A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or feid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

WOMAN SICK THREE YEARS

Helped By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Little Rock, Ark.—"I was sick for three years after my last baby came. I could hardly walk and could not eat nor sleep as I should because I was so nervous. I took seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used that number of bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sassafras Wash and I am feeling just fine. I have a large family and do the work for all. Your Compound made me a well woman, and I have a happy home now. I always try to keep a bottle of the Vegetable Compound in the house and I tell everyone about it for I know it will help them."—Mrs. H. A. Adams, R. F. D. 2, Box 63, Little Rock, Arkansas.

MAYENCE MOST RESENTFUL CITY

Capital of Allied Forces in Rhineland Seethes With Indignation

MAYENCE—(UP)—The Versailles treaty left Germany full of sore spots but none sorer than Mayence. Here Germany feels the heel of occupation, and under the treaty will feel it longest unless statesmen can agree around a conference table on some means to barter evacuation for cash.

Mayence is the capital of the Allied forces of occupation, a French city in spite of the heavy German architecture of its houses. The horizon-blue uniforms which fill its streets move in a wide stream. Nowhere else in the Rhineland is the occupation so visible, and nowhere else is so apparent the satisfaction that France obtains out of victory.

General Guillaumat lives here with his great staff, occupying the beautiful Ducal palace, while in smaller palaces nearby are the liaison officers of the British and Belgian armies. The general staff took over for itself the law courts building, and the troops moved into the Prussian barracks, almost lost in those great structures although 10,000 Frenchmen live there.

If Coblenz is the center of arch-patriotism, Mayence is the best disciplined city in Germany. The 110,000 townsfolk never do anything exactly as they would like to. With three different foreign army detachments camped on them and an unusually large force of "Schutzpolizei" their life is well regulated for them.

Most Disciplined Force
The Schupos are the most disciplined force of police ever assembled. Like automatons, with their immaculate white gloves and grotesque and rigid gestures, they move Mayence on its way at right angle movements. Even the ordinarily slow moving Rhine seems to brace up and rush through the town with some semblance of military order.

Less enthused with patriotism than their brothers at Coblenz, the Mayence Germans are, nevertheless, confirmed advocates of evacuation. They want to return to a normal life and as soon before 1935 as is possible for Berlin statesmen to arrange it.

In the streets, around the factory gates of the great chemical plants of Calle and company in the narrow streets dodging off the famous old "dom," one hears over and over the word "raumung," evacuation. But there is no passion of patriotism in their voices.

Over at the town hall, a beautiful old renaissance building in spite of its gaudy restorations, the municipal officials are busily engaged smoothing the relations between the foreign armies and the civil population, whose anger has risen many times in the past, and caused no little bloodshed.

"Occupation no longer has any reason to exist," Dr. Ehrhart, tall, blonde Burgermeister, told me.

Two-Family Stores
"These foreign garrisons stay here without any contact with the population. They are foreign by language and foreign by customs. Many of the soldiers' families live in houses requisitioned for them, but from which the Germans have never moved. They cook their dinner over a com-

TARIFF REPRISAL THREAT MADE BY ITALIAN MINISTER

ROME—Italy may revise her whole schedule of import duties to combat those imposed by the United States, if the suggestion made to the Chamber of Deputies by Alessandra Martelli, minister of economy, is carried out. The chamber approved the minister's budget for the forthcoming fiscal year, but did not discuss his references to the new duties. "I don't see," said Martelli, mon fire, and that is annoying and humiliating.

"We keep bad memories of the period of passive resistance. Five thousand Germans were expelled by the military authorities at that time and we suffered greatly. But things have changed since the conference of London and the coming of General Guillaumat.

"The new regime is tolerable, and the French authorities are technically absolutely correct in their ways. They know how to tell us politely things which seem to us to be very hard to execute. But the occupation has lasted long enough. It is prejudicing our industries, our tourist business. Factories which would like to locate here hesitate because of the military control. Some families are without homes, because houses were taken for the soldiers."

But the opinion of Dr. Ehrhart is not shared by the entire municipal council. At a council meeting while I was there, the socialist faction asked the mayor what steps would be taken to meet the situation which was sure to arrive when the foreign troops were withdrawn and look their gold with them. Thousands of business men and their families live off the soldiers, the French now and the Prussians before them. But when the Rhineland is demilitarized, there will be no more garrisons stationed here; no soldiers to keep the merchants happy.

The nationalists are not worried by economic clouds on the horizon as are the socialists. They are already planning monster manifestations to mark the liberation of the valley when the last Allied soldier marches out. The municipality here has kept a balanced budget, but only by means of the subventions of the Reich, which come in the form of credits for "Deutsche Kulturpropaganda."

General Guillaumat is a great soldier, as respected by the Germans as he is admired by his Allies and loved by the French. Clear blue eyes, gray moustache in a young face, he is a typical soldier. On his tunic he wears a single decoration, the French military medal, the highest decoration a French officer can earn.

"I am here by order of my government," he replied to my question.

