At Niobrara, the citizens staged a riot in an attempt to prevent the embarkation troops on the steamboat Omaha. Four persons were killed and several more were wounded.

By 1862 the situation was so serious that Governor Alvin Saunders ordered all male citizens between 21 and 45 remaining in the territory to enroll for military service. At the same time he notified recruiting agents from other states to cease their work immediately, and all citizens of the territory were forbidden to enlist in any regiment not recruited under the Governor's authority.

The Nebraskans had genuine cause for alarm. All along the frontier, the Indians seized upon the Civil War as an opportunity to effect revenge on the whites who had
