TEST YOUR I. Q.

QUESTIONS

1. What president of the U. S. lived the longest?
2. Is the electric eel a true eel?
3. Is it a historical fact that Nero played the fiddle?
4. Where did the name cantaloupe come from?
5. Do fish live in the Dead Sea?

ANSWERS

1. John Adams, who lived to be 90.
2. No. Technically, the famed electric eel is a Latin American relative of the catfish.
3. It is certain that Nero did not play a violin as we know it, since the violin was not developed for centuries after his time.
4. Cantaloupes are so named because they were first grown in Cantaloupe, Italy.
5. Because of its extreme salinity. Fish cannot live in the Dead Sea.
