C. D. WOOD, MDSE. MANAGER INTERSTATE POWER CO. TALKS ON REFRIGERATION
More families will profit by the protection and conveniences of electric refrigeration in this locality this year than ever before, it was predicted today by C. D. Wood, local Frigidaire representative who had returned from the annual regional convention of his organization at Kansas City where several hundred salesmen and dealers heard factory officials discuss the 1930 outlook with much optimism.

NOTICE
It has been told around town this week that we are buying milk from untested cows, which, we know, is contrary to law; this report is untrue as our records at the office of Dr. H. L. Bennett will prove to you. There are fellows who stand around the streets and boast that they have the only T. B. tested herds from which milk is sold; these fellows would have plenty to do if they would keep their own backyard clean and keep their herds within the law, as we happen to know the yearly test has been up for some time and they have made no effort to have them re-tested.

FATHER BYRNE RETURNS HOME
Rev. M. F. Byrne returned to Emmet this week after spending the past three months as a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital, Omaha. He is somewhat weak yet but is improving every day. He will officiate at Emmet next Sunday, February 23rd. The hours of the Masses will be 8:30 and 10:30.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S ASS'N. WILL HOLD GOLDEN JUBILEE
The Golden Jubilee of the Photographers Association of America, the contest for the most lovely mother and the most attractive child in America, with a $20,000.00 prize list offered by the Association to winners and the ninetieth anniversary of the invention of photography last year, have stimulated America's interest in photography to a high point, S. Downey, of the O'Neill Photo Co., said today.

has made her home for several years. She has been totally blind for a number of years and has been cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Beha at the expense of the county.

Funeral services for Miss Loftis were held Monday afternoon, conducted by Father Leahy; burial was in Calvary cemetery.

The following article which appeared in a Sioux City paper a few years ago tells the story of her life. The article was written by Wm. Beha.

When Miss Loftis was born, in Ireland, so many years ago that she can't remember what year it was, the banshees cried about the cabin, according to her grandfather, as a forecast that hers would be a drab life, devoted to service for others. And so it has been.

Miss Loftis sailed for America when she was about 14 years old, and during the voyage nearly was shipwrecked. But death, she says, would have been preferable to the hardships of life in Ireland, and so she was not greatly alarmed at its menace. In New York she found work as a housemaid and, because of her strength and willingness, received the highest wages for that kind of service, $10 a month. This she saved and sent to her mother, brothers and sisters that they might come to America, too.

After the arrival of the rest of the family, she remained in the east for a few years, Bridget supporting all, until they had enough to come west and settle in Platte county on a farm. Finally the brothers came to Holt county and filed on a homestead, then returned to Platte county to get their possessions. Bridget, afoot, drove a herd of cattle all the way, preparing meals for her brothers and self at each stop, and sleeping on the ground. After seeing the others settled on the claim, she filed on another for herself.

Now began one of the hardest periods of her life, and yet one of the most pleasant because she was working for herself. She cut sod and erected her own claim shanty, built fences, and did all the cultivation of crops. She lived on her claim part of the time and the rest of the time worked for neighbors in order to have cash on hand. Her mother died and the rest of the family moved away, one by one, but Bridget remained in Nebraska and has made her home in O'Neill for many years.

"No, I've never seen a circus, a movie show, been in any other kind of theatre, to a dance, or even a picnic," Miss Loftis says, "and what's more, I guess I never will. I'm totally blind now, so I couldn't see a circus or show if I wanted to, and as for dancing, my old legs are too feeble. But I'm not complaining. Once I was to a church festival, many years ago, and I didn't know if I'd get to it. I was so busy at the time I put on my best clothes while I ran to it, and on the way back, I undressed while I ran."

is known as a hydrator, a moist air compartment which not only keeps vegetables perfectly for many days at a time, but has the power to restore many varieties to their original freshness. It also is an ideal place in which to store sandwiches and will keep them fresh and wholesome for a longtime.

The hydrator not only will lighten household work, but will assure the housewife a store of fresh vegetables at all times, will eliminate the waste of vegetables and salad materials, and enable the hostess to be prepared for unexpected guests. It is now on display at our show room.

Arrangements have been made to install this new Frigidaire product in all household models made by this General Motors subsidiary, and all new refrigerators are equipped with it. The same policy was followed last year when Frigidaire introduced its now famous cold control, a device for faster freezing and more successful dessert and salad making.

Wilted vegetables can be restored, fresh ones kept in prime condition for many days, and sandwiches held fresh and wholesome for long periods of time in a recently perfected moist air compartment for the electric refrigerator, it was explained today by C. D. Wood, local Frigidaire representative, who has just returned from the convention of his company at Kansas City where the new product was presented.

"The device, known as the hydrator, is now on display at our sales-room," he said, "and complete information concerning its use is available there. Announcement of this latest achievement of the electric refrigeration industry follows three years research work in the experimental kitchens and bacteriological laboratory of Frigidaire. The new product was subjected to very rigid tests in Dayton, Ohio, home of the corporation, before being presented.

The hydrator will be available for every Frigidaire owner at a nominal cost. The corporation is following the same policy used with the introduction last year of the Frigidaire cold control, one of the outstanding electric refrigeration achievements of 1929, so that present owners of this make of electric refrigeration may install a hydrator in their present cabinet."

"Besides the announcement of the hydrator at the convention, it also was made known that more than 1,300,000 Frigidaires are now in use, which is more than all other makes of electric refrigerators combined. Another announcement of this year was that Frigidaire now combines the beauty of porcelain with the strength of steel in all household cabinets."

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed George Colman's garage Thursday morning. A truck which became ignited was pushed and saved, but a quantity of furniture, coal and a complete set of veterinary tools which were stored in the garage, were burned. For a while the fire threatened the house, which was only a few feet distant; it was with great difficulty that the fire fighters succeeded in saving it. The loss was partially covered by insurance.
