'Managed Money" For Prosperity The "Committee for the Nation" which has its headquarters in New York, invited about four hundred senators and congressmen to a swell dinner the other night. The principal speaker was Sir Charles Morgan-Webb, adviser to the Monetary committee of the British parliment. Some American agriculture leaders were on the platform with the Englishman, who told the big crowd of American lawmakers, how, by managing its currency, Great Britain is steadily bringing back prosperity. He answered a lot of questions that all indicated that perhaps if Uncle Sam would follow the British plan and manage his own currency everything would be all right.

Sir Charles said England used to appear at such time and place the Sam to control his own money and owned airport which is admitted to held in Lincoln on Feb. 10 and 11, regulate the value thereof.

why it is that now when by managing its own money England is getting prosperous, she fails to pay Uncle Sam a little bit of the billions she owes us.
