Tuesday's Omaha World-Herald contained the following: "Saturday, Miss Louise Tinsley, 614 North Fortieth street, took an airplane up in solo flight after she had had but six hours and 20 minutes of solo instruction, landed it safely, and thereby became the first Omaha-trained girl to solo. At the same time, it is believed, the brief time of preliminary training set a record for women in the middle west, probably for aviatrixes in the United States, and perhaps for the world."
