The Department of Justice is doing a lot of investigation. Nobody who is violating any kind of federal law is going to be missed. Investigations of rackets of all kinds—all the way from the fishing business to corrupt politics in Louisiana and elsewhere, are on the program for this new year. But those who have listened for days to representatives of the various branches of our Justice Department, have heard a lot of sharp darts aimed at local law enforcement officials. While investigating for federal law violations, the federal men claim they have found many cases where the local officials have 'closed their eyes' and permitted violations of local laws. The Federal Government feels that the state and local authorities will have to clean up their own mess and they feel local opinion is the biggest weapon to force this to an issue. Otherwise, as some of these federal men say, the state and local authorities will have to "stew in their own juice."

The second appropriation bill—the one making money available for the next fiscal year, went through the House without a roll call. The committee cut about 94 million dollars from the bill as recommended by the Bureau of the Budget but the bill goes to the Senate carrying a total of about one billion, one hundred and fifty million dollars. It carries money for nearly everything including the President's salary, and fifteen million dollars for farm feeder roads. The bill also carries one hundred million dollars for the federal-aid highway system. When the Senate gets the bill, a fight will develop to increase the appropriations—especially for the merchant marine which the house cut drastically. Present indications are that the house will continue cutting down to the budget estimates and the increases may come—as usual, in the Senate.

Gladys J. Shamp, who is the Administrator of the National Youth Administration, for Nebraska, is in Washington making reports to her chiefs here.

During the past six months of the fiscal year, which ended December 1, 1939, more than 1014 high school students and 147 college students of the Third Congressional District have been assisted by this administration. 147 high schools and two colleges are participating in the student work program and during these six months, over seventeen thousand dollars in federal funds have been expended providing part-time jobs for these students who could not remain in school without this financial assistance. The Nebraska quota for the student work program has been filled, and the Third District office is informed that there is a real need for financial assistance for needy students in many schools.

The District Office is also informed that in addition to assisting needy students while in school, the administration has employed in our district over eight hundred needy young people who are out of school and unemployed. About forty-two thousand dollars of federal funds have been expended in our district in providing work for these youths out of school.

There will be a new farm program offered soon. Leaders on farm legislation in the house include Marvin Jones, Texas, Chairman of the committee; Clarence Cannon, Missouri, chairman of the sub-committee on appropriations; Bill Lemke, North Dakota, author of the farm refinancing bill; Sam Massingale, Oklahoma, author of the cost of production bill—now the "parity bill." About fifty prairie states members gathered together the other day and learned of a bitter difference of opinion on what is going to be done about new farm legislation. The bitter feud on the subject of who paid the hog processing taxes; the principle of under-production; farm refinancing; new processing tax bills and many other subjects were discussed. These members were told that they need harmony and co-ordination among farm leaders. They charge that the great farm organizations never agree on any farm legislation and as a result there is no real farm stabilization legislation today.

About 3,000 boys and girls are in town attending the National Youth conference. They have been marching and singing and carrying banners and listening to speeches by prominent men and women. The young people want a bill passed by congress appropriating half a billion dollars to help young people get jobs. Much sympathy is shown toward the young people but much displeasure is also exhibited at the young communists who are here from New York attending the same meeting. Hundreds of thousands of young men and women who have fine educations can't make a living. The country is short of some skilled mechanics. The conference wants our government to do something about it.

Art Hachten, who was born at Grand Island, Nebraska, retired as president of the National Press Club, and was succeeded by Richard Wilson of Des Moines, Iowa. Practically every newspaper service in the country is represented here and every newspaper man was present to give both the Nebraskan and the Iowan a great ovation.

Written by one of the biology students after a study of digestion in plants and animals.

When a person eats a ham sandwich and drinks a glass of milk, he is making work for his digestive system because this food is made up of fats, proteins and sugar. The ham sandwich is chewed and some starch digested in the mouth. The milk, ham and bread all pass through the throat and esophagus where the starch continues to be changed to sugar. Next the food enters the stomach where it is liquefied and starch digestion ceases. Tissues of the food are softened, bacteria is killed, and protein is made ready for further digestion and made so that they are soluble in water. The milk is curdled and the fats are attacked to a slight extent. The food, now a liquid, passes into the small intestines where the food is completely digested and mostly absorbed into the circulatory system. Then what is left passes into the large intestines as a waste product, where it is temporarily stored. Here water is absorbed and what digested food remains is also absorbed. Finally, the waste products are eliminated from the body. They consist of some food which cannot be digested, some undigested food, bacteria and wasted products within the body. ***

APPROVING A 'NEW CONCEPT'

These statements by the Liquor Control Commission and the Press should interest Nebraskans: W. W. CARMICHAEL, Chairman Nebraska Liquor Control Commission "In reviewing the last year's work and taking note of the forces working for the better observance of the law governing the distribution and consumption of liquor, we would be negligent, indeed, if we failed to express to you our appreciation of the work your organization has done. "Your very great interest, sound judgment and untiring effort in attempting to raise the level of existing operations of licensees is well known to this Commission."

THE PRESS... North Platte Bulletin "As an example of an industry which by its nature is likely to be subjected to abuse from within or from without, Nebraska's beer industry still sets the pace for the country... also the industry has now become a vital factor in the state's economy. It pays heavy taxes, it polices its own constituents and it tries its best to do a job respectably and well."

Omaha World-Herald "Much of the work of this organization is of a kind that the public does not see. It consists of friendly hints and suggestions to beer retailers which usually meet with ready compliance. In stubborn cases where it appears that the strong arm of the law only will suffice, the Commission lends its assistance to secure convictions and suspension or revocation of licenses. "This is indeed a 'new concept' of responsibility by a part of least of the liquor industry. If consistently followed it should produce still better results in the future."

The Norfolk Daily News "The Commission has lately been active in the Omaha drive to rid the city of the 'dime-drink' girl nuisance and has been working behind the scenes to advise and warn beer retailers as to their practices in conforming with the law. Mr. Sandall, in his address to the lawyers at Omaha, said he believed that the Commission was performing the purpose for which it was established and that a better observance of the law by beer licensees will result."

We are grateful for expressions like these. We are going forward in 1940 with renewed determination in behalf of our industry self-regulation program based on this "new concept" of responsibility. Nebraska Brewers & Beer Distributors Committee CHARLES E. SANDALL 710 First National Bank Bldg. Lincoln
