Nebraska Takes Pride in Her Labor Record

Nebraska takes its hat off to the accomplishments of its unionized labor groups—and extends congratulations on Labor's eventful State Convention held this week.

And, just as Labor ever works to improve the status of its members . . . and to regulate its organization in the public interest . . . just so does the brewing industry, through the Nebraska Division, strive to improve conditions in the industry and to regulate the operation of tavern keepers in the public interest.

From year to year Nebraska tavern owners strive more earnestly and with greater success to keep their operations clean, orderly and law abiding. Sales to minors and persons approaching intoxication are guarded against, and noise and boisterous conduct reduced to a minimum.

The Nebraska Division's program of Self-Regulation, now in the 11th year, is largely responsible for the improved conditions.
