whole. The 20-bushel an acre average for the state will be exceeded by at least six bushels here, it was said.

WOULD CLARIFY SEVERAL LAWS

Nebraska Secretary of Agriculture Cites Instances of Needed Changes

Lincoln, Neb., (UP)—Secretary of the state department of agriculture, H. J. McLaughlin, told the United Press he hoped the coming legislature would clarify some of the existing laws pertaining to his department. A few of the laws passed by recent legislatures are because of technicalities not clearly defined.

McLaughlin said he would not endeavor to have any new laws put into effect. This was due, he said, partly to the fact that he did not believe heads of departments should plan new laws and partly to the fact that no radical changes were needed.

Chief among the laws he hoped to have clarified he explained, was the law pertaining to inspection of milk and dairies. Recently, state inspectors visited several cities and found that conditions were not as the law required and controversy arose immediately as to the exact interpretation of the law. It is probable that this law will be brought up, McLaughlin said, and an attempt will be made to alter it so there will be no misinterpretations on it.

The Nebraska game laws now in existence are fairly complete, he said, and the department does not plan to ask that any new ones be passed.

When informed that ranchers in western Nebraska believed that laws regarding muskrat trapping should be changed to allow trappers to hold the pelts in their possession longer than 10-days after the season closes, the secretary said he did not believe any change would be made.

HUGE DEFICIT IS INDICATED

Audit Concern Gives Hint of Nebraska Guaranty Fund's Condition

Lincoln, Neb., (Special)—Accompanying the bid of an auditing firm in Cleveland, which wants $53,000 for making a complete checkup of the five years' operation of the guaranty fund commission is a statement showing the probable deficit of the deposit guaranty fund if no more bank failures occur to be close to $12,000,000, and may be more.

The total liabilities are in excess of $26,000,000. This includes the $15,000,000 of deposits in the 71 banks still being operated by the guaranty fund commission as going institutions, and the nearly $10,000,000 of preferred claims in banks that have been turned over to receivers. To pay these sums there is nearly $3,000,000 in cash which is being distributed among the holders of the nearly $10,000,000 of preferred claims, and assets that have a face value of $31,000,000 and a probable value of $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

The solvent banks have so far, in eight years, paid into the fund more than $15,000,000 which is about 80 per cent. of their capital stocks, and the fact that they are now threatened with an additional liability of $12,000,000 or more is what has caused the agitation to enjoin the levying of any more special assessments. They claim these are against the shareholder and are illegal, as it is taking his money to pay other's debts. If they win the fund will lose the power to collect $1,200,000 yearly in assessments, and be restricted to the regular assessment, which yields but $250,000 a year.

Adding to the liability of the fund the $15,000,000 the bankers have paid in assessments, it is actually in the red at the present time in excess of $42,000,000, less cash and value of the salvage as well as the assets of the banks not yet turned into receivers' hands.
