USEFULNESS.

Ambrose Rohde, Editor

There are few qualities more valuable to the possessor or more highly appreciated than that of usefulness. The useful boy or girl is a treasure at home; a help to father and mother, a counselor to brothers and sisters and a trusted companion. Usefulness implies industry, reliability, intelligence, capacity, self-control, and these are the foundations of a successful life. The useful boy sees opportunities that others neglect. He is attentive to little things. He puts conscience into his duty, and is sure sooner or later to attract the attention of those who are placed above him. He is thus always in the direct line of promotion and advancement is seldom long deferred. If he cultivates his gift, and grows to be a useful man, his possibilities for good will be greatly enlarged. He will be consulted by his employers, for they will have confidence in his judgment. Added responsibilities will be committed to him, and he then is well started on the road to higher promotion and honor. Usefulness may be defined as active duty. To be useful one must be doing, yet thinking may be useful, just as much as action, if the thinking is planning or directing, and not mere dreaming. When thinking is combined with ability to execute successfully it becomes the highest form of usefulness. Then it originates, devises, invents, starts the workshop, builds bridges, ships and railroads, puts in motion the wheels of commerce, finds new avenues for trade, simplifies processes, multiplies employment and leaves a mark on its time and generation.

COMMERCIAL GEOGRAPHY MOVIES

The motion pictures "The Mining and Manufacture of Lead" were interesting and were well attended.

We expect the following movies in the near future: From the Y. M. C. A. Motion Picture Bureau of Chicago: March 22nd—"The Fair of the Iron Horse." (Depicting one hundred years of progress achieved in inland transportation from 1827-1927). (4 reels) March 29th—"Inside of your Telephone." (The gathering and utilization of fifteen of the raw products used in making a telephone). (2 reels) (2) "Romance of Glass." (Discovery and development of glass.) (1 reel) (3) "Voices Across the Sea." (Showing how the telephone cable bridges 3,300 miles gap between England and the United States.) (1 reel) From the General Electric Co. of Schenectady, N. Y.

April 5—"The Potter's Wheel," and "The World of Paper." April 12—"Queen of the Waves" and "Our Daily Bread." April 19—"The Yoke of the Past." These pictures come to us free of charge except for transportation and the cost of projection. The Board of Education has kindly taken care of that.

SPURGEON said: "God sends every bird its food, but he does not throw it into the nest." Every man is given the opportunity to make money—but it is up to the man himself to accumulate it.

In the Commercial Geography class we have been following the markets in farm produce by use of graphs, keeping a record of the rise and fall of the stock markets both as to the price of the commodity and the volume of business at the larger markets. If at any time you want to sell your grain or livestock and care to know the trend of the market, ask a Commercial Geography student.

DIVISION II OF AMERICAN HISTORY

The class is beginning a study of the World War. It may be worthy of mention that one of the ways in which Germany misjudged the situation in general and America in particular was regarding the action of people in this country who were of German ancestry. Probably Germany expected that these people would remain largely loyal to Germany; as a matter of fact the great majority of people in this country who were of German descent soon after the United States entered the war, their stand with the Allied Nations. This fact is especially worthy of note when we remember that England and Germany had been enemies one of the other for some time, and for that reason the German people in this country were antagonistic to the Allied cause from the time war was begun in 1914 until the United States entered the conflict about three years later. If Germany had been correct in judging the attitude of her former subjects in this country, the part which the United States played in the War would thereby have been made much more difficult. The change in the attitude of the vast majority of these people during the months immediately following the entrance of the United States into the War is indicative of the efficiency of this republic is a "Melting Pot" as it has been well termed. Former citizens of foreign countries rather quickly become citizens of this country, that they give up allegiance to the country from which they came.

AMERICAN HISTORY—DIV. I.

By Violet Robinson

The following was found in the Weekly News Review of Miss Lawler's History classes:

The Reichstag, or parliament, of Germany has adopted an unusual method of controlling speakers. In the Reichstag each man is allowed a certain length of time to say what he wishes upon any particular matter. At times some of the members have refused to stop talking when their time was up. A system of "traffic control" has been installed. Until the member has used up all the time given to him, a white light shows. When his time is almost gone, a green light appears. A red light shows him that he has used all the time he is allowed. If he still refuses to stop speaking, great loud speakers, similar to those on our radios, one turned on in various parts of the room. These make such a terrific noise that the speaker cannot be heard. Through these loud speakers the member is ordered to take his seat.

Come to our contest Friday night to hear Emma read "Last Night When You Kissed Blanche Thompson."
