GLADYS SIMMONS WRITES FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

Although under ordinary circumstances Congress convenes but once a year, today witnessed the third assembling of that body since March fourth. On April fifteenth, it met in special session, whereupon the House considered the Farm and Tariff Bills. The House again assembled on September twenty-third, supposedly to consider the tariff conference report of the House and Senate after the Senate had acted on the Tariff bill. Since the Senate had not completed it, according to the agreement to take up no other work during the special session, the House was able only to meet and recess for three days at a time.

With the first Monday in December, the regular session of the Seventy-first Congress opened. Before the appointed hour, twelve o'clock, the members of the House began assembling and the "reception" began. Such handshaking and back-slapping! It was exactly like a college alumni reunion! It stopped temporarily when the Speaker tapped his gavel for prayer, but began with redoubled energy when the roll call commenced. It is well that the Clerk has a voice hardened by many years of just such experiences otherwise his throat would have been sore before he finished calling those four hundred and thirty-five names. Up and down the aisles, across from Republican to Democratic side and vice versa, everyone was glad to see everyone else back. Even the lady members had their hands wrung in the same violent manner as the men.

There were doctors, lawyers, dentists, engineers, aviators, cowmen, architects, florists, automobile men, farmers, ranchmen, bankers, writers, manufacturers. There was Major Stedman, eighty-nine year old Confederate veteran, the last remaining soldier of the Civil War in either branch of Congress; quite feeble, but still alert. Henry Allen Cooper, of thirty-six years service in the House, beloved by all, energetic and spry, as active as ever in the work of the House. La Guardia, the fiery Italian, a daring aviator during the World War, who tried to defeat Mayor Walker in the recent New York election, but found a Republican's chances in that city too small. The little Filipino Commissioner, The lone negro member, who with his shock of gray hair, is not conspicuous. The eight lady members, five Republicans and three Democrats of very attractive appearance. The former Illinois Governor who tells stories of contact with Lincoln. A member in his wheel chair to which he has been confined for many years. One in flowing black neck-tie, another in high stiff collar and black cravat of olden days. One with long hair. Men who have taken off weight since Spring and others who have put it on. New members, looking on rather than moving about much. Former members greeting old friends. The genial, fine looking Chaplain moving about as actively as the others. The Speaker in his usual modish garb, his baldness of precisely the same size and shape as that of the Sergeant-at-Arms and the Clerk, seated below him. In fact, to the observer above, the bald heads seem to become each year larger and shinier.

Then, the reading again of names not responded to at the first roll call. A great group of men crowded around the Clerk's desk to answer to their names—they probably couldn't hear them in their seats. And after that in the gavel which this time produced order. A message from the Senate was read, stating that the Senate had met and was ready to proceed to business, whereupon the schoolboy spirit again showed itself in applause and cheers—just to poke a little fun at the Senate.

Then real quiet and attention to some business, and a committee appointed to go with a similar one from the Senate to notify the President that Congress had met and was ready to receive his message, a custom doubtless established before the days of telephones.

So, another day of reunion ended, and the work of law-making again commenced. May its results bring the beneficial effects upon all of our country which these congenial, but conscientious and patriotic men intend.

GLADYS W. SIMMONS.

EMMET ITEMS (Last Week)

Miss Anna Nelson spent Thanksgiving at the home of her uncle, who lives about 30 miles north of Newport. She expects to spend Christmas with her brother and family at Pierre South Dakota.

Arlene Janice is the name selected for the new girl at the Guy Beck with home.

A few neighbors helped Sam Jennings saw wood last week.

Mrs. Reich Findley and daughter Lais, and Mrs. Earl Houts, called at the Sam Jennings home Sunday.

Miss Esther Davis spent the weekend at the Andrew Johnson home.

The cold weather makes traveling quite difficult for Fords, as they simply won't run while the radiators are frozen. John O'Connell thought he would solve the problem by putting alcohol in the radiator of his car and it worked fine until he loaned his car to his father to drive to O'Neill. On arriving home, Mr. O'Connell drained the car at once.

Jim O'Connell has completed a large new addition to his barn.
