The Local Newspaper

A recent bulletin of the American Newspaper Publishers Association carries word of the newspaper advertising views of Safeway Stores, Inc., a large Western food chain. These views could be profitably emulated by industry and commerce in general.

In brief, the Safeway company believes that newspapers of regular publication, large and small, perform an important public service, and that advertising revenue is essential to keeping the price charged the subscriber, low enough to bring the paper within financial reach of every possible family.

The company believes that when the so-called free circulation newspaper attempts to lure advertisers, using a lower rate as bait, "it is the beginning of a vicious circle—first, depleting the established publication; next, through bankruptcy, depriving the community of such news service;—encouraging the free distribution paper into becoming a paid circulation and news distributing publication, followed by additional free circulation papers and thus completing the cycle."

Finally, the Safeway company instructs its division managers to avoid using handbills and free distribution papers except when absolutely necessary, and then use the job shops of local regular newspapers where possible.

Here is a logical and progressive policy. The local newspaper fills a vital place in the American scene. It is more than a business—it is a record of the times in which we live. Through news and comment it brings to its readers knowledge of what is going on at home—as well as what is going on in the far flung capitol of the world. Measured by the rigid yardstick of dollars-and-cents alone, the newspaper advertiser gets his full money's worth—and at the same time makes possible the existence of an irreplaceable institution.

Nebraska Accident Survey

The Nebraska accident survey, sponsored and compiled by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Nebraska Press Association and Nebraska Safety Council. Accidents rose above the three hundred mark as the total for the week ending February 11, 1939, climbed to three hundred forty-one over the two hundred and ninety-four mark for the period ending February 4, 1939. The list of injuries and deaths showed a corresponding increase going from two hundred nine to two hundred forty-six. Deaths stepped up to fourteen from eleven. The children's situation is no better as three children were reported killed and thirty-two injured.

Motor Vehicle Situation Becomes More Serious

Although motor vehicle accidents and the casualty list remained close to the previous mark the situation was much more serious. The total came to ninety-three as compared to ninety-one last week and the list of injuries and deaths dropped to eighty-four from eighty-five. Two Omaha people died from injuries sustained when a car ran into a group of persons boarding a street-car. A pedestrian in Crete also died of injuries caused when she was struck by a car. Two persons were killed in collisions, one occurring in Aurora and the other on the highway south of Ashland. A truck in which fifteen CCC members were riding turned over in a snow bank near Mitchell and two died as the result. A blowout in a front tire caused a wreck on the highway north of Schuyler in which another met death. A Madison girl died of injuries sustained many years ago when an accident left her partly paralyzed. A Kimball man was disabled when his automobile crashed into a telephone pole and a Scottsbluff man also sustained a disability when his car crashed through a school warning sign. A woman suffered a disability in a collision south of Orchard. Still another disability was sustained in the collision which killed a man in Aurora.

Last week in Omaha a group of five persons were boarding a street-car when an automobile plowed into the group. Two of them managed to reach the curbing in safety but a woman and a man sustained fatal injuries and an eighteen-months-old child was painfully hurt. The driver of the car is being held on reckless driving charges and the ensuing trial will bring out the causes for his action. Whether or not he can justify himself does not alter the fact that two lives were lost, a family broken up, and a small child badly hurt in an accident that could have been avoided. Our cities have strict laws to protect persons who board street cars and if drivers observe these laws and at the same time practice caution as the winter conditions certainly warrant, an accident such as this should never happen. Facts may show that this car had faulty equipment making it difficult for the driver to control it. If such is the case, Legislative Bill Number 3 which seeks to do away with compulsory inspection will take away a safeguard from many more accidents like this which will occur in the future.

Out of thirty-nine collisions there were thirty-three injuries while fifteen were hurt when drivers lost control of their cars. Six pedestrians were struck down by automobiles and injured, four were hurt when cars skidded, three more sustained injuries in wrecks caused by tire blowouts, and a corresponding number were hurt when cars hit obstructions. Four were badly hurt while starting their cars, two others sustained foot injuries because of automobiles, and a man caught his hand in a fan belt and was severely hurt.

One hit and run driver figured in an accident.
 There are few folks in O'Neill who aren't aware that the "new spring and summer catalogs of mail order houses have appeared in most post offices by this writing. They are very different looking magazines from the old numbers of years ago, when every farm and small town home had it's standby, the catalog. Today's edition is abreast of the times. It appears as a publication of up-to-the-minute fashions and fancies, furbelows and snappy gadgets for home and farm. The covers display a nifty outfit suitable for a lady and calls for further inspection into succeeding pages. There are few folks who do not see these catalogs and many of them order from them, articles that appeal to the eye and pocket-book. We are not suggesting that our readers refrain from patronizing these mail order houses, but we are suggesting that you give your local merchants a chance to prove that they can't do as well by you. These home stores need your business and after all, they help to keep up your schools, your roads and to keep your town on the map. Buy as you will, and where you will, but consider your home town merchant first.
