GLADYS SIMMONS WRITES ABOUT WASHINGTON LIFE

While bridge seems to be the chief indoor sport of most cities, in Washington, it is attendance at afternoon teas. Much is said and written about the complicated system of call-making among official people. It is so extensive that a wife of a new Member of Congress will make in one season, if she is conscientious about it, around six hundred first calls, to say nothing of those which she must return. If some of these calls can be made at afternoon teas, of course, it is more pleasant. Many ladies have them.

Five days of the week are set apart for calling. On Monday, the calls are made on the wives of the Chief Justices; on Tuesday, on the wives of Congressmen; on Wednesday, on the wives of the Vice-President, the Speaker of the House and Cabinet; on Thursday, on the wives of Senators; on Friday, on the wives of diplomats.

Of the diplomats there are so many (fifty-three embassies and legations) that some of their ladies are always at home on Friday. Last Friday we called on several.

All of the countries, even the smaller ones, have beautiful legations or embassies. One center near which are located ten or more is upper Sixteenth Street. This group is due to one remarkable woman, the widow of a Senator from Missouri. She owned considerable property along Sixteenth Street, and conceived the idea of making it an outstanding locality. She built her own home there, called Boundary Castle because at that time it was on the edge of the city. It looks like pictures of old European castles, and is one of the show places of Washington. Then she gradually built, along the street, beautiful buildings after her own plans, and succeeded in renting or selling them to different countries for embassies or legations. One of the most beautiful of these she offered as a gift to the government as a home for the Vice-President. It was refused for two reasons: it was more magnificent than the White House, and would cost too much to maintain. Eventually she sold it, and it is now the Spanish Embassy. Her efforts have made a place of Sixteenth Street a more attractive place.

The embassies we visited on this Friday were similarly arranged; curved driveway to the entrance, entrance hall with cloak rooms, a beautiful stairway to the reception rooms above. There, the ambassador and his wife, in formal garb, received in the drawing room, and tea was served in the dining room. Of course, these varied greatly in decoration and furnishing, but all were elaborate, formal and luxurious. In the Greek Legation the most individual features were the many etchings of classic Greek ruins, and the minister who constantly urged dainty refreshments upon his guests. The French drawing-room and dining room walls were lined with portraits of French military heroes. The Dutch Embassy seemed a veritable museum. Its great halls were lined with beautiful carved chests, inlaid tables, brassware of Oriental design, ancient weapons, fur rugs inches deep. In all, tea, coffee, punch, cakes, sandwiches and bon-bons were served from beautifully appointed tables. At each, crowds of fashionably dressed men and women visited through the rooms.

So again a pleasant afternoon spent, and an act of courtesy extended to guests in our country.

GLADYCE W. SIMMONS.

RIVALS MEET AS TEAM-MATES IN "MAYBE IT'S LOVE"

To two of the star football players on the "All-American" eleven in "Maybe It's Love," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone collegiate comedy at the Royal Theatre, Sunday and Monday, February 8-9, the stadium in which the big game was filmed and recorded brought memories of another classic struggle.

Russell Saunders and Ray Montgomery all-American selections from the University of Southern California and University of Pittsburgh respectively, recalled the eventful New Year's Day when U. S. C. met Pittsburgh in the intersectional battle year ago at the famous Pasadena Rose Bowl.

Joan Bennett, Joe E. Brown and

James Hall play the featured roles in "Maybe It's Love," the screen play of which was written by Jos. Jackson; William Wellman directed.

MRS. ROSALIE AKERT

Mrs. Rosalie Akert, a resident of O'Neill for a number of years, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy Beebout at Johnstown, Nebraska, on Tuesday of last week, at the age of 72 years and 11 months.

Mrs. Akert visited at the home of Mrs. H. W. Heriford and with her many old time O'Neill friends, returning home just before Christmas.

She resided in France and Switzerland during her early life; she came to O'Neill thirty-eight years ago.

Mrs. H. W. Heriford, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Curtis and Mrs. Ed Leach drove to Johnstown last Thursday to attend the funeral services.

LEROY BUTLER

A number of O'Neill citizens drove to Ewing, Nebraska last Tuesday to attend the funeral services for Leroy Butler, who passed away at his home in Ewing, Sunday night at the age of about 84 years.

Mr. Butler and family were in the party of ten families who emigrated from Benton county, Iowa, in 1879 and homesteaded in the vicinity of Ewing.

He was a prominent and one of the influential citizens of the county for many years.

SISTERS GO TO OREGON FOR P. J. HANLEY RITES

(Omaha Bee-News)
P. J. Hanley, formerly of O'Neill, died at Portland, Oregon, Monday of pneumonia. Mr. Hanley was born at O'Neill in 1878. He had been in Portland 25 years, engaged in railroad contracting and employment agencies. He is survived by his wife and five children; two sisters, Martha and Mary, and two brothers, James and John of Omaha. His sisters left on Tuesday for Portland to attend the funeral, which will be held Thursday, at 9 a. m. Mr. Hanley was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hanley, pioneers of O'Neill.

REDBIRD WILL HOLD COYOTE HUNT SUNDAY

A coyote roundup will start from the lines near Redbird next Sunday promptly at two o'clock. If you want in the hunt, be at the store in plenty of time to get a good start.

J. C. PENNEY STORE CHANGES MANAGERS

Peter Tolsen, of Ord, Nebraska is the new manager at the J. C. Penney Comptny store in the city. Mr. Tolsen came Tuesday morning and relieved Mr. Allinger who tendered his resignation as manager last week.

Mr. Tolsen has been with the Penney stores for several years. He became associated with the Penney stores at Grand Island; later he was with them at St. Louis, Missouri and at Ord, Nebraska.

FEBRUARY FIRST LIMIT FOR OLD LICENSE PLATES

February 1st was the last day of grace for those who are driving a car or truck without having a 1931 license plate. Anyone driving a motor vehicle after that date without the new plate is liable to a fine if arrested by either a local or state officer.

Notwithstanding the above facts, the county authorities have extended the time in which everyone driving a motor vehicle in the county must have a license. Anyone may be arrested outside the county for violation of the law after February 1st.

JOHN KERSENBROCK WANTED TO BE STOUT

The following news story appeared in last Sunday's edition of the Omaha World-Herald; the picture of Mr. Kersensbrock also appeared over the article:

"O'Neill, Neb., Jan. 31.—John Kersensbrock, owner of a meat shop here, declares that when he was a boy, he wanted to be the strongest man on earth. 'I came close to it, but lately I wish I were a little weaker,' he said recently.

"It's no joke to jump into bed and have the thing go down with a sickening crash. Too, I've had dozens of chairs squeak for help, twist out of shape and then put me on free exhibition in the center of a crowd. Coming in from duck hunting one time, we found Jim O'Donnell's car stuck in the mud. I pushed it out and I received a stiff lecture for bending in the back of the car."

"I was raised at Crete, Neb., and am the smallest of seven brothers." He is more than six feet tall and has weighed as much as three hundred pounds."

INMAN ITEMS
