Boys! Please, Please Don't Say: 'Has Anyone Asked You for This Dance Yet?'

By MARY DEVINE BRENNAN

Hi-ho! The biggest social affairs of the Winter season are the school dances. There will probably be several before Thanksgiving, so maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea for everyone to brush up a bit on dance do's and don't's.

For instance, when High School Hero calls High School Heroine for a date he should remember to set the hour as well as the day. If it happens that the beau boy forgets to ask, "Will it be all right if I pick you up at eight-thirty?" then the glamour gal had better ask what time she should expect him.

Uncertainty will only lead to confusion and long minutes of waiting for somebody.

If he says "eight-thirty," the smart thing is to be ready at eight-thirty. It was stylish for grandmother to keep the boy friend waiting in the parlor, but the Modern Mister doesn't enjoy poring over the old family album, so hurry if you must, but do be ready on time.

And, boys, remember that doorbells work better than car horns for summoning your dream girl for the evening.

When you arrive at the dance, be sure to greet the chaperones before you begin "trip the light fantastic." You don't have to say much more than "Good evening," but let them know that you're there.

As for the dance itself, the first dance, the dance before and after refreshments are served, and the last dance belong to you and your date. It may be romantic to dance together all evening, but it isn't good taste to mingle with the rest of the crowd in the meantime.

Boys, when you ask for a dance, please, please, don't say, "Has anyone asked you for this dance?" It sounds too much like "Hasn't anyone condescended to ask poor, unpopular you for a dance yet?"

And, girls, whether you accept or not, smile and say "Thank you." If you value your popularity rating you won't refuse one boy and the next minute accept another. There will be hurt feelings and a lost-friendship is a pretty high price to pay for just one dance.

If you find that conversation interferes with your footwork, explain the situation to your partner. He will understand. (He probably has the same trouble himself.) After all, even Astaire doesn't discuss the high price of chocolate malts while going through his routine.

When the music stops, Romeo, don't leave your Juliet stranded in the middle of the dancefloor. Take her back to her seat—uh huh—all the way back to the seat. Don't forget to thank her for the dance before you leave for the next one.

Sooner or later comes the time for "Home Sweet Home" and "Good-Night Ladies"—the time to find the chaperones and any of the faculty who happen to be present and tell them that you had "a wonderful evening." Because you did, didn't you?

Speaking of dances—there will be one at the Legion club tomorrow night. Or could you have forgotten? Anyway, be sure to go and—have fun! See you next Thursday.

Keeping Abreast with the Times . . .

★ O'NEILL IS A GROWING city and, to keep abreast with the times, the O'Neill National Bank many months ago inaugurated in O'Neill the statement system of banking. This improvement over the "pass book" system has proven itself many times. It has been accepted appreciatively by many of our customers. The statement system makes easier your bookkeeping as well as ours.

★ SIMILARLY, two years ago the O'Neill National Bank installed a RECORDAK — a modern method of photographing certain records for permanent reference on microfilm. Courts accept microfilm records as actual evidence, and we maintain a file of the film in our vaults.

★ WE, of the O'Neill National Bank, are seeking constantly to improve our banking services. If we are not already serving you, we will welcome the opportunity to do so.

Congratulations
