CITY TO GRADE, LIGHT ALLEYS

Improvement Aimed to Help Solve Parking Problem Here

Saturday night parking areas behind the Ben Franklin, Council Oak, J. M. McDonald Co., Penney's and Saunto's stores will be graded and "amply" lighted in the near future by the city, according to Mayor Hugh E. Coyne.

These areas, to be used to relieve congestion on O'Neill's main thoroughfare on Saturday night, will accommodate about 250 cars and will be police patrolled for the protection of those people using the areas.

John Daly and Arnold Doering, members of a Chamber of Commerce committee, met on Tuesday night with the city council and discussed the solution.

Parking stalls are now being painted on the city streets in downtown O'Neill to "guide" people in parking their cars. Mayor Coyne also stated that the owner of any car found parked so as to occupy more than one parking stall will be subject to a fine.

A committee to determine the number of lights in each parking area is headed by James M. Corlde.

Consumers Public Power will install the lights when the number has been determined.

It was also stated by Doering and Daly that city people should continue to walk to the downtown area on Saturday nights or, if they drive, park their car in back of business establishments, to further relieve the parking congestion.

St. Anthony's hospital fund continues to increase. Less than 23-thousand dollars is needed before actual construction operations can get underway.

The offers were swelled during the past week to the tune of $3,466.90, boosting the grand total raised through popular subscription to $77,551.94.

A minimum of 100-thousand-dollars is needed by popular subscription in order to obtain a 100-thousand-dollar grant from the government.

Sisters of St. Francis, who will own and operate the institution, will assume any reasonable indebtedness on the 40-bed, 300-thousand-dollar health center to be built in O'Neill. Physically, the hospital is intended to serve the needs in the Sand Hills area.

James G. Fredrickson, of the Fredrickson Livestock Commission Co., announced last week his firm would sell any livestock free of service charge, if the money were donated to the hospital building fund.

Last week he had one caller, Leo Gokkie, of O'Neill, offered a grey mare for sale at the barn. It sold for $16.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Simonson post of the American Legion, members voted to donate one-thousand-dollars, and $166. The latter figure represented proceeds from the sale of Capper's Weekly here.

The same Girl Scout troop is in charge of the glass collection jars that are in public places also for contributions. The girls pickup and turn in the money periodically.

CORN BORERS APPEAR HERE

But Crop Prospects Are 'Good' Throughout Holt County

A lingering humid, hot spell during the past seven days has dealt the death stroke to Holt county aphids, according to the county agent's office.

With the passing of the aphids, the hot weather has been a boon to the corn crop. Off to a late start, the corn is coming along in "good" shape.

But all is not rosy for the farmers' corn. Some calls have been received at the county agent's office with regard to corn borers. The borers infest the corn during the tasseling stage and bore deep into the corn and stalk, finally reaching its roots.

Effective control, according to the department of entomology of the University of Nebraska, is one and one-half pounds of DDT per acre, used as a spray.

A spokesman at the county agent's office also said the borers, who lay 100,000 eggs in a 10-day period, will remain in the area until next year if extermination methods are not used.

Over the entire county, the corn looks "good."

The ideal corn weather for Holt county farmers has also given the blue grass unparalleled drying weather. Most of the seed has been sacked and is on its way to market.

However, some of it still remains in the drying yards.

The hay is looking good with the alfalfa coming along fine, the county agent's office stated.

Until Wednesday afternoon 30 carloads of blue grass had been shipped from Stuart alone.

This week's high temperature was recorded on July 4 when the mercury soared to 95 degrees. It was the same temperature a year ago this week.

The Deloit community received .75 of an inch of rain early Friday. Rainfall extended about two miles West of Hupp's store.

This week's weather summary, based on 24-hour periods, ending at 8 a. m. daily, follows:

Date	Hi	Lo	Prec.
June 30	89	66
July 1	84	64
July 2	85	66	.03
July 3	94	70	T
