Edward Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young had a bad accident which might have proved serious when driving home from school last Thursday. The car overturned and lay on top of him. His mother and sister saw the accident and rushed to his aid, but could not get him from under the car. Mrs. Young then went home and called some neighbors and Mrs. McNichols and Mrs. Hicky came to their aid. Most of the men in the community were at the sale pavilion. The women pried the car off of him and pulled him out. His brother then came from O'Neill and rushed him to the Doctor. No bones were broken although he was badly shaken up and had laid in the wet for over half an hour. At this time he is recovering in fine shape. The car was badly wrecked.

commissioners appointive instead of elective.

Miller, Hastings, and Neubauer will lead the fight on married women holding public pay roll positions when their husbands are gainfully employed. Hastings is continuing his fight against legal soft snaps.

There is a mass of proposed legislation to simplify automobile and trucking legislation. The biennial bills have appeared to outlaw nepotism. Sorrell is sniping at the gasoline transport act.

The attack of party machines on the primary act is now in full swing. All the major changes suggested are designed to bring back the old convention system. Proposals to amend the primary act flourish in the committee rooms; languish on the floor. Devotees of the primary law pay little attention. They rely on the referendum if the changes are too drastic.

Fully twenty legislators combined their efforts to outline an old age pension law after Sam Klaver introduced his bill for a pension of $30 a month. The sentiment of the legislature is overwhelmingly for adequate old age assistance.

Two bills for the control of motion pictures by the state have been introduced in the 1939 legislature by Senator E. M. Neubauer, of Crete. One bill would prohibit operation of theaters owned or operated in whole or in part by producers or distributors. The other measure would make it illegal for exhibitors to buy more film products than are "reasonably necessary," the state railway commission being the authority to determine the necessity.

Lester L. Dunn, of Lincoln and John Adams, jr., of Omaha are the two legislators who introduced in the legislature last week a bill to credit Nebraska employers subject to the state unemployment compensation law with the impounded excise taxes, amounting to $1,330,835, which they paid on 1936 pay rolls. At that time, Nebraska had no unemployment insurance law. In case proper showing is made within 60 days after the bill becomes a law, the bill provides that the money shall be credited to individual employer's reserve accounts.

Major William J. Atkinson, of Kearney has been appointed by Adjutant General Guy N. Henninger, commandant of the Nebraska national guard, to succeed Henninger himself as lieutenant colonel and executive officer of the One Hundred and Tenth quartermaster regiment.

"The object of the Barristers' club interest is the fact that executors are not qualified to practice law, and the public will not be protected," explained Bernard Gradwohl, president of the Lincoln Barristers' Club, in regard to the protest made by that organization to the legislature against passage of LB 4, which provides that laymen may practice law in probate cases.

Scottsbluff county wants its county number on the state automobile license plates changed from No. 21 to No. 3. It says that it is entitled to that rank because of its rapid growth in population, and that Scottsbluff is the fastest growing town in Nebraska. It is declared that the thing they ask won't cost the state a red penny, and it is suggested that the legislature pass a law providing for the change in county numbers to be made first in 1940, and then changed every ten years, if necessary.

The University of Nebraska is not included in the teachers' retirement bill now before the Nebraska legislature, being sponsored by Lester L. Dunn, of Lincoln and eight other members, and backed by the Nebraska State Teachers' Association. About $80,000 would be the total cost to the state, according to the sponsors of the bill. Provision is made that retirement be compulsory at 65; and at 25, membership would be compulsory for all public school teachers, including normal schools. Teachers would pay 5 per cent of their salaries into a retirement fund, and this would be matched by contributions from the state. Up to $10,000 would be appropriated during the present biennium.

A second hearing January 31 will be held before the legislature takes action on the bill calling for repeal of the 1937 truck regulatory act. Many bitter criticisms of the act have been made, and the authors of the bill, Swan Carlson, Funk, and Jay Hastings, Oselola, declare that the law has worked hardship on the farmers and forced hundreds of truckers out of business. Dan Garber, of Red Cloud insisted that the truck law "told 5,000 independent truckers in the state to go out of business." Paul Halpine, secretary of the Nebraska Commercial Truckers' Association, is leading the fight against repeal, and he is backed by a number of like organizations. All admit, however, that amendments are needed.

Dr. J. J. Hompes, of Lincoln was elected president of the executive council of the Nebraska Medical Association at its meeting in Lincoln last week to succeed Dr. Dexter D. King, of York, and Dr. A. P. Overgaard, of Omaha was re-elected secretary. The councilors voted to cooperate with the rural rehabilitation program of the farm security administration and approved the plan to provide medical service at low cost, the money to be obtained from government loans.

The establishment of a legislative comptroller and an investment counsellor for the board of educational lands and funds is recommended in the biennial report of former State Auditor William H. Price. In the 1937 legislative session a bill providing for a comptroller was defeated. Price insists that a counsellor is especially needed to handle the investment of approximately 14 million dollars in permanent school funds, and he suggests that some provision should be made by the legislature for reimbursing the fund with investment losses by the board amounting to about $43,824. Praise was given in the report to the uniform accounting law and the 1937 county budgeting law.

There seems to be a possibility that the pari mutuels at the state fair will be continued for the next two years. Discussion in the legislative appropriations committee brought forth no suggestions as to other ways of raising the money needed to carry on the fair. Perry Reed, secretary of the state fair board, when questioned by Chairman Brady of the appropriations committee, admitted that "with conditions as they are today, the pari mutuel is the only thing that saved the fair."

Informal discussions in the legislative public works committee, according to Chairman R. M. Howard, of Flats, seem to show a leaning toward the following division of the five-cent state gasoline tax: One cent for assistance; 1 1/2 cents to counties for roads; and 2 1/2 cents to the state highway department, this to include the 1/4 cent for matching federal feeder road funds. This differs from the present division, in which but 1/2 goes to assistance; 3 cents to the highway department, which includes the 1/4 cent for matching; and 1 1/2 cents to counties for roads. Governor Cochran has suggested 1/2 cent for assistance; 2 and 1/4 cents to the state highway department; 1/4 cent to match federal feeder road funds; and 1 1/4 cent to counties for roads.

A police merit system is proposed by a group of legislators headed by Joseph Reavis, of Falls City in a bill which provides for the choosing of police officers, to be compulsory in cities of 5,000 or more and optional in smaller communities. Provision is made for the creation of local civil service commissions of three members and no appeal could be taken from their decisions. Reavis said that the purpose of the bill is "to take the police department out of politics. So long as a man is a good officer, he would not be under the threat of political shakeup with each change of administration."
