

"It isn't so much what a candidate stands for in this country," sighs an ardent Townsendite, "but what we voters fall for."

Just because your O'Neill falls in love at first sight doesn't mean he is guaranteed against falling out.

"DAILY NEWSANCE" MAKES INITIAL BOW HERE AS CUBS TAKE ON DAILY HEADACHE

O'Neill now has a daily paper, perhaps the only town of its size in the state which can afford such a paper. This paper is composed of four pages and measures seven by five and a half inches. The first edition of the paper was published on July 5th, and its editors, George Hammond and Warren Burgess predict a successful future. The paper is typewritten, and the subscription rates are five cents a week, one cent per copy. The paper which carries the name "Daily Newsance" is however, to be published only during the summer months.

REDUCTION IN WATER RATES BRINGS RETURNS IN MORE BEAUTIFUL LAWN

O'Neill citizens seem to have become lawn conscious the past few years, and one is really amazed when driving through the city to see the beautiful lawns and shrubbery, where only a few years ago, there was nothing but dust and weeds. The City Fathers have done much to promote the general interest in beautifying the city, by reducing the water rates, which previously have been so high that the average wage earner could not afford to use water on his lawn.

Have You a Favorite Cake Recipe?—Send It In It May Win Cash Prize

WHEN you decide to give your family a real treat and you bake one of those luscious, tempting chocolate cakes, or it may be a delectable marble cake or a delicious devil's food cake, made from your favorite recipe, and the folk all reach for a second, or perhaps a third, helping—now isn't that gratifying! How amply rewarded you feel by the remarks of appreciation going around the festive board such as "Oh, boy, what a cake!" from little Willie, said with a mouthful, to "I must have another piece if I burst!" from Dad.

But here!—you may have still further reward coming to you. The very recipe that the family makes so much over may be the one to take the first prize of $25, or one of the five second prizes of $10, or one of the ten third prizes of $5 in the Cake Recipe contest. And why not?

C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, who for 30 years has exerted a wide influence on the food habits of this nation through his lectures and books, and who at present conducts the food department in this newspaper known as "What to Eat and Why," is conducting a cake recipe contest with cash prizes to be given to persons submitting the best recipes. Your recipe will be judged on the basis of its nutritional and wholesome value. It need not be a marvelous creation for the eye to behold. The judges of this contest may agree with your family that your favorite recipe IS THE BEST! For further particulars see the announcement elsewhere in this issue of this newspaper. There is nothing to buy. No letter to write. Just send in your favorite cake recipe. It may win a prize.

ASLEEP AT THE WHEEL; SO WAS CASEY AT THE BAT BUT HE DIDN'T MAKE DITCH

Last Sunday afternoon, while on his way to Orchard to visit his parents, Clifford Bridges went to sleep while driving his car, and went into the ditch close to O'Donnell's Lake. The car rolled completely over, then righted itself, but was not badly damaged, and Clifford himself was not even scratched, but he has decided to take his Sunday afternoon nap on the davenport after this.

NO SERIOUS ACCIDENTS HERE DURING FOURTH

The Fourth of July was celebrated by the various citizens of O'Neill in many ways, but the best thing to be said, is that there were no serious accidents, a few minor burns being the only casualties reported. A great many cars were present at the Country Club to watch the fireworks, which were as usual very spectacular and quite noisy.

AMATEUR AND PUTTER VERSUS PRO AND DRIVER? ? ?

A bit of boasting by a prominent citizen at the Country Club celebration on July 4th, led to a driving contest between this gentleman, an experienced golfer, and another prominent gentleman, who had never played a full game of golf in his life.

The terms of the contest were that the experienced golfer was to have one shot with his driver, and the amateur was to have two with his putter, and in those two shots outdrive the golfer. Everything was ready, the golfer stepped to the tee, took a healthy swing, dubbed his shot, whereon, the amateur grasped his putter, strode to the tee, and in one lustrous swing outdrove his opponent a good fifty yards.

THUNDERSTORM ON MONDAY RIVALS PYROTECHNICS OF 4th

On Monday, about noon, O'Neill was treated to a pyrotechnic exhibition of nature, which rivaled any seen on the Fourth of July, in a crashing, banging thunderstorm, which drove many to their basements. Fortunately, the storm was of short duration, and as far as we know, did no damage, but brought a welcome 51 hundredths inches of rain.

