ALTA YELLOW IS USED IN DEWEY

Constitutes 67 Per Cent of County's Corn Acreage

Timber Lake, S. D. sellow dent will be planted on 32 per cent of the land devoted to corn in Dewey county and the Alta, Fuller and Rustler varieties will constitute 67 per cent of the county's com sereage, County Agent H. D. McCullough found by sending out a ques-

Alta corn was introduced into Dewey county in 1924, when 10 bushels were brought in and distributed to 4-H club members, McCullough said. In its seventh year, this variety leads all others and will occupy approximately a third of the corn acreage of the county.

Developed at the Highmore station as a variety, especially adapted for the two northern tiers of counties in South Dakota, Alta has consistently won first place in Dewey county corn contests and has made good with most of the critical farmers, the county agent said.

Fuller's yellow dent has also shown up well in corn contests and is being grown more generally this year than ever before.

"Rustler" is the name given to several local strains of white dent, formerly the most popular variety in the county and thought to be the only one which would mature safely. It has been giving place to Alta the last few years because of the higher feed value of a yellow dent corn when alfalfa hay or pasture are not available, McCullough explained.

"CALF DAYS" PLANNED Milbank, S. D. - (AP) - The "trade expansion committee" of the Milbank commerce and community club, is planning "calf days" during June, July and August, at which it will give away helfer calves. The project is designed to promote community good will.

MORE TAXABLE LAND

McIntesh, S. D. - (AP) A total of 15,514 acres of land has been added to tax rolls of Corson county during the last year-9.467 acres of Indian lands conveyed by deed to purchasers through the Standing Rock Agency, and 6,047 acres in homestead fares on which final payments were made through the United States land office at Pierre.

What Newspapers Do.

From Atlanta Constitution. There is a mistaken idea current with a certain type of reformer that newspapers carry the functions of creaters and censors of the public taste. They complain of the gen-eral content of the daily papers because they contain news and fea-ture stories that offend the reformer's notion of what the people ought

Newspapers are, in a way, guardians of the public morale within the terms of the law and the canons of common decency. They are published as a rule by men of clean character, habits and taste, as jealous of the good morals of their own families as is any reformer in the land. They print newspapers that pass through the mails without offense to the law which protect gainst indecency and immorality and that are welcomed by the most correct and intelligent people of the country.

The objective of the newspaper is to report to its readers as fully and reliably as possible the news of human current transactions and the events of nature. The pages are kept sensitive to the demand of the reading public. They are photographic plates of the day and the public watches and searches them he heaven and possibly discover a new planet.

The popular pages of the newspaper reflect very accurately the phases of public taste, created otherwise than by the newspapers. The news columns are the study of a section of the public, the society columns are most important to another section, the sports pages to yet another, the market pages to mother and so on through the makeup of the daily issue. But the public at large wants "all the news that is fit to print" by the com-mon standards of public interest and curiosity, so that the run of the readers are the proper censors of the press and not the fervid reformers who are monomaniacs on particular phases of popular life.

FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS The Balkans are aflame again .-There'll be another shake up: The Jugo-Slavs are waging war,-This time, on facial make up.

The war whoop of the prois is this:

"Keep that schoolgirl complexion! But if you powder use, or rouge, Prepare for a correction.

"Before the class. And if again You dim your nose's shine, Then ma and pa must go to jail

Or pay for you a fine." Before such custom we adopt Let's think what it entails

Small Body of Water Near Spalding to Be Made Fishing Resort

Lincoln. Neb - (UP) - Pibel Lake a 35-acre body of water contained within a 65-acre tract in Greeley county, was purchased, Thursday by the game, forestration and parks commission for $6,500.

The place will be made into a public fishing ground and a large hotel building on the edge of the lake probably will be leased to a concessionaire. The commission met again Thursday to consider the possible purchase of other tracts offered to the state as public recreation places. Pibel lake lies about five miles northwest of Spalding. James Gilroy, Greeley county farmer, was its

A group of Missouri river fish-ermen was heard by the commission with the request that something be done about allowing the fishermen to continue the taking fish by seine and net in the river. Members of the commission made no decision.

A delegation from the community club at Memphis promised the commission aid in developing the recreation grounds recently purchased near there. The men said that work will begin soon on graveling the town's street leading to the artificial lake which has been developed.

The commission began distribution of a pamphlet containing information on all state parks, recreation grounds and historical parks, which recently was compiled by Secretary Frank O'Connell.

MUST PAY $6,000 TO DAUGHTERINLAW

Lincoln, Neb .- (UP)-Peter Ebmier, wealthy farmer of Gosper county must pay his former daughterinlaw, Clara Ebmier, the $6,000 that the Gosper county court fixed as her damages by reason of conduct that aliented the affections of his son, her husband, the supreme court ruled Thursday.

The jury made it $0,000, but the court cut the sum one third. The testimony showed that the senior Ebmier had paid her fare from Germany to Nebraka, and that six months after arrival, she was married to his son. She was under 21 and the son was 34. Meanwhile she worked as an unpaid servant, and her contention was that to escape liability of wages, the defendant caused her to marry the son. She told the jury, however, that the father induced the son to abandon her and sought to make her return to Germany.

CHICKENS IN TOWN

DECLARED A NUISANCE Lincoln, Neb .- (UP)-The chickens of Thomas R. Kimbull, Omaha architect, that growed so loud that the neighbors complained, were declared to be a nuisance by the supreme court in a decision which ordered Kimball to abate the nuisance of his game chicken farm on his premises.

His neighbors had brought the suit in the Douglas county district court complaining of the nuisance on Kimball's palatial grounds in Omaha, and claimed that chickens would not be tolerated in the neighborhood. The Dauglas court decreed in favor of the neighbors and Kimball appealed to the supreme court.

LACK OF CO-OPERATION CAUSE OF BAD BUSINESS Lincoln, Neb. - (UP)-Committee reports on the activities of the clubs during the last year were present-ed Tuesday at the eighth annual convention of Cosmopolitan International here.

Edward L. Young, of Decatur, Ill., president of Cosmopolitan International, blamed the lack of co-operation for bringing about the unus-ual economic conditions being eyperienced. "The curse of the country has been the greed of manufacturers in their cry for volume through mass production with no thought of the effect this mass production would have on the distributor," Young said. "Co-operation is the farthest thing from their minds. If forced co-operation had not been brought in through the medium of chain retail stores, this country would have been in a state of chaos.
