ARC to Sponsor First Aid Classes

Holt county's alarming traffic accident record—and the incidence of other violent accidents—has prompted the Holt chapter of the American Red Cross to launch a first aid training program. Patrolman Fay Robeson, of the Nebraska safety patrol, will be the instructor.

Preliminary plans were made last Thursday evening in a meeting of the chapter. Holt ARC Chairman Glea H. Wade, of O'Neill, made the appointments of community first aid chairmen as follows: J. W. Walters, Chambers; Mrs. I. R. Dickerson, Atkinson; Mrs. P. W. McGinnis, Emmet; Mrs. Stanley Cobb, Stuart; and others to be announced later.

Twenty-eight persons attended the Thursday session. Delegates attending paid $1-per-plate for a turkey dinner, adopted new by-laws for the chapter, met the new field representative, heard a few remarks from a Junior Red Cross field worker, elected a Junior ARC chairman, witnessed two safety films and a first aid demonstration.

Wade presided at the meeting got underway. Mrs. C. V. Sullivan, of O'Neill, Holt chapter secretary, read the revised by-laws which were approved with but one slight alteration. J. B. Grady, of O'Neill, is chapter treasurer.

Mrs. Betty Jane Darby, who is making her home in West point, was presented to the group. She is the new field director for North-Nebraska and Wyoming. She was in social welfare work with the American Red Cross during World War II, serving in Germany. Mrs. Darby is a native of Cheyenne, Wyo., and succeeds Glen D. Custer as field representative in this district. Custer became well-known here through his Operation Snowbound activities.

Mrs. Darby introduced Peter Simmons, of St. Louis, Mo., who represents the Junior ARC in Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming.

Mr. Simmons, a military government worker in Japan for 2 1/2 years following World War II, is anxious to launch Junior ARC activity in the county.

He stressed the Junior's gift box program and stated that an exchange of correspondence and sending of gifts abroad, facilitated by the Junior ARC organization, "teaches tolerance and understanding in a way that sticks."

He asked his listeners "to think of the Junior division in its international aspect."

Wade told of letters that already have been received from Poland youngsters in an exchange of correspondence that was arranged by the ARC. Wade said the "sentiment in these letters is worth all the effort required to get youngsters interested."

The correspondence exchange was worked out while Miss Elja McCullough, of O'Neill, was Junior ARC chairman in the county. Miss McCullough declined to accept that post for another year, and Mrs. J. B. Grady, of O'Neill, was elected to be her successor.

A film, entitled "Safety First," was shown by Arlen Miles. It graphically emphasized the causes for most accidents. Stressed was the fact that accidents—highway, home and farm—accounted for more fatalities each year than the combined toll of influenza, polio, spinal meningitis, and tuberculosis.

Sergeant W. E. Teachman and Patrolman Fay Robeson gave a first aid demonstration. In a preface to the demonstration, Sergeant Teachman pointed out that the 125 members of the Nebraska patrol are now 100 per cent qualified ARC first aid workers, and are qualified to teach.

Teachman localized his talk by citing specific instances in this region where first aid ability of patrolmen was credited with saving lives.

"Most accidents in Holt county," he said, "are on county highways." Teachman, who directs patrol activities in 19 Nebraska counties, said that Holt county already this year is charged with six auto fatalities. His 19-county area counts 17 fatalities, proving that Holt's record is bad.

The three-hour session at Slat's came ended at 10:30 p.m. Details will be announced in connection with the first aid training courses which will be made available to interested persons in most Holt communities. Robeson will conduct the courses at night and schedules will be set up.

Delegates to the meeting were: Chambers—J. W. Walter, Walter Brown, Glen Adams; Emmet—Mrs. P. W. McGinnis, Mrs. Leon Beckwith, Mrs. Guy Cole, and Homer F. Mullen; Stuart—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cobb, Preview of ARC first aid training from State Patrolman Fay Robeson. Others are: Mrs. Betty Jane Darby, ARC field representative; J. W. Walters, of Chambers; Mrs. P. W. McGinnis, of Emmet; Mrs. Stanley Cobb, of Stuart; Mrs. Stanley Dickerson, of Atkinson.
