Deserved Her Pups

Kenneth M. Lee of Augusta, Maine, captured a pair of fox pups and just as he tucked them in a basket the mother fox appeared. With her fur ruffled up, and snarling, she approached within three feet of him. He took the foxes away, traveling nearly a dozen miles, more than half the journey being in a canoe. Upon arrival at the camp where he was staying he built a pen for the foxes and left them there at night. In the morning he found the mother fox had dug a hole from the outside to the pen and had taken her pups away.

"A WONDERFUL HELP TO ME"

Read What Mrs. Arnold Says About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dothan, Ala.—"What a wonderful help Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. I was so nervous and rundown; I couldn't be up half the time. When I had taken one bottle of Vegetable Compound I could tell I felt better, so I took seven bottles and I recommend it highly. It helped my nerves and keeps me strong to do my housework and wait on four little children. I hope some other suffering woman will try it."

Intelligent Bear
When a fire in the business section of Milford, Del., was at its height, Mr. Windsor, owner of the Windsor Hotel, ran to a cage containing his pet bear. The cage was near the fire and brim was becoming decidedly warm. Windsor released him, and the bear, giving one look at the blaze, darted through the crowd, which gave him plenty of leeway, and plunged into the Mispillon river, where he remained until the fire was out.

There are some men so crooked that nobody can become intimate with them.

FEEL GOOD?
Most ailments start from poor elimination (constipation or semi-constipation). Intestinal poisons sap vitality, undermine your health and make life miserable. Soil Survey of Entire County Photographed from Airplane Shows Soil Boundaries, Eroded Areas and Field Distribution

Washington (NEA)—Surveying the soil of an entire county from the air is the latest achievement of the bureau of chemistry and soils, United States department of agriculture.

The land surveyed was Jennings county, 383 square miles, in Indiana. Portions of a parish in Louisiana had previously been photographed from an airplane but this is the first time that air photographs for a base-map for a soil survey were made for a complete county. Approximately 430 aerial photographs were taken from altitudes varying from 13,000 to 15,000 feet.

The project enlisted the co-operation of the federal department of agriculture and Purdue university agriculture experiment station. Parts of three days were consumed in doing the job, since unfavorable weather conditions did not permit uninterrupted air-surveying.

All details at a glance. The photographs show roads, houses, streams, soil boundaries, eroded areas, as well as the distribution of woodland, fields, shocks of corn and character of crops. Mark Baldwin of the Washington office of the bureau of chemistry and soils, says while ground surveying is necessary for examination of subsoils, the airplane has proved its worthiness as an accurate and speedy method for outlining soil boundaries and defining areas of soil erosion.

The comparative costs of soil surveying by ground method and from the air, points out Baldwin, is the determining factor that will hinder or speed up the development of soil-mapping by airplane. The 383 square miles comprising Jennings county were surveyed at a cost of

POCKETBOOK APPEAL
The bridge that spans the River Sioux.

Out at North Riverside, is plenty long and plenty strong. And also plenty wide; It's smooth and fair, a pleasant way.

All save its wet approach. But that has bumps my Flivver jumps. To groan in pained reproach.

And further on, beneath the tracks Of the Milwaukee road, Full other lumps and further thumps.

As dragons' teeth are sowed; And right across the pavement there

They in the shadow lurk, To rouse my ire, bust Lizzie's tire, And give my spine a jerk.

These defects are not new at all, But have been there for years, To make expense beyond all sense. And break up auto gears. Though I would live a long time yet, Till many years have passed, As my abode lies o'er this road, I can't much longer last.

That doesn't make much difference. Except, of course, to me; But ere I go, up? or below? I hope someone will see, That loads of stock must come this road.

To o'er it bump and toss, And every head that it knocks dead Is quite a vital loss. —Sam Page.

