Old Telephone Equipment In Being Torn Down

Rebuilding O'Neill's telephone system includes not only the installation of new equipment, but the removal of the old property.

Telephone men now are busy taking down the old poles and wires which have been replaced with a new telephone plant.

The magneto telephones are being removed and the new common battery telephones are being installed as rapidly as practical.

We are pleased to do our part in helping O'Neill go forward by providing an improved telephone system.
