Finest Grand Stand West of Chicago Nears Completion

FRONT VIEW OF NEW GRAND STAND ON NEBRASKA STATE FAIR GROUNDS

The above sketch is of the outside wall of the new grandstand on the Nebraska State Fair grounds. This gigantic amphitheatre, nearly two blocks long, is the State Fair Board's greatest undertaking—one which is an accomplishment of which the entire state may well be proud. These enterprising business men, after an intensive study of the nation's best grandstands, selected the above as embodying the Spirit of Progress which Nebraska represents and the plan of financing was one that shows the ability of the men on the Board. They say "the building must pay for itself" and settled on the debenture plan of financing. "One of the finest in the country" is the way George Jackson expressed it about Nebraska's new grandstand and exhibit building. He is right. Think of it. Measure off one hundred feet then multiply it by six and you can visualize the length of this magnificent structure on the Nebraska State Fair grounds. There will be thousands and thousands of seats, every one comfortable, with backs of a new, easy type, and the aim of the builders is to provide seats for all, but even with all those provided, it is probable that on peak days, even with the bleachers, it will be advisable to secure seats early. They may be reserved by mail.

This grandstand is another step in Nebraska's progress. A quarter of a million dollars has been spent (not tax money—the stand must pay for itself) to make it possible for you to watch the races in comfort and visit your friends in a building surpassed by none of its kind west of Chicago.