Canada and Power.
From Pierre Capital-Journal. A great deal is heard about the law enforcement in Canada and about public rights, but the greatest interest that Canadian people are taking is in the matter of public service and control of public utilities. Hydro-electric has been furnishing Canada with electric power at about one third what the American people pay. Over there it is public ownership controlling; here in the United States it is city service and the unlimited subsidiaries. The people of Canada propose to have all the benefit possible for the individual. The majority over there favor privileges to the masses, in-less than one cent an acre, and other counties could be mapped in a similar manner at costs varying from $2,000 to $3,000 for each county, depending upon its size.

The airplane also reduces the necessary ground surveying by about one-half, Baldwin adds. Can Reach Difficult Spots Dr. A. G. McCall, chief of soil investigation of the bureau of chemistry and soils, in a recent experimental flight over the Everglades of Florida, realized the advantages of the airplane for observation and mapping of soils not easily accessible to ground soil-surveying instruments.

country has faced: That of the division of power and authority between the central government and the various local areas. The United States had this problem from the very beginning, and in spite of a four-year civil war it still is not settled. Americans talk of "states' rights." The Chinese talk of provincial autonomy.

The old empire nominally was under the direct and complete control of the emperor. Practically, however, the governors of the provinces, or the viceroys who ruled over two or three provinces, were virtually supreme in their own territory. The vast size of the country and the lack of quick and easy communications made this inevitable.

When the republic was started a constitution was adopted which gave the president considerable independent power. The first real president, Yuan Shih-kai, being a strong man, started to concentrate all the power he could in his own hands. When he died, and a series of lesser men filled the presidency, the authority of the central government gradually faded away until it almost ceased to exist even nominally.

When the nationalists adopted the constitution of the present government, in October, 1928, they sidestepped this question of centralization by setting a committee at the head of the government, but without defining whether the chairman of that committee or the committee itself should be the real authority. Chiang Kai-shek, who also is an aggressively vigorous man, as chairman of the state council since its formation, has sought to make of that chairmanship substantially a personal dictatorship. Other prominent leaders in China have opposed this tendency. Personal ambition stead of profit to the classes. An Ontario dispatch says:

"Hydro, Ontario's publicly-owned power system, continues to buy up private plants. Last week it absorbed the Dominion Power company at a cost of $21,000,000 and thus cleaned up the Niagara district.

"This week it took over the Poshay interests in Bruce county, paying $252,000. The extent to which this province is going into the power business is shown by the fact that the legislature which just adjourned appropriated nearly $49,000,000 to extend hydro. This represented about 41 per cent of the total appropriations. It will be seen that 41 per cent of

Old Turkey Lining Up With Modern Nations

Engravers street, a short passage near the grand bazars, Constantinople, has suffered a change in the past year. Seal makers, who formerly cut signets in the old characters, now are reduced to such haphazard pursuits as painting signs reading "Keep the Halls Clean" and "This way to the Janitor." This is entirely due to the influence of compulsory education. Thousands of illiterate people who formerly depended upon a stamp with which to place their names on documents now sign for themselves. Not many years ago the signet was something to be proud of. Frequently it was cut from semi-precious stones and even emerald seals were used. But the signet has now been replaced by the fountain pen.

FAMILY DOCTOR MADE MILLIONS OF FRIENDS

Fifteen years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became famous for a single prescription which now, after forty years, is still making friends.

Today Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people never think of using anything else when they're constipated, headachy, bilious, feverish or weak; when breath is bad, tongue coated, or they're suffering from nausea, gas, or lack of appetite or energy.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made today according to the original formula, from herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant-tasting; thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.

Corn Borer

The corn borer is one of the most serious pests of the farm. It enters the cornstalk at the ground and operates through the length of the stalk and ultimately the corn is destroyed. A. Russell Marston, entomologist at the Michigan State college corn borer experiment station, has developed a strain of corn which the borer refuses to attack. Why, Marston cannot tell. There is something in it the borer does not like; he knows the grain intuitively, and lets it alone. The resistant strain that has been developed is a cross between the maize abargo, a South American strain the borer will not attack, and a commercially productive North American strain.

Turtle Had Traveled
