

TRAVELER DIES IN SNOWBOUND AUTO

Haun, George Jesser, Francis Haun, Douglas Alford, Edward Alford and Frank Heiser.

The late Mr. Haun was born at Lynch on November 16, 1900, a son of William and Neva Haun. On October 11, 1923 he married Ethel Alford at Spencer. They became the parents of two daughters.

Mr. Haun lived in the Lynch community for many years, purchasing a home in Spencer about three years ago. At Spencer he and his brother, Floyd, were engaged in the implement and trucking business. Recently the firm erected a new building.

Survivors include: Widow; daughters—Mrs. Fern Nyquist of Spencer, and Phyllis, also of Spencer; father—William E. Haun, of Weaubleau, Mo.; brothers—Ray, of Eagle Butte, S. D.; and Floyd, of Spencer; sisters—Mrs. Zedla Roselius, of Edgemont, S. D., and Mrs. Cora Jesser, of Filer, Ida.

Rodman and Funk were nearly overcome with gas and might have perished. Both suffered from exposure and lack of food.

Blizzard Highlights

REDBIRD—The wet, heavy snow broke down many large tree limbs, especially on cedar and pine trees. This tiny northeast Holt county community was isolated in every sense of the word. Everything was at a standstill, mail service was stopped, and the village was lifeless for 2½ days.

ATKINSON — Lorne Hickok, a dairyman here, was returning home late Thursday when he encountered a lone heifer along the path. The heifer lunged toward Hickok, he ducked, the heifer hurdled over. Hickok thinks the snow blinded the animal and enabled him to outwit her.

EWING — On Friday night, Duane Jensen and Elmer Bergstrom rode horses bareback through drifts and blinding snow for three miles to adjust an electric switch which provided Ewing with its first power in 24 hours. The round-trip required three hours.

ATKINSON—Mrs. Joe Judge narrowly escaped drowning when she and her sons, James and Danny Roy, attempted to rescue three yearling calves that had broken through the ice on the pond where they were in the habit of watering. Mrs. Judge slipped into the edge of the pond. Because of the ice and slush, she had a difficult time gaining a foothold to get out. The children threw her a rope and with their aid she managed to pull herself to safety. They saved one of the calves, pulled another to the bank but it was dead, and another perished.

Woody Grim, Ace Wicks and Benny Oetter, O'Neill men had set out early Thursday on a hunting excursion. They were 18 miles south and 12 miles west of Atkinson when the storm struck. They found refuge at the Fred Boettcher ranch home and Saturday walked 28 miles to Atkinson.

Clyde Streeter, O'Neill farmer, returned Wednesday, November 17, from the Veterans hospital at Lincoln. Suffering a gall stone ailment, he became dangerously ill. By early Sunday doctors said it was "imperative" that he reach a hospital. Early Sunday from the pulpit at St. Patrick's Catholic church an SOS was sounded for volunteers to help clear the snow-clogged road to the Streeter place, six miles north of O'Neill. Over a hundred men manned shovels and by afternoon the patient was in O'Neill hospital "resting comfortably."

CHAMBERS — The Chambers citizenry weathered the unseasonal blizzard in fine shape. There were no power interruptions, and Chambers maintained continuous telephone contact with the outside world.

Scores of men helped clear the highway from Chambers east to the five-mile corner on Sunday afternoon. The roads to Burwell, Amelia and Ewing were blocked longer.

Wayne Smith, Chambers farmer, lost five head of livestock in the driving cold.

No school was held Friday but classes were resumed on Monday with restricted attendance. Chambers and Amelia telephone lines have become entangled and a lot of "double talk" goes on between the two communities.

School kids were happy about the blizzard situation. Briefly, it meant no school.

Because most of Inman's pupils are from rural homes Supt. Ralph Gray ordered classes dismissed Thursday forenoon. By Monday it was apparent that it would be impossible to resume classes for several days, so the holiday was extended until next Monday, November 29, making an extended Thanksgiving vacation.

No personal suffering or loss of livestock were reported here, but many country folks have not been heard from for several days.

Palmer Skulborstad and three others shoveled snow passively for 18 miles last Thursday to avoid being marooned near Verdigre. Skulborstad is from O'Neill.

ATKINSON — Classes at St. Joseph's hall were dismissed at noon last Thursday and Thursday afternoon at Atkinson public school, resuming Monday. The one-day holiday was necessitated because of the storm.

One of the largest crowds to witness a train arrival in recent years gathered enthusiastically at the North Western station shortly after noon Sunday. Two locomotives were used to pull westbound train number 13, which was filled to capacity with passengers, mail and express.

Not until Tuesday did the city get down to business in the task of removing snow from the downtown section. Days would pass, many believed, before all streets would be passable. Snowplows, tractors with power-lift attachments and a fleet of dumptrucks dug into the tons of snow early Tuesday and by Tuesday night had made a showing.

ATKINSON — The Atkinson sales barn proved to be a haven for a large number of cattle during the blizzard. Six truckloads of cattle from Valentine were unloaded there during the height of the storm. A large tractor was put into use to pull semi-trailers of cattle to the barn after the truck became stalled. The tractor later was able to rescue the trucks from the snow drifts. Albert Lemmer, Green Valley rancher living 20 miles south of Atkinson, also put a tractor into use in breaking a trail and hauling feed to his snow-bound cattle.

SICK & INJURED

O'NEILL—Donald Engler, of Valentine, is recovering from injuries received recently in a jeep accident. Mr. Engler will be bedfast for about a month, but is reported as "doing nicely." Both Mr. and Mrs. Engler are formerly of O'Neill. . . . Word has been received that Miss Janet Enright has been stricken with polio and has entered a hospital in Vancouver, Wash. Doctors there believe they have "checked" the case. Miss Enright is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Enright of O'Neill. . . . Mrs. L. A. Simonson is "very ill" in a Sioux City hospital. The hospital authorities tried to contact the relatives during the storm, but were unsuccessful.

Robert Fox, a former O'Neill resident, is reported ill with what may be diagnosed as polio. Married, he is the father of three children.

LYNCH—Mrs. Frank Crawford has returned to work at the hospital after recovering from a recent illness. . . . L. B. Bailey, of Fremont, is recovering from a severe heart attack which he suffered Sunday, November 7, at his home. Mr. Bailey is a former resident of Lynch. . . . Marvin Tuck, of Verdell, suffered an eye injury Monday, November 15, when a staple flew up and struck him. He was brought to Lynch and later flown to Omaha by Roger Woolf.

AMELIA—Judy Withers was sick last week. . . . Phyllis Fullerton has been suffering from infection caused by a tooth extraction. She has been getting medical attention in Atkinson. . . . Mrs. Lyle Childers and Charles and Harold Green brought Robert Green home Sunday, November 14, from the Lutheran hospital at Norfolk.

INMAN—Mrs. Charles Kalina submitted to a major operation at St. Joseph's hospital in Sioux City early last week. Her condition is "satisfactory." Her son, Joseph, who accompanied her to Sioux City, has returned to Inman.

O'NEILL LOCALS

Mrs. Eliza Cooper, of Butte, is spending the week visiting her daughter, Mrs. Virgil Pinkerman.

Gene Barnett, of Lincoln, arrived last Thursday and was delayed until Saturday by the storm.

Miss Ann L. Stewart, of Denver, Colo., was a weekend guest at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll W. Stewart.

Miss Marie Biglin, of Salt Lake City, Ut., is visiting her mother, Mrs. P. J. Biglin. She came to attend the wedding of her sister, Miss Helen, on Monday.
