little distance apart she drew away to the opposite side of the road, thinking perhaps that so big a man would require the whole of its 25 yards' width for himself. But no, that was not the reason for her action, for on gaining the other side she stopped and turned so as to face me when I should be abreast of her, a nod then at the proper moment she bent her little knees and dropped me an elaborate curtsy; then, rising to her natural height, she continued regarding me with those wide-open astonished eyes!

A CHEERFUL LOSER

A friend of mine, long years ago. Once bet me 50 snacks. A certain brand of merchandise sold but in cotton sacks.

Now at the time I didn't know tobacco of that brand; but just the same I made the bet. To show I owned the sand.

And then my friend from off a shelf took down a magazine, and found and pointed out to me, an ad I'd never seen.

That I had lost my 50 snacks I couldn't even doubt; the ad was by the company that put that tobacco out.

And then there came a thought to me—Not only came, but clung; my friend had seen that ad before, and I was simply stung.

The more I thought, the more I knew how crudely I'd been plundered; yet ere I finished paying up, I wished I'd lost a hundred.

Of all the bets I ever made, this was the one—but wait! To make all plain, just let me say, my friend's first name was Kate.

THE HOPE THAT CLINGS

The dames who've operations had can be an awful bore; but me, it takes a golfing fan to get me really sore.

To run about a pasture's not a pastime that I crave; nor do I care to listen to those golfing addicts rave.

But from their foolish, silly talk I never can get away; sometimes I think, in self defense, almost I'd rather play.

Of "eagles," "birdies," "stymies," too, I've surely heard my share; of "holes in one," of golfing "pros," enough—and some to spare.

Who talks of "tees" and "greens" and "lies"—Which last reminds of "scores"—I dodge by day,—for pal at night I'll choose a man who snores.

And yet from watching games of golf, there comes a hope that clings; it's that I hang a golfer, and may watch his practice swings.

Old-Worldish Curtsy. W. H. Hudson in "A Traveler in Little Things."

Here I recall a little girl I once met when I was walking somewhere on the borders of Dorset and Hampshire. It was at the close of a fat autumn day, and I was on a broad road in a level stretch of country with low buildings of a farmhouse a quarter of a mile ahead of me, and no other buildings in sight.

A lonely land with but one living creature in sight—a very small girl, slowly coming towards me, walking in the middle of the wet road; for it had been raining a greater part of the day. It was amazing to see that wee solitary being on the lonely road, with the green and brown earth spreading away to the horizon on either side under the wide pale sky.

She was a sturdy little thing of about 5 years old, in heavy clothes and cloth cap, and long knitted muffler wrapped round her neck and crossed on her chest, then tied or bound round her waist; thick boots and thick leggings! And she had a round, serious face, and big blue eyes with as much wonder in them at seeing me as I suppose mine expressed at seeing her. When we were still a

Weeping Is Caused by Mixture of Emotions

New York, Dec. 29.—It is not pure sorrow that causes tears, but more often a mixture of thinking about what might have been done differently.

This was one of the answers to the question "Why Do We Weep," that was answered today by Frederick H. Lund of Bucknell University, in a paper before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Tears," he said, "are indicative of a mixed emotional state. Neither sorrow, dejection, joy nor elation, when occurring in pure form, are very effective, if at all, in producing the discharge. Typically tears appear when a depressing or otherwise unpleasant situation gains a redeeming feature or when tension and unpleasant stimulation is followed by pleasant or alleviating stimulation.

"Sympathy and self-pity, as mitigating circumstances under depression, are highly conducive to tears. Weeping when accompanied by laughter or following tension is usually initiated through an alleviating circumstance. Weeping under loss is typically induced when an extenuating event or comforting association becomes a part of the situation. Weeping for joy or under dramatic and aesthetic stimulation is an expression of conflicting emotional states with a dominant pleasure element."

Q. Please explain the purpose of the Palais de France which is to be built in New York, M. S. A. The Palais de France, a 65-story hotel and office building, is to be constructed on the Century theater site, Central Park West. This building is to be financed and operated by a French corporation, with the approval and authorization of the French government. The new building will constitute a cultural, industrial, and political center in America. The French consulate will have offices in it; also, the French commercial attaché and all official agencies for promotion of French interests in this country. making over as altering Serbia to the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, known as Yugoslavia for convenience, but not such convenience as it might be at that. Poland has always been. It was a name at least even when it wasn't a state. When it achieved national independence all the geographers had to do was to draw a line around it and give it an individual color on the map.

Still there are some changes which we could recommend for general improvement all around. For instance Iceland could rename Reykjavik into something pronounceable. But we bet they don't. They leave the bad ones alone.

Health worth more than fortune

THE baby to be envied is the one who is born with an inheritance of perfect health, to begin with. And who's lucky enough to have a mother who knows how to build up this fortune.

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," she'll say to the doctor who pronounces her child physically 100% at a baby shower, "but this health certificate means more to me than all the stock certificates in the world. If my baby grows up strong and well, I'm willing to leave it to him to make a career and fortune for himself.

"Already I'm teaching him the value of regular habits. Regular sleep, regular meals, regular functions. He's never once been off schedule, not even when he was cutting teeth or traveling to the country. I make sure of that by giving him Nujol regularly."

Nujol works so easily and naturally that it won't upset a baby under any conditions. It keeps everything functioning properly. It not only prevents any excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming but aids in their removal. It is safe and sure. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York.

Just try Nujol for your baby. Give it to him regularly for the next three months. See if it doesn't make things much easier for both of you. Certainly it could do no harm—for Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. Your druggist carries it. Be sure you get the genuine. Sold only in sealed packages.
