THE NEBRASKA SCENE By the Lowell Service Lincoln, Nebraska—With the election of partisan state officials out of the way, it is now apparent that Nebraska will have one of the stormiest legislative sessions in the history of the state. Old age assistance and state relief will occupy the center of the stage. The next important set of questions will embrace economy in state government, management of the state institutions, and the care of the state's wards. Linked with all these problems will be the ever recurring problem of the disposition of gasoline tax monies. Politicians will be busy. Democratic and republican partisans will endeavor to use the legislative forum as a sounding board to gain advantage in the national campaign in 1940. Special maneuvering is expected in connection with the senatorial campaign, and there will be much plotting to get in the limelight. Organization of the legislature has been planned for about six months. The conservative group, several months ago, claimed control. Amos Thomas is regarded as the favorite candidate for speaker, to succeed Charles J. Warner. The question of continuing the legislative council is expected to come up early in the game. The house caucus, attended by forty-three members, will be a rather spirited affair. Already there is a move to double the number of house employees. The state assistance division has announced the appointment of Frank E. Brown of San Francisco to take the place on the field staff of Mrs. Gertrude Aeln, recently resigned. O'Neill will be the headquarters of Brown, who will receive a salary of $150 per month. The following dates for oral examinations of those applicants who successfully passed written examinations under the new merit system have been announced by Neil C. Vandemoer, state assistance director: Lincoln, Dec. 16-22; Norfolk, Nov. 10-12; Ainsworth, Nov. 14; Chadron, Nov. 15; Charlie Says: You will need extra money now to get ready for winter and pay your bills. If you need $50 or $500 you will find the Central Finance Corp. a friend of yours to help you through the winter by supplying you with extra dollars. I'LL BE SEEING YOU Central Finance Corp. Scottsbluff, Nov. 16; McCook, Nov. 17-18; North Platte, Nov. 19; Grand Island, Dec. 7-10; and Omaha, Dec. 13-15. The examining committee is composed of Dr. Glenn E. Callen, Lincoln; W. H. Andresen, veterans' placement bureau chief; and L. E. Moore, Bartley, Red Willow county commissioner. This year is to be a "measles cycle" for Nebraska. Last year was a "scarlet fever cycle," according to Dr. P. H. Bartholomew, state health director. He says that last year, up to Nov. 1, only 452 cases of measles had been reported in the state. This year, up to the same date, 2,541 cases of measles have been reported. Attorney General Hunter, assisted by two special counselors, C. G. Perry of Bridgeport and William H. Wright of Omaha, former assistant attorney general, has filed a brief in the Supreme Court, urging the upholding of the 1911 irrigation statute which permits the state to limit water diversions for irrigation to three acre feet during any irrigation season. The brief asks that this law be declared binding on irrigators with priorities antedating the date of its passage as well as on more recent users of water, and declares that the regulation is well within the police power of the state and for the general public good. The question has come up in connection with the appeal of the Enterprise Irrigation district from the refusal of the Scotts Bluff County district court to enjoin the state from enforcing the limitations. The claim is made that the regulation takes property without due process of law, a claim which the attorney general's brief denies. That a need basis, rather than a population basis, should be used for the allocation of assistance funds is the contention of the State Assistance Director Neil C. Vandemoer. eH declared last week that the population requirement is responsible for the shortage of funds in some counties which has caused curtailment of grants to old people because of necessary pro rata cuts, equal to the amount available to the county. Two sets of triplets were born in Nebraska during the first half of the last year, and 122 sets of twins, according to statistics in the office of Dr. P. H. Bartholomew, state health director, who reports a marked decrease in number of births. These total 10,772 for the first half of 1938. Dr. Bartholomew predicts that if the state birth rate continues to decline, within fifteen years it will reach the level of the death rate. More boys than girls were born during the period considered, there being a total of 5,521 boys and 5,251 girls. Sponsored by the state aeronautics commission and the Lincoln junior Chamber of Commerce, a ground school in aviation, with free courses in aerodynamics, theory of flight, meteorology, navigation, airplane structure and motors, and civil air regulations, is to be offered to interested persons over 21 years of age, according to announcement by I. V. Packard, commission secretary. Applications may be made at the commission headquarters in the state capitol, or at the junior Chamber of Commerce. Volunteer instructors will teach the classes, which will meet one night a week for 16 weeks. Packard himself has written the text for the lessons, and it is being mimeographed in his office. The chief purpose of the school, says Packard, is "to acquaint the average person with the fundamentals of flying, and to make it possible for Nebraskans to distinguish good flying from bad." "I believe that the discovery of the giant camel near Oshkosh is one of the most important finds in many years," said Dr. E. H. Barbour, director of the University of Nebraska museum, after he had viewed some of the giant bones brought to Lincoln by Henry Reider, museum preparator. "I am convinced that this will give us one of the finest mounts possessed by any institution." Reider brought back assortments of limb bones, vertebrae, jawbones, and a skull measuring 38 inches, which is nine inches longer than any of those found last summer, and those were considered the largest of their kind found to date. The deposit of prehistoric camel bones was found by a museum field party on a new site on the farm of Conrad Wallace. S. R. Swett, W. F. Chaloupka, and T. C. Middle-swart, all of Bridgeport, have helped in the development of the site. Like a good housewife, the board of control is making plans for the Thanksgiving dinners to be served this year at the various state institutions. The board has announced that on November 14 bids will be opened on an estimated $600 worth of oysters, cranberries, celery, apples, and oranges. The meats used at the different institutions will be varied. Of the 780 driver's licenses that have been revoked in Nebraska during the last year under the new automobile driver's license law, 574 were revoked because of drunken driving. Other causes are as follows: Reckless driving, 85; speeding, 23; leaving scene of accident, 8; incompetent to operate motor vehicle, 6; minor municipal violations, 5; and "no operator's license", 4. Non-residents numbered 44, and in these cases, the license was not revoked, but the driver was forbidden to drive on Nebraska highways. According to the military experts Washington is to remain the least fortified capitol in the world. Maybe we ought to keep Congress in continuous session so that in case of an aerial attack it will be possible to raise an impenetrable fog.