Newcomers to Nebraska, and especially to this section of the state always complain of the, to them, incessant wind, that never seems to stop blowing, but to the native, the wind is one of the most soothing of lullabies and puts him to sleep. To the native Nebraskan, the beautiful sunsets, unrivaled anywhere, and the continuous winds are as much a part of the state as the fields of wild prairie hay, and the sand hills.

England in 1770 Banned Cosmetics as Alter Lure

Ever since Ulysses and his merry men managed to dodge, entanglements with the notorious sirens the arts of beauty have been the subject of masculine fear. Such fear reached an all-time high in Great Britain in 1770 when his majesty's august parliament attempted to deal with it—and pretty brutally, too, asserts a writer in the Philadelphia Record.

Amazing as it may seem, the following act was actually passed in England:

"That all women of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, shall from and after such act, impose upon, seduce and betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects by the scents, paints, cosmetic washes, artificial teeth, hair, Spanish wool, iron hoops, high heeled shoes, bolstered hips, shall incur the penalty of the law in force against witchcraft and like misdemeanors and that the marriage, upon conviction, shall stand null and void."

A similar act was passed, about the same time, by the assembly of the province of Pennsylvania.

Probably the very absurdity of the act prevented its application, for there is no record of prosecutions under it. Perhaps, like many another ancient and forgotten law, it's still on the statute books.

Matchmaking in Ireland After-Harvest Business

In rural Ireland the matchmaker begins to get busy when the harvest has been gathered, and there is a lull in life on the farm.

It is his pleasing duty to bring eligible parties together or, to be more precise, to bring the parents of the "young" couple together for a preliminary discussion. In the early stages of the matchmaking the "boy" (often a bright spark of forty) and the "girl" occupy a comparatively unimportant position in the proceedings. This is just as well, for if the negotiations break down "sure there's no harm done," according to a correspondent in London Answers Magazine.

But if the principals agree that it is a good match, from a social and financial point of view, the happy pair are informed that the blessings of both families will be upon their union, and that since every precaution has been taken to make sure that they are well provided for, there is no reason why they should not be married at once!

Tidal Wave Defined

The United States weather bureau says: "The term 'tidal wave' is now generally applied to any unusually great and abnormal rise of the sea, particularly in coastal and harbor waters, regardless of the cause, and irrespective of whether or not it occurred in conjunction with, and thus accentuated, the astronomical high tide. Common special cases are the great sea waves that sometimes follow low earthquakes and are technically known as seismic sea waves, and the great rises which are often produced by violent storms at sea or exceptionally strong winds along a coast, which are technically known as storm waves. While it may be somewhat illogical to apply the term tidal wave to these latter phenomena, they nevertheless have long been so called, and the above popular definition has come to be a well established and accepted meaning of the term even in scientific literature. It was officially adopted by an international scientific commission created in 1927 by the International Geodetic and Geophysical union, and known as the committee for the study of tidal waves."

Water Witching

Water witching is hunting for underground veins of water with a forked stick. City people may scoff at this method of locating well sites, but plenty of country dwellers will point out flowing wells which they say were dug where the forked stick dipped. The stick is usually from a hickory or other nut-bearing tree or a peach tree, and is held upright by the forked ends; the other end is supposed to dip until it points toward the ground at a spot directly above a vein of water. However, such behavior, according to those versed in this lore, is inspired not by all, only by certain persons, who are known as water witches.

Woman Tried for Witchcraft

The first woman to be tried in connection with the Salem, Mass., witchcraft cases was Sarah Good, who with an Indian or Negro servant, Tituba, and Sarah Osborne, was accused of witchcraft by a group of young girls who claimed they were tormented and injured. Sarah Good was executed July 19, 1692 and Sarah Osborne at a later date. Tituba, after being imprisoned for some time, was released as being under the domination of the other women.

Extra Letter in Town's Name

Anadarko, a southwestern Oklahoma town, got its name when a chief clerk at an Indian agency misspelled a word. The name selected for the town was "Nadarko," to memorialize the almost extinct tribe of Nadarko Indians. In the records of the Indian agency there the word was written as "Anadarko," and the town thus was christened.
