

ON 90TH BIRTHDAY . . . P. J. ("Pat") McManus, pioneer O'Neill merchant, last Thursday, quietly observed his 90th birthday anniversary. He took advantage of the Indian Summer weather to perform his annual job of readying his home for Winter-by the washing of windows. He took out time, however, to receive scores of congratulations from his townsmen. Born in Wisconsin on October 28, 1858, he came to O'Neill in 1885 with his brother, the late John P. McManus, sr. He entered the grocery and general mercantile business in 1891 and was active in business here until about five years ago, when he retired. Never married, Mr. Mc-Manus was honored at a dinner_Sunday by near relatives. Mr. McManus enjoys "good health" and makes daily visits to the business district.-The Frontier Photo by John H. Mc-

NOWADAYS Begins November 18

The Frontier's new, full-color magazine section, known as NOWADAYS, will make its initial appearance as a supplement to this newspaper on Thursday, November 18.

In addition to The Frontier's ever-growing number of features and volume of news coverage in the O'Neill region, NOWADAYS will bring to you the best in articles, photographs and features by leading authorities in each field.

The Frontier is one of 305 newspapers in the United States that has helped develop the magazine which will represent a mass circulation media for national advertisers. All 305 newspapers each week will include the magazine section with their newspaper. Total circulation for the first issue will be threequarters of a million.

To provide newsprint to meet the requirement, NOWADAYS has purchased a paper mill. The mill will not be in full production until after the first of the year, when the section will be en-

Paul McGinnis presents his exclusive NOWADAYS story of progress in the thousands of Pacific islands which the U. S. acquired during the late war. He has traveled thousands of miles to visit remote Pacific outposts, gathering exclusive reports.

Alan McClain writes, "When You Hit the Jackpot"-the story of radio giveaways that have been making such serious inroads on istening audiences. Mr. McClain decides to call on some of the winners and write about the experiences of the "new rich." Ira Glick discusses the "World's First Small City." In it he presents the evolution of man's home from 12,000 B. C. Kevin McCarthy will give NOWADAYS readers a behind-thescenes-story of the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. "It takes 10 thousand miles of track and a team behind the team to make the Irish function with their fabled precision and power," he writes.

The Frontier's new magazine section will, in effect, give this newspaper's readers a magazine and a newspaper combined for the price of only the newspaper. No rate increase is contemplated at this time.

In addition to timely, interesting articles, the first issue of NOWADAYS will offer a wealth of recipe suggestions for the current Thanksgiving holidays as well as a preview of the rapidly approaching Christmas season.

The addition of NOWADAYS is the result of long and careful planning and preparation, and is evidence of The Frontier's continuing aim to provide the O'Neill region with a bigger and better

Harvest in Page Vicinity Averaging 40- to 65-Bushels Per Acre

Cornpicking in Holt county is well underway and many farmers, particularly in the Page area, are harvesting rec-ord yields.

Mr. Dawes has studied three test plots measuring 10 or more acres in size, and found yields from 50 to 65 bushels per acre. He declared that in each instance the "unusually high yields for Holt county were attributed to proper cropping practices, use of barnyard manure and legumes"
