in winter driving

WINTER driving tests the quality of an oil at every bearing, at every pin, between piston and cylinder wall—wherever lubrication is required. The jump from zero or lower temperatures on a cold morning to the inferno-heat in the cylinder when the engine starts, discloses true oil quality.

During winter months you particularly appreciate the quality of The New TAGOLENE because, developed by Skelly Oil Company lubrication specialists, it has the stamina to withstand hard use—even abuse—and yet keep your car perfectly lubricated.

Made only from select Mid-Continent paraffin base crude—judged by experts to be the best crude anywhere—The New TAGOLENE gives that same perfect service which Skelly users have learned to expect from Skelly products at all times—summer or winter. ### HIGHLANDERS, ATTENTION!

Because of the closing of the Nebraska State Bank, through which the draft for the January dues to the head office was drawn, it was necessary to make another assessment to cover these dues. The draft did not get back to the bank in time to be paid before the bank closed. In order that you may not become delinquent see the secretary, Mrs. Fannie Gallagher, at once.

Illustrious Protector.

JOHN HARVEY

John Harvey was born near Pleasant Hill, Pike County, Illinois, July 28, 1844, and passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Crawford, nineteen miles north of Stuart, Nebraska, Monday, February 3rd, 1930, at the age of eighty-five years, six months and seven days. At the age of twenty years he enlisted in the Civil War but was rejected on account of a crippled hand. In 1865 he crossed the plains with oxen to Denver, Colorado; in 1870 he went to Boone, Iowa, where on December 24, 1871, he was married to Clara Ann Ross; to this union eight children were born, two of whom died in infancy. In 1878 he emigrated from Boone, Iowa, to Holt County, Nebr., and homesteaded in Paddock township near what is now Meek postoffice; he was one of the oldest settlers of the county and saw many hardships. On September 24, 1884 his wife passed away and left him with six small children; her dying wish was for him to keep the children together. He fulfilled that promise; he was father and mother to them until they were grown. During his later years he has made his home with his children.

He leaves to mourn his death his six children, William H. Harvey, of Agee; Mrs. Wm. Crawford, Stuart, Nebraska; Nathan M. Harvey, Alta, Canada; Mrs. C. S. Patterson, Owanka, South Dakota; Mrs. Lloyd Crawford, Portland Oregon; Mrs. C. E. Miller, Gross, Nebraska; thirty-two grand-children and thirty-five great grand-children.

Funeral services were held from the Paddock Union church conducted by Rev. De Vermerman, of Spencer, Nebraska; burial was in the Union cemetery.

Nathan M. Harvey, of Alta, Canada, and Mrs. Lloyd Crawford, of Portland, Oregon, were unable to be present at the funeral services. The other children were present.

Mr. Harvey was a pioneer in the west; he drove an ox team to Denver in 1865 and was a freighter and assisted in building the Union Pacific from Omaha to Salt Lake from 1865 to 1870; during those years he saw much of the Indians who were not as quiet and gentle as they are today; Mr. Harvey often told of several fights with the Indians; at one time he was corralled with a number of others for three days; relief came just in time to save them.

The following well known poem is contributed to the memory of the deceased by Sheridan Simmons:

To my old friend, John Harvey:

THE OVERLAND TRAIL

Here is a song of the days, those heroic old days,
When the west tried the metal of resolute men;
'Ere the sun of progression had melted the haze
Of the mystery hiding this land from our kin.

Here is a song of those heroes, those cusses so tough,
Who cracked their great whips as the schooners set sail;
Who sang their wild songs, as their pipes they would puff,
While pounding along on the Overland Trail.

To this fearless old legion who swung their great whips
Over the backs of their laboring bulls,
Who chose not the language that rolled from their lips,
As the wheels furrowed sand in the hardest of pulls.

The signal from scouts who were sleuthing ahead,
The parking of wagons in panicless haste,
The wild savage yells that would awaken the dead,
The Indian's sally defiantly faced.

The battle, the flight, the reds in retreat,
Some graves over which the lone coyotes would wail,
And away moves the train through the shimmering heat
That quivered and danced on the Overland Trail.

But few are now dodging the reaper's keen blade,
Who tottered down life's ever-narrowing veil,
Who sit and dream of the parts they had played,
While pounding along the Overland Trail.

The tourists, who now in rare luxury roll,
In palace cars over the glimmering rails,
Give never a thought to those valiant old souls
Who went pounding along on the Overland Trail.

Helen Elizabeth Wesely was born in Butte, Nebraska, March 11, 1899, and died at her home in Esbon, Kansas, February 7th, 1930, at the age of 30 years, 10 months and 26 days. Complications following influenza and heart trouble were the cause of her death.

Her early childhood was spent in the vicinity of Butte and Atkinson. In June, 1915, she was united in marriage to Guy M. Knowles. To this union seven children were born, two of whom preceded her in death. The five children remaining to mourn the loss of a faithful mother are: Samuel, age 14; Ralph, 10; Edward, 8; Frank, 6, and John, 3; also her mother, Mrs. Anna Kelling, of Atkinson, and four sisters: Mrs. Lloyd Whaley of O'Neill; Gladys, Olive and Beulah Kelling, of Atkinson.

"THEY HAD TO SEE PARIS"

When the socially ambitious Mrs. Pike Peters springs a valet on her husband, Pike Peters, in "They Had To See Paris," Fox Movietone all-talking comedy drama starring Will Rogers as Pike, he rebels. He doesn't want a dress suit and he refuses to tolerate a dresser.

"I ain't got but one thing in the world to do, dress myself, and you go and hire an able-bodied man to help me do it," complains Pike.

"They Had To See Paris" is filled with similar Rogerisms. See it at the Lyric Theatre, Atkinson, where it will remain until tomorrow night. The supporting cast includes Marguerite Churchill, Fifi Dorsey, Owen Davis, Jr., and Irene Rich.