"I try to organize the occupation in a human fashion within the limits of my orders and international arrangements. During the five years I have been here, I have had no grave incidents."

There is a little nest of agitation, Pirmasens in the Palatinat, out we do not keep a garrison there. These are internal quarrels which bother the inhabitants. There are industries there which employ quite a few communists. Everywhere else, all is quiet on the Rhine. I have the greatest respect for my Allies; Sir William Thwaites is a great soldier and a fine gentleman.

"There is never the slightest discord among the Allies. I inform them of my decisions and they put them into effect unquestioningly. As for the German agitation for evacuation, we must expect that. We would do the same thing in their place."

Women Stumped by London Grocer Test

But they don't want to be grocers.

What the candidates had to do to pass this test was to:

1. Identify unlabeled samples of Java, Ceylon, Assam, Darjeeling, Kintuck, Lapsong-Songchong, and other varieties of tea.
2. Call out the name of any cheese brought into the examination room.
3. Tell whether a handful of cloves came from Zanzibar, Amboyna or Penang.
4. Judge from the appearance and flavor of preserved peaches where they were grown and where canned, also how much duty had to be paid on them.
5. Distinguish properly 17 varieties of bacon.
6. Grade butter and margarine without guessing.
7. Roast several samples of coffee and then tell which berries came from Kenya, which from Costa Rica and which from Mocha and Java.

Michigan Governor Hoards Pay Checks

LANSING, MICH.—Fred W. Green, Michigan's chief executive, some day may deplete the state fund by $20,000.

It will represent his salary for four years, the state paying him the magnanimous sum of $5,000 a year to direct its corporate activities.

The pile of salary checks is growing. The governor now is serving his second term, which will expire in 1930. Right now the governor has approximately 60 checks whose total value is $13,000 tucked away in a drawer.

What a governor, who is not dependent upon the pay from the state for a living, plans to do with the money is a matter of conjecture in the capital. Only Governor Green knows.

The common guess is that the wad of checks will be turned to the credit of his little granddaughter, Nancy, for if the governor's affection for the child could be measured in money, the girl would command at least $1,000,000.

A prosperous furniture manufacturing business pays the governor big dividends, so he can afford to save his salary.

Chicagoans Plentiful As Aides to President

CHICAGO—President Hoover has drawn upon Chicago business men for many of his chief assistants.

Two of his cabinet, James W. Good, the war secretary, and Robert F. Lamont, secretary of commerce, are Chicagoans. Although Mr. Good is credited to Iowa he has been a Chicago lawyer several years. Lamont was an outstanding engineer and industrial organizer here.

In selecting his law enforcement commission, Mr. Hoover took Frank Loesch, veteran lawyer, and chief assistant to the Cook county state's attorney.

The former vice-president, Charles G. Dawes, again was dragged away from his banking to the ambassadorship to Great Britain. And in choosing his farm board, the president found a representative in Chicago, Alexander Legge, head of the International Harvester company.

Mussolini was among those who applauded the minister's speech.

Q. What part of Africa has been the least explored?—J. D.

A. One section that has recently been discovered but still requires more exploration is the mountain region lying between the Lakes Albert Edward and Albert Nyanza. This is said to be the east known mountain region in Africa. It was popularly called "Mountains of the Moon" and is now known by the name "Ruvenzori."

Corn Flakes Employed for "Movie" Snowstorm

There is still hope for the salvation of the great American corn raiser. Corn has gone into the movies in a business-like way. Heretofore the slapstick comedies may have used a few roasting-ears, with sound effects, but now corn is going into Hollywood in a determined manner and mingling with the great and near great in its most commonplace form—hominy.

"The film experts," says Farm and Fireside, "have discovered that there is nothing quite so good as corn flakes for faking a real, old-fashioned blizzard. The corn flakes are specially made from hominy and are thin, white and airy. A bushel of corn flakes and an electric fan will make a snowstorm anywhere, even in California."

Coal From Ice Fields

Every once in a while some scientist undertakes to figure out the amount of coal available, but it seems to be generally agreed among polar explorers that the world's greatest untouched coal fields lie in the Antarctic. There have been several reports of the presence of coal in the Antarctic regions and it is expected that they will be confirmed by Byrd.

Recovered His Horse

Anthony Wasko of Towanda, Pa., knows his horse and his horse knows him. It had been missing for a week. Anthony discovered a cave-in of an abandoned coal mine shaft where the horse had been grazing. He called down the shaft. The horse answered him and Anthony went for block and tackle. The horse was pulled out unharmed.

The Right Way to Redye Fine Silks

Textile makers always use special dyes for silk or wool. They know that is the best way. The makers of Diamond Dyes are the first to enable home dyers to follow this plan.

Next time you want to dye some of your more valuable articles of silk or wool, try the special Diamond Dyes in the Blue Package. They will give these materials clearer, more brilliant colors than any "all-purpose" dye. And they are just as easy to use as ordinary dyes. Like the white package Diamond Dyes, these dyes contain an abundance of the highest quality anilines. The blue package dyes silk or wool only; the white package dyes, or tints, any material. Either package; 15c, drugstores.
