WHAT ARE WE KICKING ABOUT?

David City Banner: We hear a lot these days about hard times. Wonder if those who are hollering so loud know what hard times really are? When this editor was a boy living on a farm, the grasshoppers came along and cleaned up every thing growing, even to the onions. The ground where there had been crops was as bare as if it had been plowed. The country was new and we had to drive forty and fifty miles to market, a two and three day trip. When those grasshoppers left, we had nothing to eat and nothing to feed the stock with. Some friends back east sent a box of clothing out here and a barrel of beans. Father got hold of some corn some place and a little wheat that was cut before the grasshoppers came. We ground that up in an old fashioned coffee mill, and with the beans and occasionally a rabbit or prairie chicken, we managed to live. We kept warm by twisting hay into knots and putting it in the stove. In the morning everything would be frozen stiff. We milked the cows that were so thin we could almost see through them, but we lived and were happy, that is, as happy as one could be. We had to stay and stick it out for we could not get away and had no place to go if we did. We were poor and everlastingly hard up. When we took a ride around the country Sunday we saw the great corn crop, the stacks of wheat and oats, the hogs and cattle, and the fine homes, we wondered what excuse the people had for crying hard times. It is true that wheat prices are not high, as high as we wish they were, but corn is a good price, hogs and cattle are not so bad. We all have plenty to eat and always find a way to buy a car to run around in. We have clothes to wear and no man willing to work will go hungry or freeze. Hard times—the present generation don't know what hard times are, and we, in the middle west are the most fortunate people on earth for we have plenty of everything that makes life worth living. We live in Nebraska, what more do you want?

GOOSE LAKE, A FUTURE PLAYGROUND

A sportsman who has explored the greater portion of Holt county, said to us one day: "Holt County is full of undeveloped resources of various kinds. One is the undeveloped, state owned area of land and water known as Goose Lake. Why isn't more interest taken in its development?"

We don't know why unless it is because only spasmodic efforts have been made in the past to get full attention paid to this project. Every time that citizens of Holt and Antelope counties have asked for improvements at Goose Lake they have met with ready response from the Game, Forestation and Parks commission. It looks as if someone on the asking side is not so busy. We wonder if a few suggestions will not start something.

Goose Lake is not more than an hour's drive from O'Neill, Ewing, Inman, Page, Clearwater, Neligh or Elgin. Every year the roads are being improved and the lake recovering from the ravages of stock that for several years tramped out the vegetation that once grew in it and protected the finny tribe until it was one of the best fishing lakes in northeast Nebraska. Nature is doing its level best to reclaim these fishing waters. A reasonable amount of assistance from man will do much toward hurrying up results.

Since the organization of the Game, Forestation and Parks Commission, several important improvements have been made. A large well was sunk on the west shore and a windmill installed in order to boost the flow which at that point just reaches the lake's level. This well kept several square rods of water open during the extreme sub-zero weather last winter. Not a fish perished and last summer hundreds of fine yellow lake bullheads were caught from Goose Lake, the first catches made since the state bought the tract in 1924. There should be more wells and bigger ones. The dense growth of young trees that have sprung up voluntarily should be thinned and those taken out transplanted to places where nature failed to find. The fine ten acre grove should be trimmed and made an inviting park for those who come there to seek rest and pleasure next summer. A large cooking device should be built so that visitors may not be compelled to build small fires here and there among the trees. In short there are scores of things to be done and should be done in order to get value received from the investment.

There should be some one or many from O'Neill to Neligh and over at Elgin, who will organize a drive for a better Goose Lake, and get busy in each town along the Northwestern right away while there is an abundance of funds to use for just such purposes.

FRANCE AND AMERICA REPRESENTED IN FILM

France and America are liberally represented in "The Big Pond," Paramount's comedy-drama with music which comes to the Royal Theatre on Sunday and Monday. The star is Maurice Chevalier, former idol of Paris, but new idol of America. He plays the part of an ambitious Frenchman who makes good in an American chewing gum factory. The leading lady is Claudette Colbert, American stage and screen favorite.

"The Big Pond" is Chevalier's 3rd American picture. It follows his successes in "Innocents of Paris," and "The Love Parade."

C. D. Wood was elected Commander of the local American Legion at a meeting held in the K. C. club rooms on October 30th.

Every boy in the United States between the ages of 12 and 19 inclusive is eligible to enrollment in the Guild and to compete for all awards offered in his class. Each boy who enrolls will be sent a membership button and card, together with a set of scale drawings which he will use in building his model coach. Every enrolled member who submits a complete coach to the Guild headquarters will be awarded a diploma for Craftsmanship. Boys interested in this contest should go to any General Motors dealer to enroll and ask for particulars.
