Sulphur Beds in Louisiana
 One of the most essential chemicals in industry is sulphur, and in grandfather's day it came almost entirely from Sicily. The Sicilians knew they had a good thing, and made the most of it. And all that time, relates a writer in the Philadelphia Record, there were immense beds of sulphur in Louisiana. But there was a catch. The beds were beneath 500 feet of quicksand and rock. Ordinary mining methods were useless. Then along came a man named Herman Frasch, and he developed a new process, simple, but something that had never occurred to anyone before. Three concentric pipes were sunk, one to melt the sulphur, another blowing compressed air to force the melted stuff out, and a third to carry it to the surface, where it was pumped into bins to cool and harden.
Iron and Bronze Razors
 The Romans and Pompeians used iron for razors. Other ancients used bronze. It was not until the art of tempering steel was discovered that shaving took a long step forward in comfort. Ancient Greece produced razors of good quality. There were barbers in Greece 400 B. C. and Rome's first barber came from Sicily about 300 B. C. The first Roman to shave every day was Scipio. The argument about to shave versus not to shave is also ancient, and it has come down to this day. Defenders of the beard said it was a heat insulator, and an air strainer for pathogenic organisms. The other side said beards were germ traps.

History of 'Silent Night' Song
 The music of "Silent Night" was composed by Franz Gruber, an Austrian organist, and the words by Josef Mohr, an Austrian clergyman. It was sung for the first time in 1818 in the parish church of St. Nicholas at Oberdorf. Josef Mohr was ordained a priest in 1814. Four years later he went to Oberdorf and there met Franz Gruber, who acted as organist. Desiring some new music for Christmas service, the two collaborated and on Christmas eve, 1818, the song was written.

BREWERS WILL COOPERATE WITH OFFICIALS
 Charles E. Sandall, State Director of the Nebraska Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee, today pledged his organization's cooperation with Omaha police, county officials and state liquor commission agents in the investigation of alleged sales to minors by tavern operators in Omaha and surrounding vicinity.
 At a conference with Assistant Police Chief Robert Munch, of Omaha, Sandall reiterated his committee's determination to take drastic steps against any beer retailer found guilty of sales to minors or other law violators.
 "I am greatly concerned by the charges that some Omaha tavern proprietors are guilty of sales to minors," Sandall said. "Since the organization of our committee last June, we have repeatedly stressed the fact that we will not tolerate law violations by beer retailers. I shall order the beer supply discontinued to any retailer who sells beer to minors and shall ask the state liquor commission to revoke his license."
 Sandall added that Omaha members of the Committee have prepared a list of taverns whose licenses should not be renewed and will make recommendations to that effect when the city council considers applications for license renewals in April.
 C. J. Gatz and Matt Beha drove to Omaha last Sunday where they visited friends. Mr. Gatz is expected to return home Friday, bringing with him his wife and infant daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth.
