

Holt Digs Out from Heavy Snow

Holt countyans are fairly well dug out from under the heavy snowfall which visited this region on Thursday and Friday, November 18 and 19, in an unseasonal blizzard.

Streets and roads are still choked with snow and many observers predict that much of the snow will linger until Spring. All principal highways and county roads are open to at least one-way traffic.

The city of O'Neill's battle with snow is expected to cost in the neighborhood of a thousand dollars. Snowplows, tractors with power-lifts and dump trucks are still at work in clearing the main streets.

From all corners of the U. S. came newspaper clippings concerning the storm, which virtually isolated the city for 48 hours, causing one death, and took a toll in Holt county livestock and fowl. The New York Herald-Tribune and Philadelphia Inquirer were among the metropolitan newspapers prominently displaying O'Neill press dispatches.
